Will be 'watchdog'

Concerned Citizens Committee is here to stay

By OWEN HARDY
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The Concerned Citizens Committee, now a little over six weeks old, appears to be here to stay.

The hastily-organized group grew up almost spontaneously out of citizen outrage over two specific issues in Sedalia — the sale and use of drugs, especially heroin, in this community, and alleged links between the drug community and the Sedalia Police Department. But, as the group's chairman, Jerry Woodward, recently noted, the solving of such deep-seated problems is not accomplished in one or two months. And, when and if these problems are solved, group members have indicated that the committee will continue as a permanent institution in Sedalia, operating as a kind of citizen "watchdog" over any issue which demands public attention.

The committee, which formed early last month in the wake of the Democrat-Capital's four-part series, "The Heroin Connection," presently consists of about 20 active members, although Woodward said he receives "from three to five calls a night from different people. Usually it's 'We're 100 per cent behind what you're trying to do,' " he said.

Although a "Citizen's Concerned about the Concerned Citizens Committee" was formed a few weeks ago, Woodward said "I don't know anyone who is against us." Woodward said he had never received any communication from this second "concerned" committee, which placed an advertisement in The Democrat-Capital in support of ex-Police Chief William Miller." Woodward's committee advocated the dismissal of Miller, who was relieved of his duties Dec. 19 by Mayor Jerry Jones "for inefficient service in supervisiong and providing necessary leadership to the members of the police department" and because of "the loss of confidence in your ability to function efficiently by the public."

Woodward said he has heard from some people complaints that the committee is politically oriented. He does not agree. At a recent meeting, he said, he decided to determine the political sentiments of the Concerned Citizens Committee members. He asked for a show of hands of those who considered themselves Democrats and those who called themselves Republicans. "It was just about even," he said.

Similarly, an average committee member is hard to define, because there seems to be no common background. Woodward said he knew practically no one in the group before it formed. Many of the other members agreed.

Dr. Robert Glass, a member from the group's beginning, said most of his fellow members were unfamiliar faces. The members, he said, are a "cross-section of political ideas" and come from "all walks of life." Their greatest common trait is "community betterment," he said.

Woodward, who owns an auto salvage yard, termed "60 per cent" of the group's members as "upper-class," but N.J. Anderson, a retired Teamster's Union employe and a member of the group, pointed out that "we're pretty well represented by every walk of life." The group includes doctors, retirees, at least one truck driver, housewives, an accountant and businessmen, he said.

Despite its destinct anti-political attitude, the committee members have discussed on at least one occasion endorsing a candidate or candidates in April's city council election. Woodward said, however, that no decision has been made as yet.

Finances have yet to be a problem for the committee, Woodward said. The committee has received from $1,200 to $1,300, mostly in small donations, since the group formed. Most of the money has gone for buying advertisements in the newspaper, he said. The committee charges no dues, he added.

Woodward pointed out that his committee was well-supported by Sedalians. As an example, he said he went to a store recently and met on the street a woman, in her 30s or 40s, who worked at a "Main Street bar." He said she came up to him and asked, "Are you Jerry Woodward." "Yes I am," he replied. "I really appreciate what you're doing," she told him, putting two dollar bills in his hand.

The committee, which meets the first and third Tuesdays of each month at the Farm and Home Building, has become "much better organized," Glass said. The group is composed of four subcommittees dealing with law enforcement, schools and education, city government and publicity. A fifth group entitled the "youth committee" was also recently established, youth committee member Tony Lynn said.

The purpose of the subcommittees is to gather information in their specific areas and then report back to the main group, Woodward said. For example, Anderson and Ken Kennedy, members of the law enforcement committee, have interviewed Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, ex-Interim Police Chief Gary Dey and Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming to determine their ideas on current problems and have

Lebanon's leader reassumes position

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem leader Rashid Karami agreed Saturday to reassume the premiership of war-ravaged Lebanon as fighting tapered off under a Syrian-sponsored cease-fire.

He called on his countrymen to "forget all our pain and suffering, the tragedy of the past and look to the future to build a new Lebanon."

The uneasy truce was marred by a battle between Moslem and Christian militiamen in adjoining neighborhoods that left 20 dead and 36 wounded, police reported.

They also said that Soviet-equipped soldiers of the Palestine Liberation Army who are enforcing the cease-fire in Beirut's Moslem section shot and killed seven armed men when they refused to dismantle two street barricades.

Karami announced in a radio broadcast that he had withdrawn his week-long resignation and urged all Lebanese to "forget all our pain and suffering, the tragedy of the past and look to the future to build a new Lebanon.

"All doors have been reopened anew and there is great hope for reaching a solution," he said.

His optimism was based on the latest, Syrian-sponsored cease-fire and peace plan that was accepted Thursday by the warring factions as troops of the Syrian-based Palestinian Liberation Army advanced on Beirut.

Several hours before Karami spoke, a bullet struck the car in which he was riding with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Khalim Haddam, a police spokesman said. He added there were no injuries and it was unknown who fired the shot.

Karami and Haddam were returning to Beirut after visiting a Moslem religious leader in a suburb south of the capital.

The police spokesman also said that armed looters had ransacked and then set fire to the seaside mansion of Interior Minister Camile Chamoun, who heads the Christian National Liberal party. Chamoun was evacuated from his villa in Saadiyet, 14 miles south of Beirut, while it was under siege by Moslem gunmen in midweek.

Israeli officials in Tel Aviv were wary of the cease-fire. They said they feared the Syrian presence in Lebanon could turn into a "creeping takeover."

Karami resumed power as a joint Syrian-Lebanese-Palestinian truce supervision commission went into action for the first time, to end a serious violation of the cease-fire in Beirut.

The clash in the battle-scarred streets of the adjoining neighborhoods of Moslem Chiyah and Christian Ein Rummaneh left at least 20 dead and 36 wounded, bringing the death toll in nine months of civil war to more than 9,000.

Karami made his announcement after separate meetings with Christian President Suleiman Franjieh and Moslem, Syrian and Palestinian leaders.

He said his six-man cabinet would continue in office temporarily pending the formation of a new government to include all parties. Under the Syrian-sponsored truce, the Moslem majority is to receive a bigger share of economic and political power in Lebanon.

Treaty on bases signed

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Spanish foreign minister Jose Maria de Areilza, right, sign a treaty in Madrid Saturday which will extend American use of four military bases on Spanish soil in exchange for over $1 billion in U.S. aid. The treaty also calls for the withdrawal of 10 U.S. missile-firing submarines from their Spanish port.

Spanish treaty signed

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A treaty extending American use of four military bases on Spanish soil but withdrawing 10 U.S. missile-firing submarines from their Spanish port was signed Saturday by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Foreign Minister Jose Maria de Areilza.

U.S. officials, while insisting the agreement is not a commitment to defend Spain, acknowledged that it brings the two countries closer together as well as edging Spain toward the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In case of attack against the West, the agreement said, the United States and Spain will hold "urgent consultations." Also, there will be a combined military staff for planning purposes and a U.S.-Spanish council chaired by Kissinger and Areilza.

The treaty, signed in a nationally televised ceremony at the Spanish Foreign Ministry, will be submitted to the U.S. Senate for ratification. It needs a two-thirds vote for approval.

For the use of the bases for five more years, the United States will give Spain $1.22 billion in military and economic aid and meet Spanish demands for withdrawal of the nuclear submarines from Rota, a naval base near Cadiz in southern Spain.

U.S. officials said they could meet that demand because the Polaris submarines in the American fleet will be replaced by longer-range Tridents beginning in 1979. The 10 Polaris submarines are to be withdrawn between January and June of that year.

"Spain, which has contributed so much to the Western civilization," Kissinger said, "must in our view be an integral part of all Western relationships."

The United States has backed Spain for NATO membership, but most of the Western European democracies opposed the drive during the authoritarian era of the late Gen. Francisco Franco. The agreement, signed with the new government of King Juan Carlos, "brings Spain closer to NATO, certainly in a psychological sense," said a key U.S. official.

However, he emphasized that unlike U.S. agreements with NATO, the United States was not committed to Spain's defense.

This official also said the "treaty of friendship and cooperation" does not guarantee U.S. use of the bases for shipping equipment to Israel in event of another Middle East war. The issue did not come up in negotiations, he said.

Besides Rota, the United States operates air bases at Torrejon, outside Madrid, Zaragoza and an inactive base at Moron.

Kissinger was scheduled to fly home Sunday, ending a trip that has included strategic arms limitations talks in the Soviet Union, a meeting with NATO foreign ministers in Brussels and a stop in Denmark.

'Trial of century' set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The clock outside the bank read 9:45 on a bright, cool April morning when a slim young woman with an Army carbine sprinted across the gold carpet.

The long black coat and the curly wig did little to hide her identity. To make sure, her name was announced by her heavily armed companions: "Tania."

Moments later, $10,690 was gone from the bank's cash drawers, two bystanders were shot and Patricia Campbell Hearst had taken the first steps toward becoming the central figure in what one of her lawyers has called "the trial of the century."

The events and pressures that carried Miss Hearst, the victim of the nation's first political kidnaping, into the bank that April day will be at the core of the federal trial that is to begin Tuesday.

Soon to turn 22, she is charged with armed bank robbery and use of a firearm to commit a felony. If convicted, the heiress to a newspaper fortune faces a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on the first count and 10 years in prison on the second.

Patricia Hearst is the only surviving member of the five-person holdup team that witnesses say struck the Sunset branch of the Hibernia Bank on April 15, 1974. The other four died in a shootout with police a month later in Los Angeles.

From the beginning, Miss Hearst appeared cast as the leading player in the carefully orchestrated robbery, intended to be perhaps the finest hour for a ragtag band of revolutionaries — the Symbionese Liberation Army — that had kidnaped her on Feb. 4, 1974.

Two months after her kidnaping, Miss Hearst announced she was joining the SLA. She took the name of Tania, after a mistress of slain revolutionary Che Guevara, as the SLA declared war on "corporate enemies of the people."

Her parents said their daughter was being coerced. As if in answer, the SLA picked a quiet neighborhood bank for its effort to prove that she was indeed a convert.

"She let it be known that she meant business. She had a gun and looked ready to use it," recalled bank guard Edward Shea.

Until that moment, Patricia Hearst had been a kidnap victim. Now, she was a fugitive, sought as a material witness to the holdup. Less than two months later, she was indicted on the federal bank robbery charges.

The FBI would spend $5 million and 17 months trying to find her. They finally did, in San Francisco, on Sept. 18, 1975.

Miss Hearst's participation in the robbery is not disputed. Bank surveillance cameras snapped more than 1,200 pictures during the three-minute holdup. It took the FBI less than four hours to identify her.

South Africa may pull out of Angola

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa sent out strong signals Saturday that it is prepared to withdraw some of its troops fighting in Angola, where Soviet-backed forces are reported making steamroller advances and possibly considering crossing over into SouthWest Africa.

"I have on various occasions stated that South Africa's involvement in Angola is part of the the involvement of the free world," Defense Minister Pieter Botha said. "But I also stated that South Africa is not prepared to fight on behalf of the free world alone.

"Furthermore, South Africa will defend with determination its own borders and those interests and borders which we are responsible for. I will deal with the whole matter when I address Parliament during next week's debate."

Botha's qualified statement underlined increasing speculation in South Africa that the government is about to announce at least a partial withdrawal of South African troops fighting on the side of the Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA).

Botha's statement, which was specially cleared by the Defense Department for publication in South Africa, was in reaction to claims made in Lusaka, Zambia, by UNITA Foreign Minister Jorge Sangumba that South African troops and technicians have already begun to leave Angola on orders from Pretoria.

The Cuban-led and Soviet-armed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) is reported to be within 50 miles of UNITA's provisional capital of Huambo, formerly Nova Lisboa, in southern central Angola and to have captured the strategic harbor town of Novo Redondo on the Atlantic coast.

This puts the MPLA columns within striking distance of Benguela, a key port at the end of the British-owned Benguela railway.

On the northern front, MPLA columns are said to be only a few miles from the Zaire border.

The Johanesburg Star, reporting from Lusaka, Zambia, said the withdrawal of white troops from UNITA's side — South African newspapers have carefully refrained from identifying UNITA's allies as South African units — has already left UNITA forces virtually on their own.

Word has spread rapidly through Lusaka of a pullback in Angola and this has caused anxiety and even alarm among the Zambian leadership, the newspaper said.

Zambia is in a state of critical economic depression and rising internal dissatisfaction, and there are fears that a Communist-dominated Angola will lead to inter-tribal and widespread political conflict in Zambia.

Zambia is South Africa's chief ally in its detente exercise with black Africa and any threat to Zambia and its leader, President Kenneth Kaunda, can only be viewed in Cape Town and Pretoria as a blow to Prime Minister John Vorster's efforts to ease relations between white and black-ruled Africa.

Meanwhile, as the MPLA rolls back the UNITA forces, another threat arises for South Africa.

Reports here say highly-placed intelligence sources claim that Russian agents have been paying increased attention to the South-West African People's Organization (SWAPO) in recent months, suggesting a Soviet interest in carrying the Angolan war into South-West Africa.

The sources doubt that in its present mood, Moscow will call voluntarily for a halt at the South-West African frontier if MPLA forces are able to push through the UNITA lines.

They speculate that urged on by the MPLA and encouraged by the poor Western reponse to the Angolan confrontation, the Russians and Cubans could be persuaded to go on and try to "liberate" South-West Africa.

If this is so, it partly explains South Africa's contemplated withdrawal in Angola and the massive mobilization of reservists in South Africa during the last few weeks.

SWAPO guerrillas, who have been waging a hit and run war with South African troops for the last two years, have intensified their campaign since last November out of southern Angolan bases.

Ann Landers

Nothing motivates like disapproval

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16. My boyfriend is 18. He just went into the Air Force. We are getting married as soon as I graduate from high school. Neither of us have any hang-ups about sex. We have a very open and honest relationship.

Ever since we've been going together people have been butting into our affairs, trying to break us up. His parents, especially. He told me they have always tried to run his life. They keep reminding him that he is under their control until he is 21.

Well, he came home last month for a few days. Since that time his folks have been absolutely rotten. They have called me every name in the book from liar to tramp. Every week they write him at least one letter telling him how cheap I am, hoping he will dump me — but he never will. Our song is, "Love Will Keep Us Together."

How can parents be so mean? Please answer in the paper, Ann. — Determined In Niagara Falls

Dear D.: Reading between the lines, I see a 16-year-old girl who has a very heavy relationship with an 18-year-old boy. His parents don't approve and they are letting their son know it.

You sign yourself "Determined," and I'm sure you are. The more they knock you, the more "Determined" you will be to fight them.

Nothing motivates young people to stick together like parental disapproval. I'm betting you'll win your fight with them, even though you may lose a great deal more. (P.S. to parents everywhere: There's a lesson here someplace.)

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently that vandalism in schools in the United States cost the taxpayers $500 million in 1974. The solution to the problem is so apparent to me I can't understand why others have not thought of it, Ann.

A great deal of damage is done by kids who have too much spare time on their hands. Why don't the schools organize "clean-up crews"? There are so many things they could do, like shovel snow, rake leaves, paint buildings, pick up trash, wash walls and windows, scrub floors. The list is endless. Hands that are busy have a lot better chance of staying out of trouble. — Keep 'Em Working

Dear K.: I like the idea. And I'll bet the kids would like it, too, if the schools called it "Civic Pride, Inc." and put some fun into it. How about it, out there?

Dear Ann Landers: I wouldn't ask anyone this question for fear of sounding too self-important, but I'd like to know if I have cause to feel slightly put-down.

The mother of a friend passed away recently. The deceased was a lovely woman in her 70s. She reminded me of my own mother. Although I didn't see her often (nor did I know her well) I felt a special affection for her. I wrote a letter of condolence to my friend expressing my sympathy. I spent at least 40 minutes finding just the right words.

This morning I received a printed card of "thanks." It read, "The family of — wishes to thank you for your kindness during our bereavement." It wasn't even signed. I felt very let down. Am I overly sensitive? When my father died I sent hand-written notes to every individual who wrote letters or cards with a few personal words added. I'd like your views. — Frost-Bitten

Dear Frost-Bitten: A printed card can be warmed up with just a few hand-written words and a signature. Sometimes, however, the grief-stricken are not up to even that — so don't be too harsh in your judgment.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped (13 cents now), self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Cash gift for therapy center

The State Fair Community College Student Government Association (SGA) recently contributed $100 to the Viginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center, it was announced Thursday.

Gil Bergman, a student government senator, presented the check to Mrs. Mary Kay Hunter, the center's administrative secretary. Also present were SGA faculty sponsor Jerry Greer, SGA secretary Carol Powell and SGA president Jim Pickett.

The funds were raised at a disco-dance held at the end of the fall semester.

Awards presented at ceremonies

MARSHALL — The presentation of the annual Human Relations Award to Marshall State School employes Wayne Brown and Leland Maxwell highlighted the school's annual employes' recognition dinner here recently.

The award was presented by Mrs. Adrienne D. McKenna, school superintendent, and Mrs. Marie Benham, chairman of the school's human relations committee. Runner-ups in the competition for the award were Mrs. Rhea Morgan, Mrs. Gladys Washington and Mrs. Mildred Nichols.

Addressing the group at the banquet was Dr. C. Duane Hensley, director of the State Division of Mental Health, department of mental retardation and development disabilities.

Fighting the war with Jones

By BRYAN PARKER

I was only 14 when the war started. I was in the general store when I heard that 10 days ago the first sea battle of the Revolution had taken place of Machias, Maine, between two small vessels commanded by Jerimiah O'Brien and the British war cutter Margaretta.

I had just gotten in with John Paul Jones on the cruiser Providence, when on the 1st of September, we sighted the Solebay, an English frigate. Mr. Jones ordered us to put on full sail and retreat. After brilliant maneuvers, we managed to escape.

Later, I learned that May 7, 1777, the American cruiser Surprise captured the Prince of Orange, an English packet ship in the English Channel.

In 1778, I was still with Mr. Jones but we had changed ships. Now we were on the 18 gun cruise Ranger. It was also that year I learned that the first submarine boat ever invented, had tried and failed to sink or damage the English frigate Cerberus. It was the same April when we ran into the Drake. We captured it after about one hour of fighting.

I will always remember that Sept. 23, 1979, all my life. We had changed ships again. We were now on the Bonhomme Richard, when the English sent the Serapis off Eastern England to intercept us. When they got into range, they fired a broadside. Mr. Jones ordered us to fire. There was an explosion but no broadside. Ten of our biggest cannons had blown up. But Mr. Jones calmly said, "Back to your stations men!" The ships were tied together during most of the battle. The English captain shouted, "Do you surrender?" Mr. Jones replied, "Sirs, I have not yet begun to fight!" Finally, the English captain hauled down his colors. The Bonhomme Richard sank later. It was a terrific battle! The Serapis was the largest English naval ship.

When we got back to Boston, we learned that the last battle of the Revolution had been fought between the Pennsylvania State cruiser Hyder Alley and the English cruiser General Monk on April 8, 1782, off Cape May Roads.

We also learned, that in all, our force had captured or destroyed 202 English warships. In all there were 800 vessels taken from the English.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 8 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

Professors conclude high court unfair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing rulings which struck down state abortion laws, a study of Supreme Court decision-making says the court sometimes ranges so far afield for information that it fails to deal fairly.

The conclusion is part of a paper by two law professors at George Washington University here, Arthur Selwyn Miller and Jerome A. Barron, which has been published by the Virginia Law Review.

Miller and Barron argue that the justices too often base their decisions on information which has not been tested in lower courts.

"They can and do roam far afield, apparently selecting facts and law to buttress their pre-existing positions," the authors say. "Those who lose ... are not accorded their 'day in court' that is basic to fairness."

The two professors say they are not echoing the view of some congressional critics of the court that it relies too much on sociological rather than legal data.

"This latter comment displays a depressing lack of knowledge of how courts, including the Supreme Court, have always acted," they write.

Instead, their criticism is aimed at the way in which the court obtains the information it uses.

As examples, they cite two decisions in 1973 invalidating state laws against abortions and a 1964 decision broadening the protection of the news media against libel suits by public officials.

"The particular facts of the abortion cases ... were a matter of almost no concern" to the justices, the professors write. They contend the lawyers in the cases, "by acting like counsel before a legislative committee ... were, in effect, asking the Supreme Court Court to make new social policy, rather than to rule in accordance with 'the law'."

For instance, they say, women's rights groups argued that public and professional opinion were behind more permissive abortion laws.

"That is really lobbying the court," say Miller and Barron.

They also question Justice Harry A. Blackmun's treatment, in his opinion, of the reasons for 19th century state laws making abortion a crime.

"He accepted the idea that the laws were for the protection of the health of women, as against the argument that they were to protect unborn children," they write. "By summarily rejecting the argument that these laws were enacted for the purpose of protecting the fetus, Blackmun made it necessary that the authorities he cited for his conclusions be tested ..."

The abortion decisions have been unsuccessfully challenged in lower courts on grounds that the justices used inaccurate material on this issue.

Similarly in the 1964 libel case, the article argues, a "stunning alteration of the American law of libel was generated" at least in part by a lawyer's historical parallel with government action against political opponents under the 19th century Alien and Sedition Law.

But it says the authenticity of historical texts cited by Herbert Wechsler, who represented The New York Times in the case, was "nowhere subjected to critical examination by opposing counsel."

"Historical texts which might not be permitted to be introduced in evidence at trial for any purpose thus are permitted to create an illusion of authority and authenticity before the Supreme Court," Miller and Barron write.

Wechsler was not immediately available for comment.

The professors conclude that "a process of subtle and sophisticated joint policy-making" is carried on by the justices and a corps of experienced lawyers who practice regularly before the high court.

Ford's health is good

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, after his annual physical checkup, was pronounced as healthy as a conditioned athlete by the White House physician Saturday.

The physician, Dr. William Lukash, also reported that First Lady Betty Ford "apparently has conquered her confrontation with cancer."

Ford, 62, had described himself as "fit as a fiddle" after the three-hour examination by a team of doctors at Bethesda Naval Medical Center in suburban Maryland.

Lukash told reporters Ford "has maintained his excellent health and should have no difficulty handling the responsibilities of this coming year."

Lukash said he had given Mrs. Ford a regular four-month cancer checkup on Friday and found no evidence of a recurrence of the cancer that forced removal of a breast in September 1974.

"Since her cancer was first discovered nearly 18 months ago, at this stage, without a recurrence, she apparently has conquered her confrontation with cancer," Lukash said at a briefing for reporters.

He said Mrs. Ford would continue to take chemotherapy treatment until next September.

"I'm getting healthier every day," the President told reporters after the tests, which were conducted in the presidential suite on the top floor of the center, with the exception of a few special exams such as X-rays.

"I think I passed them all with flying colors," he said of the tests. The examining team included specialists in radiology, orthopedics, opthmalogy and ear, nose and throat.

Ford said the doctors advised him not to change his health habits — "exercise and watch the calories."

"I swim every day," he said, adding he had taken a few laps in the pool at 10:30 p.m. Friday. He also is a golfer, skier and tennis player.

"I weigh less than I have in 20 years," the President said. As President, his weight has ranged around 195 pounds.

He said his only problem was seeing in the bright sunlight at that moment because of a test in which his eyes were dilated.

After his last annual checkup a year ago, Ford picked up a pair of contact lenses, but he found them uncomfortable and instead uses glasses when he needs them to read.

Asked if the examination proved he is fit for the grueling presidential campaign ahead, Ford replied, "It proves I'm fit to be President."

Ford made a campaign promise to disclose his medical records and he wants other 1976 presidential candidates to do the same.

He overruled Lukash's reservations about the propriety of making all medical details public. The doctor says he feels it will endanger the traditional patient-doctor confidential relationship and set a bad precedent for future presidents.

Cox endorses Morris Udall

BOSTON (AP) — Former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox endorsed Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall for the Democratic presidential nomination Saturday.

"People can trust him because he trusts the people," said Cox, a Harvard law professor. "Trust in government is not to be had for the asking, nor is it gained by the politics of image. It begins with the trust which those who govern repose in the people."

Only a man of character can restore that confidence," Cox said. "Only a man of openness, integrity and courage can bring us together. I believe Morris Udall is such a man."

Cox' statements came at a news conference in a downtown hotel. Udall was present.

Cox, recently named chairman of a state commission on judicial reform, said this position would put demands on his time, but, "to the extent I have time I would be delighted to campaign."

Udall has been endorsed by four Massachusetts Democratic congressmen: Reps. Robert Drinan, Paul Tsongas; Thomas "Tip' O'Neill, House majority leader, and Edward Boland.

Udall said he believed the endorsement gave credibility to his campaign.

AIM leader is arrested by the FBI

EL CERRITO, Calif. (AP) — Dennis Banks, fugitive American Indian Movement leader, was arrested Saturday by FBI agents who surrounded a college instructor's home in this San Francisco suburb and ordered him to surrender.

Banks, 38, wanted on a federal flight charge and other charges stemming from a courthouse melee in South Dakota, gave up peacefully, the FBI said.

Arrested with Banks was the college instructor, Lehman Leonard Brightman, 45, director of the native American program at Contra Costa Junior College.

The FBI said Lehman will be charged with harboring a federal fugitive. Both men were being held in El Cerrito city jail and were scheduled for arraignment Monday before U. S. Magistrate Thomas Rothwell in Oakland.

Banks, a Chippewa Indian and cofounder of the American Indian Movement in 1968, gained national prominence as one of the leaders of the AIM-led occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D., a village on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

Davidson files to run again

Curt Davidson

Curt Davidson, D-Clinton, who has served in the state House of Representatives for the past 20 years, Friday filed for re-election to his 11th two-year term.

Davidson represents the 117th District, comprising portions of Henry, Johnson, St. Clair, Benton and Pettis Counties. The Pettis County townships represented by Davidson are Lake Creek, Flat Creek, Washington and Green Ridge.

He is currently chairman of the House Committee on Mines and Mining and serves on the committees for transportation, license and related matters and fees and salaries.

Discussing his qualifications, Davidson stressed his seniority, saying, "There are only two among the 163 House members who have greater seniority than I have. As a top-ranking member, I am able to do much for the people of my district and since I have lived in Henry County all of my life, I am well aware of their needs and problems."

Lt. Governor calls for ERA education

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A call to educate the public about the Equal Rights Amendment was made here Saturday by New York's first woman lieutenant governor, Mary Anne Krupsak.

"It is time we're worth of constitutional equality," Miss Krupsak said before a meeting of the Women's Political Caucus.

"We need to show that ERA opponents' dramitic and emotional claims are not based on the law," Miss Krupsak said. "The law states very clearly that the right of privacy would remain despite uni-bathroom claims made by opponents of the ERA."

The women's caucus is looking ahead to an attempt to pass the ERA in the Missouri Legislature in 1977. Last year, the amendment passed the state House but died on the Senate floor. This session the amendment was not introduced. The amendment must be passed in four more states before 1979 to become law.

Sen. Larry Marshall, D-Columbia, said, "Passage in Missouri will depend a lot on the 1976 elections, especially in the Senate. It will be a nip-and-tuck effort, but chances are good if supporters of the ERA are elected this fall."

Also attending the meeting was Rosemary Ginn, Republican committeewoman recently nominated by President Ford as ambassador to Luxembourg.

"If we are dealing with the same legislators as before, we will need to take a different approach to convince them it's in the best interests of their constituents to support it," Mrs. Ginn said.

Miss Kruspak stressed the need for the ERA because of unequal pay scales, unequal job opportunities provided veterans over women, unenforced laws allowing men to avoid alimony and child care payments prescribed by courts, and more severe sentencing of women than men for crimes such as public intoxication.

Rep. Larry Meade, D-Columbia, suggested ERA supporters separate themselves in the public eye from the abortion issue and encourage talks of ERA's advantageous effects.

Miss Krupsak said she hoped to run for governor of New York sometime in the future, and said, "I'm with Betty Ford. I want to see a woman on the Supreme Court."

Miss Krupsak was elected in 1974 on a third-party ticket and is a lawyer and a former New York state Democratic state senator and representative.

"Without ERA, women are discriminated against educationally, in obtaining mortgages and home loans and even in civil service exams, where veterans receive five extra points," she said.

New recreation brochures ready

The Sedalia Park and Recreation winter and spring program brochures are now available for persons interested in seeing what activities have been scheduled for January through May, Park and Recreation Director Roscoe Righter said Saturday.

The free brochures may be picked up at the park board office, the public library, the Chamber of Commerce building and the Municipal Building.

Four dead in state accidents

By The Associated Press

Four persons were reported dead in Missouri weekend traffic accidents Saturday.

Dennis O. Young, 5, Monett, was injured fatally Saturday when he darted in front of a pickup truck and was struck on Missouri 37 in Monett.

Ira Mallard, 75, Buffalo, was killed Saturday when the car in which she was riding collided with a pickup truck on Missouri 32 one mile east of Buffalo.

Killed Friday night:

James Smith, 42, Benton, when he was struck by a car as he walked along U.S. 61 about a mile and a half north of Benton.

Question Answer

A member of my family is terminally ill. When I come to arrange the funeral details would you object if my clergyman accompanied me?

You most certainly may bring with you whomever you choose. The fact that there is a doubt in your mind that your clergyman would not be welcome is the most worrisome part of the question. It is perhaps true that in very few of the material purchases in your lifetime would you expect the assistance of your clergyman. Since, however, a funeral service is a religious ceremony, it is quite normal and understandable that you should turn to him for guidance at this time. We concur with you in this decision.

delivered their reports to committee members.

Committee policy is determined by majority vote, Woodward said. All the votes have been practically unanimous, he said, except when the group voted a few weeks ago to call for Third Ward Democrat Carl Franklin's resignation because of his absence from council meetings. "I think there were four votes difference," Woodward said. The group subsequently sent Franklin a letter congratulating him when it was learned that he would be working full time in Sedalia. Franklin had been working in Texas and commuting to Sedalia since early last year.

Every committee member contacted said they hoped the group would become a permanent fixture in Sedalia. "I would like to see it a permanent set-up," Anderson said. Just what kinds of problems the group should tackle, however, is perhaps less clear. Woodward sees the group primarily as a citizen "watchdog" over public officials and offices. Others, such as Glass, believe the group could also deal with more diverse community problems such as pollution.

So far, however, group members point out that their objectives have been limited and almost conservative. "We are not a radical group," one member said.

Woodward, who calls himself "just a common old John Doe," perhaps sums up the committee's goals best: "I think if more people would be more plain-speaking, it would make a better community. There's no sense in passing the buck around."

Witnesses are not always to blame

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scene is a threateningly familiar one on city streets:

A man is robbed. A witness helps the victim hail the police, who capture a suspect and take the witness' name and address.

The witness is subpoenaed to testify at the trial. But he does not show up. The victim cannot identify the robber and the case is scratched.

"Uncooperative witness," says the prosecutor. Just another person who didn't want to get involved?

Maybe not, says an Institute for Law and Social Research study.

Working under a federal grant, door-to-door interviewers for the institute talked with 922 witnesses in Washington and its suburbs who had been labeled uncooperative by prosecutors.

In 25 per cent of the cases the people said they wanted to cooperate, but were never contacted. It turned out the police had the wrong address and the witnesses never received their subpoenas.

Doubtless some of the prospective witnesses deliberately gave wrong information to throw the authorities off their trail, said the institute's president, William Hamilton.

But other reasons were found also. Police sometimes took down the address wrong — "P" Street for "T" Street, for instance.

Some officers were observed asking witnesses for their names and addresses within earshot of suspects, making the witnesses fearful to give correct information.

The Washington study was the most ambitious yet, but smaller-scale surveys in Chicago and New York came up with similar results.

A Chicago Crime Commission study indicates that witnesses associated with 33 per cent of 264 serious cases could not be located because of erroneous phone numbers or addresses.

A study of New York City crime victims reported that 16 per cent of 10,000 letters to victims were returned with such notations as "addressee unknown" or "no such street."

The Washington study also concluded that police and prosecutors were failing to properly advise witnesses what they are supposed to do once they are called.

The study revealed that 43 per cent of 594 witnesses said they did not receive an explanation of the major steps of the court process.

For instance, one witness received a subpoena to appear before a grand jury and complied with it. A few weeks later he received a subpoena for the trial, but assumed it was a mistake because he had already testified. So he didn't show up.

Interviewers for the institute talked to witnesses both in ghetto areas of Washington and in prosperous suburban neighborhoods.

Little festival support

Sound Off

QUESTION — Mayor Jerry Jones has named a Kansas City police captain as interim chief of the Sedalia department. This has been criticized by one councilman, who said a local police officer should have been named to save money. Do you agree with that view?

Comments and signed letters are appreciated.

YES ☐ NO ☐

Sound Off is a regular feature of The Democrat-Capital in which readers may express their views on topics of current interest. Clip and return ballot to The Democrat-Capital, 700 South Massachusetts, Sedalia, Mo., 65301.

The idea of holding a third ragtime festival in Sedalia drew affirmative responses from only 30 per cent of those readers who answered last Sunday's Democrat-Capital Sound Off question. Only 10 ballots were received, and only one of these was accompanied by a letter.

The question was: "The Sedalia Ragtime Festival board last week decided not to vote on whether to hold a third festival this year. The board cited lack of community financial support and interest in the festival, plus the uncertainty regarding a director for this year's festival. Do you think Sedalia should have a third festival?"

One "no" vote had this brief comment on the ballot: "Believe State Fair is enough to have annually. Would be great to have a bicentennial celebration here in Sedalia."

The only letter received came from a Hughesville resident who did not want to be identified. It said, "Yes, I think the Sedalia Ragtime Festival should hold a third festival this year and every year, if possible, for time to come. Ragtime music has a spirit that is happy and uplifting and it needs to stay around and have a part in history that is deserving in the proper atmosphere."

Free health screening date named

The free health screening clinic for senior citizens, postponed Jan. 7 because of inclement weather, will be held from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Parkview Christian Church, 1405 East 16th.

Health screening tests to be given at the clinic will cover hearing, vision, blood pressure, urinalyses and blood checks. Referrals will also be provided to appropriate medical agencies if necessary. Non-medical referrals and follow-up referrals to insure that persons are receiving adequate medical treatment will also be provided.

Persons needing transportation to the church can call Mrs. Wanda McBride at 827-3088.

The service is being provided by the Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corp.

Finally, a 'pill' designed for dogs

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — For those dog owners who want to plan their prize pooches' family future now can turn to a birth control method which avoids the finality of past conventional methods — "the pill" for dogs.

For about a year, a pharmaceutical company has been selling a canine oral contraceptive designed to delay a female dog's mating period.

"The pill is another good alternative to other methods," explained Dr. John Rhoades, a reproductive specialist at the University of Missouri.

A veterinarian said the pill is available to any animal doctor and its cost depends on the size of the pet.

Dr. Ernest Burgess said a 4-pound poodle's prescription might cost $7 while a 120-pound Great Dane's pill might run as high as $25.

"With the dog population the way it is now, people are concerned about unwanted pups," Rhoades said.

One significant difference between the human and dog varieties of oral contraception centers on the effect of the pill.

The canine pill only delays the mating or "heat" period, Rhoades said. One dose can delay the fertile period for two to six months.

One major use of the pill, he said, was by dog fanciers who take their animals on hunting trips, dog shows or vacations.

"Surgical intervention, well, that's pretty final. This gives us a good alternative," Rhoades said. "People have a real hangup about spaying."

Rhoades, a specialist in companion animal research, said he felt certain the industry is working toward development of a birth control method which can be administered through pet food.

Veterinarians have also been using an intra-uterine device for man's best friend, similar to the IUD's many women use today. But Rhoades said the canine IUDs are often impractical since they involve complicated surgical implantment.

Role changing

By ERMA BOMBECK

Saying good-bye is not a unisexual trait.

There is a basic difference between the way a man says good-bye and a woman makes her exit. If you don't believe it, then try to imagine for a moment that a man has jumped out of a car and is saying good-bye to his good friend, Burt, with whom he has just had lunch.

"Hey, Burt, I've had a ball. You know we really ought to do this more often. I get in a rut. I really do. A ten-minute lunch at the desk out of a brown bag gets to be a drag. That peach melba for dessert is right here (pointing to hips). What the heck. You only live once, right? Was that a meringue crust? I think Bob served that one night at a cookout. Which remainds me, we owe them. I'm ashamed to look Bob and Doris in the face. We've been to their house eight times now and we've never entertained them.

"Listen, I'm holding you up and you're running all the gas out of your car. Did you just have your pistons ground? I thought so. You don't have to tell me if you don't want to, but where do you take your car to be serviced? Ed's Garage? That's where Stew takes his car. He's been a standing there for years. The only thing I heard about Ed is that he's overpriced, but you've been happy there...

"Hey, while I'm thinking of it, did you see who was waiting to be seated while we were having lunch? Fred Fronkmyer. I'm not kidding. He and his wife — you didn't know he was married again? Three months ago. I've been to all his weddings. He's going to keep doing it until he gets it right. We shouldn't joke about poor Fred. Listen, I've got to get going, these knee-length elastic stockings are killing me. One size fits all. Who are they kidding? You could amputate my leg to the knee as I'm standing here and it's so numb I wouldn't feel a thing.

"You were about to say something. No, no, I've got a minute. Say that again. Arnold and Velma are role-changing? Arnold will be climbing the wall in two weeks. He doesn't even like children. Especially his own. Which reminds me, hasn't Bruce lost a lot of weight? If you ask me I think he's gone too far. He used to have a shape, but I saw him on the golf course the other day and he's about as sexy as a pencil.

"Must run. Listen, before I go, love your leisure suit. You should always wear green. I mean it. Call me sometime. You don't have my new number? Give me a pencil. You'd think I'd have a pencil in one of these pockets, wouldn't you? Silly. I'm not going to write my number on the back of your driver's license. You have to keep it until, good grief, Burt, it's expired. You're driving around with an expired license. Imagine that, a person three years older than I am driving around ... say, Burt, speaking of age, guess how old ... let 'em honk, I'm leaving in a minute..."

Blood drive plans set

LaMONTE — The Community Betterment Club here will sponsor a fourth community blood drive on Feb. 2.

Mrs. W. C. Jones, club chairman, said the mobile unit of the Community Blood Center of greater Kansas City will be at the LaMonte Christian Church from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m. that day.

The LaMonte Donor Club's goal is the collection of 78 units of blood, which will provide total coverage for the residents of the LaMonte school district for another year.

Further information, may be obtained from co-chairmen Mrs. Owen Russell at 347-5480, Mrs. Paul Moore at 347-5494, or Mrs. John Jones, 563-2556.

Speed Reading Course To Begin at Sedalia

Arrangements have been made by the Institute of Speed Reading, Inc., to conduct a 24 hour course in speed reading. The course is open to anyone above the age of 13 and guarantees every graduate a reading speed triple that of your present rate and with at least an increase in comprehension.

After the eight week program a person can read any average length book in less than an hour and understand it better. In addition to speed reading the course also emphasizes improved study techniques, better test taking skill, and increased concentration and retension abilities.

The course requires a person to attend one class per week on the evening of their choice. For those who would like more information, without obligation to enroll, a series of Free one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled.

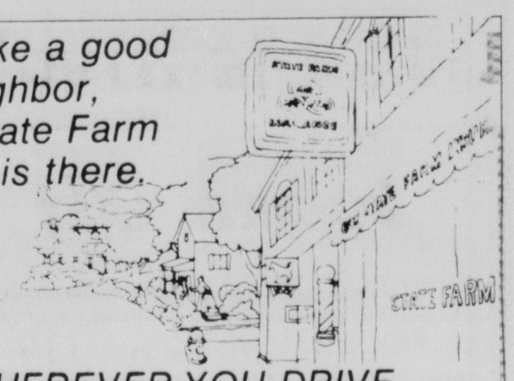

These meetings are free to the public and the course will be explained in complete details including entrance requirements, class room schedule and location. You need to attend only one of the meetings whichever one is most convenient for you. These free one hour orientations will be held as follows:

Monday, 26 Jan. at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, the 27th at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday the 28th at 7:30 p.m., and FINAL MEETING MONDAY 2 FEBRUARY AT 7:30 P.M. ALL MEETINGS AT THE HOLIDAY INN, SOUTH 65 IN SEDALIA.

Special student and family tuition available for those who qualify. Persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent.

Construction underway at base exchange

KNOB NOSTER — Construction began last week on a 9,282-square-foot addition to Whiteman Air Force Base's main exchange by Curtiss-Manes Construction Co., Eldon.

Over 6,500-square-feet of the addition will be added to the sales floor, with the rest going to storage, according to Dale Kline, base exchange manager.

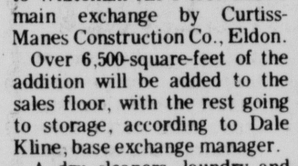

A dry cleaners, laundry and floral shop will be included in the addition, expected to be completed about Sept. 1.

"The addition is being built with earnings from the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, not the taxpayer's dollars," Kline added.

The exchange and adjacent commissary parking lots will be connected and expanded, Kline said, and the present main exchange will be remodeled.

Mrs. Mary Cordonnier, St. Louis, spoke on the George Caleb Bingham drawings at the 2 p.m. Monday meeting of Sorosis at the Heard Memorial Club House.

Mrs. Cordonnier is a member of the state committee organized to acquire the drawings of the 19th century Missouri artist for the state of Missouri. She stressed that it is in the interest of all Missourians to retain the Bingham drawings as a collection.

The region around Hilo, on the island of Hawaii, calls itself "Orchid Capital of the World," National Geographic says. During a busy week, the city flies a million blossoms to the other Hawaiian Islands, the Far East and the United States mainland.

Ex-Sedalian is co-editor

Dr. S. Jack Odell, son of Mrs. T. J. Carver, 2210 West First, recently edited with Charles Bontempo a book entitled "The Owl of Minerva: Philosophers on Philosophy."

The book is a collection of articles by 18 leading contemporary philosophers on the nature and relevancy of philosophy and includes an extensive introduction by Dr. Odell and Bontempo. It has recently been published by McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.

Dr. Odell graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in 1951 and received his bachelor's degree with honors from the University of Kansas City in 1960. He received his master's degree in 1963 and his Ph.D degree in 1967, both from the University of Illinois, Champaign. He was a National Science Foundation fellow in 1964.

A professor of philosophy at the University of Maryland, College Park, since 1966, he has published articles in Mind and Metaphilosophy and is currently working on a logic book for McGraw-Hill. He is married to the former Judith Hammond of Sedalia and they have two daughters, Lynn, 20, and Erin, 11.

Third National Bank where you come first

Each month, Sedalians write over 150,000 checks on the Third. They know that when they pay by check they are providing themselves with a receipt that's useful for maintaining a record of payment.

It's so much more convenient to pay by check and so economical when your checking account is at the Third.

Put yourself in the Third family--with a personal checking account. You help yourself and you help Sedalia and Pettis County grow with money from the Third, the oldest and largest bank in Sedalia.

P.S. If you are over 50, ask about the no minimum balance, no service charge checking account.

Proud of her coupons

The Phoenix Nest

Edited by Martin Levin

By JAN WARREN

I've always been a coupon clipper. I can't resist the prospect of getting something for nothing. Even a coupon worth five cents will make me try a product — like chocolate flavored drinking straws — that ordinarily would never get on my shopping list.

Now, there have been times when I've felt that my coupons made me a second class citizen in the eyes of the cashier. Oh, it wasn't anything she said. It was the way she'd look at me over her glasses. The way she'd sigh as she unfolded my crumpled coupons. Once a cashier actually took out a pair of scissors and trimmed the torn edges of my coupons. Her message was clear.

In the past year, with rising food costs, the whole picture has changed. Suddenly coupons are in!

I found this out when I was doing my big weekly shopping and realized about half way down the cereal aisle, that I'd left my coupons at home sitting on the kitchen counter. The cashier's first question was, "any coupons today?"

"No coupons," I answered.

"Uh, uh, uh," chided the cashier. "Look! With the coupon, you'd have saved 25 cents on this orange juice, and 12 cents on the margarine. And, oh dear!" At this she picked up a bag of carrots and waved them in the air. "Do you see these? Well, with the coupon you'd have had them FREE today. Free!"

I glanced at the woman behind me in hopes of a sympathetic smile, but her face was stolid and the look she gave me clearly said that she felt I was a poor excuse for a housewife.

What could I do? I wanted people to know that it was all a big mistake and that my coupons were home on the kitchen counter. But I just couldn't make myself explain.

As I started to leave the cashier picked up a flyer and tucked in into one of my grocery bags.

"Those are next week's coupons," she explained with a motherly smile. "Next week's. Now, don't forget. I put them right on top of your sour cream."

"Yes, Ma'm," I said pushing my cart just as fast as I could toward the exit door.

There's more to brush than teeth

By FRED R. BACHMANN

Dr. William Brown of the University of Oklahoma School of Dentistry says you should brush your tongue when you brush your teeth. Tongue brushing could reduce cavity-causing bacteria that supposedly thrive there. All you need to brush is that part of the tongue you can see in the mirror when you stick your tongue out. Dr. Brown has brushed his tongue since his days in dental school.

I can understand, of course, if Dr. Brown didn't want the world to know how he might have stumbled on to his tongue brushing method. The good dentist's personal habits are his own affair, but I don't think most people stick their tongues out at themselves when looking in their bathroom mirrors.

In reviewing my own habits, I find that I generally just peer into the glass, and, like the TV set, I watch my face slowly come into focus part by part; first my nose, which is closest to the mirror, then my eyebrows, followed by my chin. I know I've reached fine-focus when the jed blood vessels of my eyes are sharply visible. Occasionally my hands pop in and out of focus as they massage the stubble of my beard and then the hair on my scalp, but at no time do I ever stick my tongue out—at least it is never in the range of focus — which leads me to believe that it is still in my mouth. Although, had I been aware of what Dr. Brown was up to back in those early days, I certainly would have made a point of sticking my tongue out and brushing it even though I doubt it would have been one of my favorite habits.

Of course, at my age now it may be a waste of time to begin brushing my tongue although I intend to follow this procedure from now on. I wonder what would have happened if Dr. Brown had my habits of watching his face slowly come into focus in the early morning mirror and had seen his nose before he saw his tongue? What then? Would he have been brushing his nose all these years? What possibilities!

AFFIRMATIVE ACTION STANDARDS AND OPERATING GUIDELINES FOR PROMOTING THE PROFESSIONAL GROWTH AND WELFARE OF ALL EMPLOYEES OF SCHOOL DISTRICT 200, SEDALIA, MISSOURI

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT AND GROWTH OPPORTUNITY

In an effort to recognize the multi-ethnic nature of society and the significant cultural differences which exist in the heritage of the children attending the Sedalia Public Schools, and desiring to insure full and equal employment rights, opportunities, and privileges for all people, it is in the best interest of the total educational process for the staff of the Sedalia Public Schools to be representative of the minority groups that compose the community of Sedalia. For these fundamental rights, it shall be the policy of the Sedalia School District to insure and provide equal employment opportunities for all applicants by making the opportunity for employment and promotion available to every individual solely on the basis of his or her qualifications and without regard to sex, age, race, color, creed or national origin.

There shall be no requirements for employment or promotion which are dependent upon the sex of an individual and an active effort will be made to employ qualified females and members of minority groups in all types of positions in the Sedalia Public School System.

Procedures, practices and guidelines to implement this policy shall be consistent with established District Personnel Policies, and state and federal laws pertaining thereto.

Further information on the affirmative action policies of Sedalia District 200 as they relate to employees and students may be obtained from the Director of Personnel, Sedalia 200 School District, 400 West Fourth Street, Sedalia, Missouri 65301. Phone: 816-826-1054.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

In Combination With The Sunday Morning Capital

Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday, Jan. 25, 1976—Section B

MRS. DARYL GENE SCHLESSELMAN
Miss Julia Heising Brinkman

MRS. PAUL GENE KLOVER
Miss Cynthia Ann Schirr

Couples exchange winter vows

Brinkman-Schlesselman

RUSKIN HEIGHTS — Miss Julia Heising Brinkman and Daryl Gene Schlesselman were united in marriage Jan. 10 at Ruskin Heights Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brinkman, San Jose, Calif., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon R. Schlesselman, Route 1, Sedalia.

The Rev. Richard Bunge of Ruskin Heights Lutheran Church and the Rev. Fred Hueners, Christ Lutheran Church, Sedalia, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Miss Sandy Schlesselman, cousin of the groom, organist, was accompanied by a brass ensemble consisting of two trumpets played by Greg Billings and Jim Burkholder and a French horn played by John Cisetti. Mr. and Mrs. David Bass, accompanied by guitar, were the vocalists.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore an off-white lace over satin gown, styled with an empire waist, scoop neckline, Juliet sleeves and attached cathedral length train. Her cathedral length illusion veil was edged in matching lace.

Miss Amy Brinkman, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Hope Justis and Sandy Kidd. They wore mint green A-line long gowns, styled with empire waists, and emerald green velvet jackets.

Jennifer Henderson, niece of the groom, was the flower girl. Brian Jewett, the bride's cousin, was the ringbearer.

Richard Bashan attended the groom as best man and groomsmen were Wayne Durrill and Mark Zimmerschied. Seating the guests were Jeff Brinkman, the bride's brother, and Steve Schlesselman, the groom's cousin.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the church Jan. 9.

The couple will reside in Kansas City, where the bride, a graduate of San Jose High School, is a senior at the University of Missouri. The groom, a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, is a graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Schirr-Klover

ST. LOUIS — Miss Cynthia Ann Schirr and Paul Gene Klover exchanged wedding vows at 6 p.m. Jan. 3 in Graham Chapel of Washington University here.

Roses, mums and snapdragons adorned pairs of candelabra for the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Garland Gotoski. The couple also lit a unity candle.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Schirr Jr., Chesterfield, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Klover, 2505 Wing, Sedalia.

Howard Kelsey was the organist and Brian Davidson was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a peau de soie empire gown. The bodice was fashioned with an insert if Belgium lace, flowers and scrolls secured by seed pearls. Identical appliques and seed pearls accented her Queen Ann sleeves. Her full length madonna veil of heavy embroidered and appliqued Belgium lace was secured by a pearl and peau de soie headpiece.

Miss Catherine Ann Schirr served as her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Cheryl Ann Schirr, the bride's sister, Lianne House, Jan Pile and Beth Wilsman. They wore ginger and apricot crepe gowns in empire styles with long-sleeved, hooded jackets.

Cynthia Doerhoff and Barbara Carter were the candlelighters and Aaron Tiffany, the bride's cousin, was the ringbearer.

Robert McDonald was the groom's best man and groomsmen were Alan Klover, the groom's brother; and Roger Crank, Charles Smith and C. E. Baldwin, the groom's brothers-in-law. Henry Klover, the groom's brother, and Michael Heitkemp seated the guests.

Following a reception at Stegton Restaurant and Ballroom, the couple left on a honeymoon to Tan-Tar-A Resort on the Lake of the Ozarks.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Dec. 28 at Heritage House.

The couple are at home in Columbia, where the bride will graduate from the University of Missouri in June. The groom, a 1975 UMC graduate, is commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Hairdo height

If you're a tall woman, you should avoid very short or bouffant hair styles. Choose the correctly proportioned style, with your hairdresser, while you're standing in front of a mirror.

Posture ails

Poor posture can bring on back aches. It also makes your stomach bulge and your buttocks protrude.

Party to honor Symingtons

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — Clifton Daniel of the New York Times, husband of Margaret Truman Daniel, hit the news the other day when he corrected an error concerning a fund-raising invitation for Rep. James Symington, D-Mo. Heading the names of hosts for the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bennett Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Califano Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Clark M. Clifford and Mr. and Mrs. Harry McPherson, all prominent Democrats or Missourians.

In no uncertain terms Clifton Dnaiel told the press, "It is my wife, and she alone, who is sponsoring the party with the other hosts, not I." He is an honorable member of the press and quickly disposed of any accusation that his sponsorship could be reagarded as a conflict of interest. He will be there mingling with the crowd who will pay their $50 or more to meet Jim and Sylvia Symington at the Federal City Club on Feb. 4.

Symington has represented Missouri's Second District for two terms. He has a political heritage on his mother's side, the late Evelyn Wadsworth. Her father, James Wolcott Wadsworth Jr. from New York, was a representative and later a senator from that state. In this bicentennial year it is interesting that the congressman can claim antecedents in public life going back to the Revolution. Another Wadsworth relative, Jeremiah Wadsworth, served as commissary general under George Washington and was in the Continental Congress and the first, second and third U.S. Congresses and another was a member of Congress from Maryland. His great grandfather, John Hay, was secretary of state under McKinley and Teddy Roosevelt.

While all this historic background has its significance and the heritage had something to do with the character of Jim, he is a substantial political citizen on his own. His great interest in juvenile delinquency problems was demonstrated when he was a special (asst.) under Attorney General Robert Kennedy and juvenile consultant under President Kennedy. President Johnson appointed him chief of protocol, after which he wrote about the job in his book "The Stately Game."

In his forties, young Symington is an earnest legislator. Although well known in Washington circles, he is a Missourian at heart. He and Sylvia — his wife and teammate — are among the few members from the Hill to attend the National Symphony and opera with regularity, but if his cultural interests conflict with the job on the Hill, he sacrifices them.

It is no secret that James Wadsworth Symington wants to keep his announcement for the Senate a secret. The joke is, that it is no secret. Reports say Jim is favored to succeed his father to win the Democratic nomination in the fall. His opponent, if Jim wins, will be Republican Attorney General of Missouri John Danforth. The campaign is on, without his official announcement.

Together 50 years

Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Fulton, 1802 South Stewart, have returned from Glen Ridge, N.J., where they observed their golden wedding anniversary on Dec. 24 at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Norman L. Fulton. The former Pauline Stuart and Mr. Fulton were married Dec. 24, 1925, at the Rev. Oscar E. Leslie's home in Sedalia.

Married 62 years

Mr. and Mrs. George Bray, Sweet Springs, observed their 62nd wedding anniversary Saturday. The former Lois Robertson and Mr. Bray were married Jan. 24, 1914, at the Methodist parsonage in Lexington. They lived in Waverly and Higginsville before moving to Sweet Springs in 1925 where Mr. Bray managed Kansas City Power and Light until retiring in 1955. His oldest son, Corder, now manages KCPL. They also have three other children, Clifford Bray, Sweet Springs; William Bray, Raytown; and Mrs. Carl (Marion) Parsons, Gladstone; six grandchildren and two great grandsons. When Mrs. Bray was asked to what she attributes their long married life, she said, "I really don't know. It's a lot of hard work as well as a lot of pleasure to bring up four children."

Golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Griffitts, LaMonte, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a family dinner at Flat Creek Inn Jan. 18. Later, a reception was held in their honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Jarrett, 1921 South Stewart. The former Alma Molloy and Mr. Griffitts were married Jan. 23, 1926, at Marshall, and have one daughter, Mrs. John (Violet) Murray, LaMonte; two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

A Feb. 21 wedding at Stover Baptist Church is planned.

I never get ahead

I never seem to get ahead,
In adding up the score
Of trying to do for others
I always total more.
If some little deed I do
Right away I always find
Things that others do for me
Just leaves me far behind
Sometimes I do some little thing
For somebody and lo
The things that are done for me
Just grow and grow and grow,
It may be from the same person
Or someone else who
For me comes up with a bigger deed
They have thought up to do.
Of course I'm always happy
About things folks do for me
It's just that I can't catch up
On doing for them you see,
I'm really not in a contest
For a good deed loving cup
It's simply no matter what I do
I never can catch up,
I do a tiny little thing
And the next thing that I know
The nice things people do for me
Completely overflow.
I've thought the situation over
I don't know how to repay
My debts, so I've decided
That the joys that come my way
I'll just accept with gratitude
And from now on won't plan
To keep up, but I'll scatter
Bits of sunshine when I can
And where they fall may people
As delighted in them be
As I am in the kindness
That friends and strangers show to me.

January weddings unite couples

Edwards-Berryann

WAPPINGERS FALLS, N.Y. — Honeymooning in Hawaii are the former Miss Paula Kaye Edwards and Kenneth William Berryann Jr. following their 8 p.m. Jan. 10 wedding at the United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. William H. Waters performed the double ring, candlelight ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Edwards, 1411 West Fourth, Sedalia, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Berryann Sr., Wallkill, N.Y.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a rayon organza gown with point d'Venise lace detail at the V-neckline of the illusion yoke with high neck and sleeves. A flounced chapel train and matching picture hat with chapel veiling completed her attire.

Mrs. T. A. (Judi) McDonnell, matron of honor, wore a red jersey knit, long sleeved dress which featured a gathered bodice.

Dennis Mullen was the groom's best man and performing ushering duties were Thomas and Donald Berryann, both brothers of the groom.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Jan. 9 at the Memory Inn here.

The couple will reside in Wappingers Falls. The bride, a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia where she received an A.B. degree in mathematics. A student at Union College, the bride is employed as a computer programmer for IBM in Poughkeepsie.

The groom, a graduate of Wallkill, N.Y., High School, received an A.A.S. degree in mechanical technology from Mohawk Valley College, Utica, N.Y. Attending Marist College, Poughkeepsie, he is also employed as a computer programmer for IBM.

Newell-Reid

PILOT GROVE — Married at 3 p.m. Jan. 17 at Wesley Chapel here were Miss Cindy Newell and Jim Reid.

The Rev. Robert Kessler performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Newell, 322 North Prospect, Sedalia, and the son of Mrs. Betty J. Reid, Branson, and Merrell H. Reid, Houstonia.

Burgundy carnations and pink roses decorated the altar as Miss Kitti Carver provided organ music and Miss Beth Ackerman sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white silk organza gown styled with a Venise lace empire bodice and sheer tapered sleeves. Seed pearls accented her stand up collar, edged in Cluny lace. Her lace chapel train was edged with Cluny lace as was her elbow length illusion veil, secured by a Juliet lace-covered cap.

Mrs. Susan Raines was the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sheryl Newell, the bride's sister, and Miss Dianna Hackman. They wore pink crepe dresses with burgundy jackets.

The bride's sisters, Karen and Barbara Newell, were candlelighters. Missy Huggins, the bride's cousin, was flower girl, and Donnie Newell, the bride's brother, was ringbearer.

Ronnie Nicholes attended the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Andy Klein and Carl Waller, the bride's uncle. Seating the guests were George Purdy, the groom's brother-in-law, and Ronnie Newell, the bride's brother.

Following a reception in the church basement, the couple honeymooned at the Lake of the Ozarks. The bride wore a green pantsuit as her going-away outfit.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Jan. 10 at the Lucky Eight Restaurant, Blackwater.

The couple is at home in Sweet Springs, where the groom, a 1972 Northwest High School and 1974 State Fair Community College graduate, is the owner and manager of Sweet Springs Flower Shop. The bride is a 1975 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School.

Bali's new seamless was made for You, no matter how you're made!

No. 3713
Sizes 34-38 C-D
$8.00

Every woman knows a seamless bra is the closest thing to natural. But most of them are made with bulky padding or linings; the last thing a full-bosomed woman needs.

So if you're full bosomed, you've probably just passed them up.

It took Bali to make seamless possible for the full-bosomed woman. With the first unpadded seamless that really fits.

It was designed to accommodate your body, without padding, in fact without a single extra layer.

Yet it's as comfortable, flexible and pretty as only a seamless bra can be.

No matter how you're made.

Gremlins need O T to top Northwest

By RON HIGGINS
Staff Sports Writer

HUGHESVILLE — Sacred Heart and Northwest, two area rivals, met here Friday night in a suspense jammed encounter, that saw the Sacred Heart Gremlins emerge the victor with a slim, 46-43 overtime winner.

With 17 seconds left in the overtime, Mike Bernard came through with a short bank shot that clinched the victory for the Gremlins, who remained alive in the Kaysinger Conference race. Sacred Heart upped its league record to 5-2.

Northwest had a chance to break up a 40-all deadlock in the last few seconds of regulation play, but the attempt was blocked.

The Mustangs, who dipped to 1-6 in Kaysinger play and 1-13 overall with the setbak, controlled the tip that opened the overtime and grabbed a 42-40 lead on a field goal by Randy Wereneke.

But Sacred Heart fought back and eventually went ahead and iced the win with Bernard's bank shot.

"Sure it was a disappointing loss," commented Gary Littrell, the Mustangs' coach, "but I was very much pleased with the play of the team tonight. We played excellent defensively and hit the boards real well. We only committed seven fouls in the entire game, and for us, that's excellent —we usually average that in one quarter."

"The boys worked their hearts out and the fans did a good job too," he added.

Coach Tom Jennewein of Sacred Heart was pleased that his team worked well against the zone defense.

"We worked with consistency, but they played a good zone."

Sacred Heart was hurt in the foul situation and Jennewein was displeased with that. "We committed a lot of stupid fouls," he said.

Speaking of Northwest, Jennewein said they were 95 per cent improved over last season.

"They've been losing to a lot of tough teams by a couple of points — they've played a lot of people tough," he praised.

After claiming a 4-3 margin over Northwest, a see-saw battle ensued until the Mustangs took over the boards and grabbed a 7-4 lead.

Following the Sacred Heart time out, the Mustangs' defense dominated the remainder of the quarter. Capitalizing on Sacred Heart turnovers, Northwest grabbed an 11-4 cushion before giving up four points to the Gremlins near the end of the period.

In the second quarter, the Mustangs padded their lead to 13-8 before Bernard came off the bench for Sacred Heart and led the Gremlins back within a point, 15-14.

At the two-minute mark of the second period, Matt Stevenson catapulted the Gremlins back into the lead. But the score was tied 22-22 at the half.

Sacred Heart controlled the tip at the start of the second half and Matt Stevenson pushed the Gremlins to a short-lived 24-22 lead.

After a tight defensive dual and various turnovers, Doug Mackesty sank a short jumper with 29 seconds left in the third stanza to boost Northwest to a 30-28 advantage at the end of the quarter.

Sacred Heart scored four points before the Mustangs answered the challenge and reclaimed the lead, 34-32.

Bernard, again, spirited the Gremlins and Brad Nicholson put the Gremlins ahead 38-36 with three minutes showing on the clock. Bernard and Nicholson scored 18 and 12 points respectively to pace Sacred Heart.

But the teams had to settle for a 40-40 tie at the end of regulation, forcing the contest into overtime.

The Sacred Heart girls poured in 12 points in the fourth quarter and pulled away from Northwest, 31-19, in the opener.

Linda Day popped in 10 for Sacred Heart while Tona Dawson led the Mustangs with seven.

After laying claim to a 13-9 lead at the half, the Gremlins maintained their four-point lead at the start of the final seven minutes of play, 19-15.

Turnovers and fouls proved expensive for the Mustangs and resulted in the Gremlins padding their advantage.

For Sacred Heart, the victory moved the Gremlins' record to 6-1. However, Sacred Heart will have to settle for second place in the final standings, since Cole Camp assured itself of the championship with a 41-12 win over Stover. The Cole Camp girls closed out their season in league play with an 8-0 record.

A little over a week ago, the sports world lost one of its most beloved promoters — Gust Karras.

Although professional wrestling is viewed by many as a show, Gust Karras, who came to America from Greece more than 40 years ago, loved wrestling. He also loved people and wanted to make them happy.

Be it show, entertainment or sport, professional wrestling, promoted in Sedalia for many years by Karras, was loved by many area fans as well as its chief promoter.

Members of American Legion Post 16, located here in Sedalia, and sponsor of the regular weekly matches, paid a tribute to Karras Tuesday night. Commander Howard R. Hillman led the gathering in the service and delivered a short eulogy.

Hillman led the gathering in a slow 10-count, which was symbolic of the plight of a wrestler when he is down and can't get up. The crowd joined in a moment of silent prayer.

Bill Wood, a member of Post 16, concluded an article he composed for a Legion publication, "... With that, the wrestlers hit the ring and the action started ... that's the way Gust would have wanted it."

Four area bowling centers will hold qualifying for bowlers who want to compete in the Third-annual Midas National Bowling League Championship.

The four, Meadow Lark Lanes (Clinton), Union Recreation Center (Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg), Whiteman Air Force and Windsor (Mo.) Lanes, will be open for qualifying Jan. 26-Feb. 1.

The scoring is based on a pins-over average system. The first five bowlers in each center will qualify to have their scores compared with other qualifiers from across the United States.

The five top national qualifiers will win trips to the Midas Open, which will be held in Windsor Locks, Conn., Feb. 25-28.

Those qualifiers will also be eligible to compete in the Midas Open Pro-Am.

More information may be obtained by contacting any of the four area centers.

In local bowling news, Steve Emo, who bowls for McDonald's in the Monday night Broadway Majors at Broadway Lanes, rolled 10 strikes in a row last week, before he left the six pin on his second ball in the 10th frame.

Emo wound up with a 289 and tallied a series of 657.

Last weekend, Party Man, was presented the first-place trophy at the annual Saddle Horse banquet in Columbia.

The seven-year-old gelding, owned by Mrs. Bill Cline, Sr., Sedalia, was the high-point saddle horse in the state last year in that division.

The award was presented by the Missouri Horse Show Association.

During 1975, Party Man captured a number of blue ribbons at events held at the Missouri State Fair, the American Royal in Kansas City, as well as meets in Tulsa and other Midwestern locations.

The horse is trained and was ridden by Don Utz of Lexington.

Party Man was also awarded third place in the 1975 amateur division, where he was shown by Bill Cline, Jr., Sedalia.

S-C Tigers squeeze past Paseo, 56-54

KANSAS CITY — David Porter and his Smith-Cotton Tigers are getting so much confidence in tight ball games that they might start looking for a patent.

For the fifth time in the last seven games, the Tigers came up with the right formula for a 56-54 overtime win over Kansas City Paseo here Friday that yielded the Bengals the consolation trophy of the Center High School Invitational Tournament.

Smith-Cotton's success in tight games has been phenomenal since returning from the Christmas vacation.

S-C's string opened with a 63-62 overtime win over Hannibal two weeks ago. The following night, the Tigers lost by only two points to one of the state's top-rated 4A teams, Raytown South, 53-51.

On Jan. 16, S-C trimmed Jefferson City, 56-55; the next night against Independence Truman, the Tigers won, 41-40.

Although they dropped a 61-46 score to Shawnee Mission (Kan.) East in the first round of the tournament here Monday night, the Tigers moved into the consolation finals with a 48-47 win over Kansas City Southeast Thursday night.

"I've got to hand it to the kids," said Porter Saturday.

"They have shown that if the game is close down the stretch that they have the confidence to win ... we feel like we can win them ... they don't give up," he added.

"Petey" Cline, who has found himself in a number of critical situations at the foul line in recent games, came through again for the Tigers against Paseo. With only four seconds to go in regulation, Cline was at the line with a bonus situation and the Tigers trailing by one.

Cline hit the first shot, but missed the second to tie the contest at 50-all, forcing the game into overtime.

The senior Fiene twins, Pat and Pete, took command and scored all six of the Tigers' overtime points for the victory.

Offensively, the Fiene's scored the bulk of Smith-Cotton's points. They also handled most of the rebounding. Pete scored 29 points; Pat tossed in 24. Pete was credited with 15 rebounds; Pat had 10.

The big factor in the game was the free throw shooting by the Tigers, who found themselves outscored from the field 50-34. The Bengals went to the line 24 times and came back empty handed only twice.

Pete Fiene was successful on all 13 of his charity tosses, while twin brother Pat canned eight-of-eight from the line.

Pat Fiene ran his free throw string to 24 without a miss.

High-scoring Larry Grey poured in 28 points, most of which came outside, for Paseo.

"We played man-to-man and wanted to use a little zone against them," Porter said. "But the way he (Grey) was hitting, we couldn't afford to stay in our zone very long."

"The kids played hard ... real hard," Porter commented. "In fact, Pete Fiene played so hard he just couldn't play anymore late in the game. I put in Joe Fischer to give him a rest."

One of the things that has helped the Tigers in their recent tight-game success has been the substitute play of guard Jim Schroeder and front-liners Daryl Schnakenberg and Fischer.

"Those three in particular have provided us with good substitute play," Porter said.

"I'm happy that we are where we are (7-7), but we've got two big ones coming up this week," the second-year S-C coach said looking ahead to Friday's game with St. Joseph Central and Saturday's contest against Shawnee Mission South.

Both games are non-conference affairs and will be played in Sedalia.

And if things get tight in either one of those, S-C will be hoping their success continues.

Scoring

Smith-Cotton (56) — Pete Fiene 29, Pat Fiene 24, "Petey" Cline 1, Daryl Schnakenberg 2.
Kansas City Paseo (54) — Larry Grey 28, Draper Marshall 14, Marcus Ramsey 6, David Shepard 4, Leander Dorsey 2.

Pro Bowl is fun for players, fans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "More than anything else, being in the Pro Bowl is fun," said Merlin Olsen, who makes his 14th appearance in the National Football League classic here Monday night.

Other players and officials agree. There's not much tension, quite a bit of money — and always the lure of Bourbon Street, with its honky-tonks, restaurants and partytime atmosphere.

This year, there's also the attraction of playing in the new Louisiana Superdome, the airconditioned, carpeted, indoor sports palace that's caused so much despair among its politician-builders and so much delight among fans and players.

For most players, the fun starts the minute they hit town and is interrupted only by the daily one-hour practice sessions. They're relaxed, no-pads sessions and players do little more than rehease already well-known drills.

When they're not practicing with the players they spend their entire careers trying to beat, the Pro Bowlers are the guests of the NFL at New Orleans Jazz basketball games, Fair Grounds horse racing and steamboat rides up the Mississippi River.

Reservations to restaurants and nightspots are handled by the NFL, which also picks up the tab.

And for most players, earning a spot on the Pro Bowl means a bonus of up to $5,000. That's over and above what the player is paid for competing — $2,000 for winning, $1,500 for losing, although some teams have eliminated the fee from star players' contracts.

There's also a first-class airline ticket to New Orleans, room and board in a downtown or French Quarter hotel and a hardly-staggering $25 for incident expenses during the week.

"The players particulary enjoy New Orleans," one NFL official said. "They like it a lot better than Miami, which surprised a lot of us."

Foreman kos Lyle in five

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman, knocked down twice in the fourth round, came back to belt out Ron Lyle in the fifth round Saturday and successfully start his comeback.

Foreman, 226, from Livermore, Calif., put Lyle down for the full count with a merciless attack when he cornered the 220-pound fighter from Denver.

Referee Charlie Roth counted out Lyle for the first time in Lyle's career. As Roth reached the count of 10, Lyle reached to his knees and then collapsed on his back.

Foreman, who hadn't fought, excepting exhibitions, since losing the title to Muhammad Ali on Oct. 30, 1974, went down early in the fourth round from a left-right combination.

Green Light tops Houstonia, 156-122

In men's independent basketball action Friday night, Green Light Automotive of Sedalia scored a 156-122 win over Houstonia.

For Green Light, Dave Viles scored 26 points; Tim Waters added 24.

Lincoln downs LaMonte, 78-32

LINCOLN — The Lincoln Cardinals dealt LaMonte its 10th straight setback here Friday night in Kaysinger Conference action, 78-32.

The game was never in doubt after the first quarter, an eight-minute stretch that saw Lincoln run up a 26-7 lead. Lincoln increased its lead at the half to 37-14.

Coach Roger Newell of Lincoln gave everyone a chance to get into the game. Twelve players entered the scoring column for the Cards, led by Jerry Anderson and Rod Ingram, who tied for game honors with 15 points apiece.

Jerry Freeman and Steve Dillon entered double figures for LaMonte, which now stands at 2-14 overall. Freeman tossed in 12; Dillon added 10.

In the girls varsity game, LaMonte edged Lincoln, 24-24 in overtime. Jeanette Lyne netted 12 points for the winners; Karen Procter led LaMonte with 11.

Scoring

Lincoln (78) — Jerry Anderson 15, Rod Ingram 15, Mike Mullins 8, John Keehn 7, Larry Spencer 7, Tracy Meuschke 6, Larry Wischmeier 6, Dexter Dixon 5, Rick Rank 4, Mike Ragar 2, Jack Ficken 2, Steve Kroenke 1.
LaMonte (32) — Jerry Freeman 12, Steve Dillon 10, Travis Roberts 3, Ben Walters 4, Bob Weston 2, Bill Taylor 1.

AUTOMATION AT WORK

With a Circu-Lator in your bin, simply begin to fill the drying bin with wet grain as fast as you harvest. (You have a wet holding capacity as large as the Circu-Lator bin.) Dial the desired moisture content on the automatic control —it will automatically signal the tapered sweep auger to remove an even layer of grain as it becomes dry. This grain is transferred to an adjacent bin for storage and cooling.

The drying process proceeds automatically, 24 hours per day without babysitting, until adjacent storage bins are full.

The Circu-Lator bin is then filled and Recirculated under automatic control until dry. No babysitting is required.

OVER 4000 CIRCU-LATORS IN OPERATION

During the past six harvest seasons, 4000 Owner-Operators have proven the success of the Circu-Lator across the Corn-Belt and around the World. Somewhere not too far from you a Shivvers machine is installed. Ask your Shivvers Dealer for the location, then visit the Owner-Operator for first-hand information.

SMITHTON SCHOOL DISTRICT R-VI

today announced its free and reduced price policy for school children unable to pay the full price of meals and extra milk served in schools under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast, and Special Milk Programs.

Local education officials have adopted the following family-size income criteria for determining eligibility:

Family Size	Maximum Family Income Eligible for Free Meals and Extra Milk	NEW Maximum Family Income Eligible for Reduced Price Meals
1	$ 3,230	$ 5,040
2	4,240	6,620
3	5,250	8,200
4	6,260	9,770
5	7,190	11,210
6	8,110	12,650
7	8,950	13,970
8	9,790	15,280
9	10,550	16,460
10	11,310	17,640
For each Additional family member add	750	1,180

Children from families whose income is at or below those shown are eligible for free meals and free extra milk, or reduced price meals. In addition, families not meeting this criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, they should contact the school.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals or for free meals and free extra milk.

In the operation of child-feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

Under the provision of the policy, the Superintendent of Schools will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis or he may make a request either orally or in writing to: Cleo Hampy, President, Board of Education, whose address is Florence, MO, Phone: 816-368-2825, for a hearing to appeal the decision.

Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy. A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the central office where it may be reviewed by any interested party.

Nicklaus leads in Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus birdied the final hole—well after the national television cameras had ceased their coverage—and established a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $185,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, the 1975 Player of the Year who is making his first start of the season, engineered a late rally for a third-round 70 and put together a 54-hole total of 209, seven under par.

Longshot Mike Morley, who led Nicklaus by a stroke when the television coverage ended, finished one behind. Morley, still seeking his first tour title after a half-dozen years of competition, bogeyed almost immediately after the cameras cut away and took a third-round 71. He goes into Sunday's final round at Pebble Beach with a 210 total, six under par.

Australian David Graham fought his way to a 73 he characterized as "conservative," and was in third place at 211.

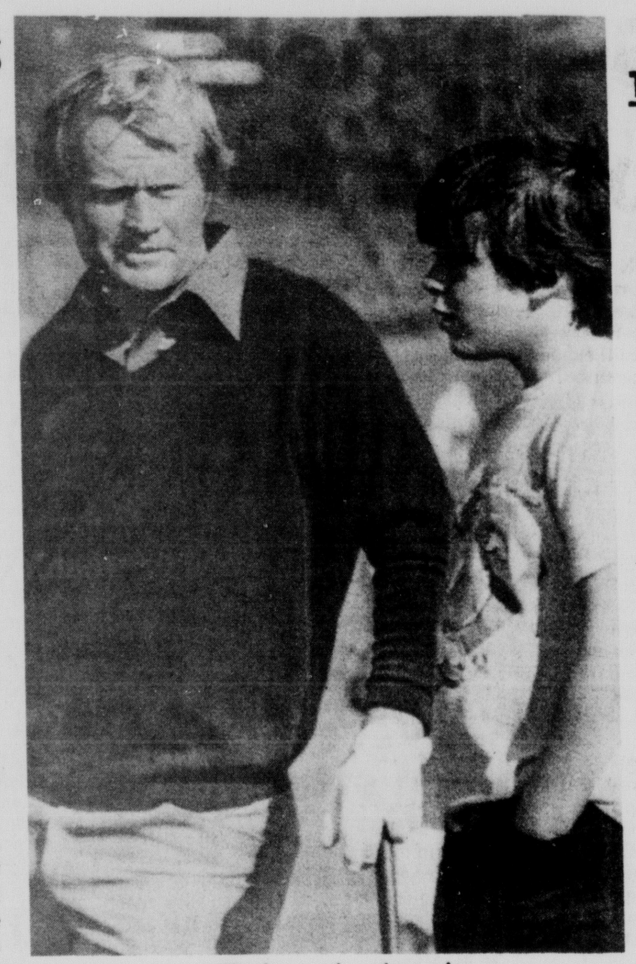

Dave Hill, the second-round leader, slipped to a wind-blown 76 and fell back to 212, three off the pace. He was tied with Ben Crenshaw, who had a 70.

Little Bud Allin managed a 71 and was next at 213.

Graham, Hill and Crenshaw all played out of range of the cameras at Spyglass Hill, one of three Monterey Peninsula courses used for the first three rounds of this unique event.

Hill, who had shot a 65 the day before, had only one birdie and put three sixes on his card.

Johnny Miller, a former champion here, bounced back with a brilliant 66 at Spyglass and was eight back at 217.

Takes the lead

Birdieing the 18th hole on the Pebble Beach Golf course Saturday gave Jack Nicklaus the third round lead of the 35th annual Crosby National Pro-Am Nicklaus, a three time winner of the tournament, was seven under par for the 54 holes. Here he talks with Billie Brodie, 11, on the 11th hole at Pebble Beach. Billie is the son of former San Francisco 49ers quarterback John Brodie. (AP Wirephoto)

Black belt will meet with class

Phil Porter of Sacramento, Calif., a sixth-degree black belt in Judo, will be in Sedalia Thursday night to present a four-hour block of instruction to the Judo Class at Convention Hall.

Porter will also teach classes in Kansas City and Whiteman Air Force Base during his stay in Missouri.

Mary Hellesvig, who conducts the Judo classes weekly at Convention Hall, said Friday that registration is still open for the current class.

Information may be obtained from the Sedalia Recreation Department or from Mrs. Hellesvig at 826-4638.

Raymore-Peculiar and Bolivar into finals

CLINTON — Raymore-Peculiar and Boliver were slated to square off in the championship game of the Clinton Invitational Tournament here last night.

Raymore-Peculiar upended Butler in the upper bracket semifinals Friday night, 52-34. Boliver dropped Sherwood out of the championship picture with a 45-41 win.

In other Friday action, Windsor moved into the consolation game with a 61-50 win over Warsaw.

Windsor and Clinton opened Saturday night's action in the consolation finale.

Warsaw produced Friday night's scoring leader among the three games in Lonnie Brown, who found the range for 24 points against Windsor.

Scoring

Windsor (61) — Sypes 21, Mortenson 13, Wallace 10, Walthall 9, Craig 6, Werths 2.

Spirits are losing an assistant coach

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Spirits of St. Louis announced Saturday that assistant coach John Morrison has resigned from the American Basketball Association team.

Morrison, who said he was sorry to be leaving the Spirits and St. Louis, said his reasons for going were "personal and have nothing to do with the ball club."

Morrison had been with the team for its 1½ years in St. Louis, serving first under coach Bob MacKinnon and more recently Rod Thorn.

Prior to joining the Spirits Morrison was head coach at Canisius College in Buffalo, his alma mater.

Harry Weltman, Spirits president and general manager, expressed regret at Morrison's decision to leave. "We did everything to persuade him to stay," Weltman said.

The Slam

Jack Nicklaus still has a future

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus' competition now is with the future.

He's the greatest player of his age—the greatest of any age the ancient game of golf has known.

He's demonstrated—convincingly and beyond question—his superiority over anyone now competing. And his record surpasses anything that came before.

He's beaten everyone there is to beat. He's won everything there is to win. He's set all the important records there are to set.

But he is an unsatisfied master. He's a restless champion with worlds to conquer. He still has his goals, his ambitions.

"I have not accomplished all I want in golf," Nicklaus said.

His amazing achievements have sent him spiraling past the Palmers and Trevinos and Caspers and Players and Littlers of the present, the Jones and Hogans and Nelsons and Hagens of the past.

He has reached a previously unattained plateau of accomplishment. But his greatest challenge is in front of him. Now he's trying to beat a foe that may be unbeatable.

He's trying to beat the record book. And that's never been done.

Nicklaus knows that. But he's trying to compile a record that will stand the test of time.

"It is in the nature of competition for records to be broken," he said. Ruth's record is gone. The four-minute mile is a relic. No one anticipated 2,000 yards rushing in the National Football League. All the standards have been surpassed. It will happen in golf.

"Some day a player is going to come along who's 6-foot-6 and weighs 250 pounds and has great coordination and hits the ball out of sight and he's going to break all the records there are," Nicklaus said.

That's the man he's fighting. That's the unknown, perhaps unborn, product of the future against whom he is competing.

"I have the opportunity to set a record in the major tournaments that may be very difficult to beat," Nicklaus said.

He has won 14 major professional tournaments—an average of one a year—along with two U.S. Amateur titles. Now, at age 36 and starting his 15th season as a touring pro, he seeks to add to that record.

"As always, my goals for the year involve the major tournaments," he said before making his first start of the season in the Bing Crosby. "I've never won more than two of the majors (the U.S. and British Opens, the PGA and the Masters) in a single season.

"I'd like to improve on that and, of course, if it's possible, to win the Slam."

That is perhaps the most difficult goal in all of sports. It's never been done. Many claim it borders on the impossible. It consists of a one-year sweep of the four big ones.

Hogan once won three in a single season. No one else has come closer than Nicklaus did in 1972 and 1975. In '72 he won the Masters and the U.S. Open and lost the third leg, the British Open, to Trevino by a single shot. Last year he won the Masters and the PGA, missed by one shot in the British and by two in the U.S. Open.

So he has that goal for this season. Should he achieve it, he almost certainly would quit.

"I think I would have achieved the things I'd set out to reach," he said. "My tour career, as it is now, almost certainly would be over."

But the Slam, Nicklaus knows, is very unlikely. He talks of other career goals. He mentions the figure of 20 major titles. He talks of playing another four years, maybe more.

He has won a record five Masters. He'd love to win another one or more. Hagen won five PGA's. Nicklaus has four. He'd like a piece of that record.

Hogan, Jones and Willie Anderson each won four U.S. Opens. Nicklaus has three. A share of that mark, perhaps sole possession of the record, is very possible.

Nicklaus has won two British Opens. One more would give him a cherished three-time career sweep of all the majors.

And why his over-riding concern with the Big Four?

"I believe that it is on your record in the major events that you will be judged in the future. Money is not a yardstick. I think a player's record in the majors is the only way he can be compared against a player of the past. Or a player of the future."

Bush is named Scouts coach

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (AP) — Eddie Bush, a coach in Ontario junior ranks for more than 20 years, has been named coach of the Kansas City Scouts of the National Hockey League, according to radio station CFOS here.

There was no immediate confirmation from Scouts officials.

Bush, whose only NHL experience was an 18-game playing stint with the Detroit Red Wings in the 1941-42 season, would replace Coach Ben Guidolin who resigned on Wednesday after a dispute with General Manager Sid Abel over demoting a player to the minors.

Abel has been coaching the Scouts on an interim basis.

Bush's most recent assignment has been as coach of a junior B club in Collingwood, 30 miles east of here.

Stenmark wins Preview ski race

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (AP) — World Cup leader Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden rallied with the fastest second heat and overcame Italians Gustavo Thoeni and Piero Gros to win the Olympic Preview special slalom ski race Saturday, highlighted by the United States' strongest showing ever in this World Cup event.

Stenmark, 19, third after the first run with a time of 54.82 seconds, turned in an electrifying 52.92 in the second for a total time of 1 minute, 47.74 seconds and his third Cup slalom triumph in five races. He now leads the Cup standings with 166 points.

Thoeni, 25, trying for an unprecedented fifth straight World Cup, grabbed second place in 1:48.10 on runs of 54.58 and 53.52.

Gros was third with 1:48.60 after clocking the best time in the first heat on the Hahnenkamm Mountain of 54.45. However, he lost his chance for his first Cup slalom victory this season with a second run of 54.15 and slipped to 11 points behind Stenmark in the standings.

Franco Bieler, the third Italian in the top 10, was fourth in 1:49.21.

Then came Cary Adgate, 22, of Boyne City, Mich., fifth in 1:50.18, and Phil Mahre, 18, of White Pass, Wash., sixth in 1:50.28.

Starting 58th in the 117-man field, Adgate was 22nd with 56.04 after the first run through the 69 gates but flashed down the 68-gate second course in 54.14 while the crowd roared approval.

His placing gave him eight World Cup points, his first points since placing 10th in the giant slalom last season in Adelboden, Switzerland.

Mahre also went for broke on the second run after placing 14th in the first with 56.04. The gamble paid off with six World Cup points, his first in slalom this year after three top 10 finishes in the giant slalom.

Phil's twin brother, Steve, just missed earning his first Cup point of the season by placing 11th in 1:51.32. Pete Patterson, 18, of Sun Valley, Idaho, was 14th with 1:51.32 and Greg Jones, 21, of Tahoe City, Calif., finished 15th in 1:51.33, the fifth American among the leaders.

Geoff Bruce, 22, of Corning, N.Y., the only American seeded in the top 15, was seventh after the first heat but was disqualified after missing a gate on the second run.

Death match set in wrestling

A death match has been scheduled as the main event on Tuesday night's professional wrestling show at the Sedalia Community Center. Jerry Oates and Bob Brown will be the contenders in the one-fall affair.

Other matches find a tag team match between the Outlaws and Mike George and Rick McGraw; the 300-pound Candy Man faces Rip Collins.

McGraw and Dutch Mantel, one of the Outlaws, will square off in the 8:15 p.m. opener.

Cole Camp dominated by Stover

STOVER — Stover sharpened its shooting eye from the free throw line, tuned up its fast break and remained undefeated in Kaysinger Conference play here Friday with an 86-65 win over Cole Camp.

Stover tightened its grip on first place in the league standings chalking up its fifth victory without a setback.

The loss for Cole Camp virtually drops the Bluebirds out of the championship picture. The Bluebirds wound up their conference slate at 5-3.

Kurt Hagedorn, one of four Bulldogs to reach double figures, ripped the nets for 29 points, his best effort of the season.

Mike Ringen followed with 18, while Tom Dale and Al Taylor scored 16 and 10 respectively.

Stover etched out a 20-14 lead in the first quarter, and padded that to 40-29 by the half. The game was never in doubt after that.

Stover won the boys junior varsity game, 35-30. Bob Witte led the winners with 16 points, while Tom Schroeder netted 13 for Cole Camp.

But the Cole Camp girls prevented a Stover sweep with a 41-12 victory in the girls varsity game. The victory brought the Kaysinger Confeeence championship to Cole Camp, which wound up the league campaign with an unbeaten, 8-0 record.

Cheryl Heimsoth led all scorers in the game with 14 for Cole Camp.

Scoring

Stover (86) — Kurt Hagedorn 29, Mike Ringen 18, Tom Dale 16, Al Taylor 10, Ken Dale 6, Mark Heimsoth 3, Loren Burke 2, Doug Derks 2.

MU Tigers whip Cyclones, 84-68

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Willie Smith and Jim Kennedy combined for 55 points Saturday night to lift 18th-rated Missouri to its ninth straight victory, a hard-fought 84-68 Big Eight Conference conquest of Iowa State.

Smith, the conference's No. 2 scorer, poured in 32 points, including 23 in the second half, as the Tigers pushed their record to 15-2 overall and 3-0 in the Big Eight.

Iowa State, 1-15, led only at 20 and fell behind by 15 points in the first 10 minutes but staged a gallant second-half rally that sliced the Missouri lead to 52-50 with 12 minutes, 22 seconds to play.

A three-point play by Kennedy and Smith's field goal boosted the Tigers to a 57-50 advantage, but again Iowa State fought back, closing to 59-54 with 3:52 remaining.

With Smith scoring seven consecutive points, Missouri then ran off 15 straight points.

Kennedy finished with 23 points, 18 in the first half, and no other Missouri scorer had more than eight. Hercle bivy led Iowa State, 1-2 in the conference, with 19 but hit only five in the final half. Art Johnson added 13 for the Cyclones, and Jim Murphy and Mike Benjamin had 10 each.

Led by Smith and Kennedy, Missouri hit 51.4 per cent from the field on 36 of 70, compared to 38.5 for Iowa State.

The game was the first for the Cyclones under new co-coaches Gus Guydon and Jack Sutter. They took over following the resignation Wednesday of Coach Ken Trickey.

Coaches protest NCAA failure on staff limits

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—The Board of Trustees of the American Football Coaches Association strongly protested Saturday the failure of the NCAA to extend the deadline for limits on football coaching staffs.

Eddie Robinson of Grambling College, newly-elected president of the coaches, issued a statement through the Association's Durham office. It said:

"Refusal of the National Collegiate Athletic Association at its January convention in St. Louis to allow more time to reduce football coaching staffs to prescribed limits is strongly condemned by the Board of Trustees of the American Football Coaches Association.

"The NCAA convention membership voted that limiting the staff of fulltime assistants to eight becomes effective as of August 1, 1976. Proposals that institutions be given three years and later two and one years to put the rule into effect were all defeated. The rule as passed means that a large number of assistants will lose their football coaching jobs as of August 1, 1976."

Bulletin

HIGHLAND, Kan. — Despite a vicious last minute onslaught, State Fair Community College Saturday night edged out the Highland Kansas Junior College basketball team by a final score of89-87.

The Roadrunners developed a comfortable lead early in the game, only to see it taken away in the last seconds of play.

Gorman into finals

CATONSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Tom Gorman powered his way into the final of the $50,000 Baltimore International Indoor Tennis Tournament Saturday with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Eddie Dibbs.

The Seattle resident broke Dibbs' serve twice in each set in the 55-minute match played at the University of Maryland's Baltimore County campus. Gorman plays the winner of Saturday night's match between Ilie Nastase and Harold Solomon in Sunday's 2 p.m. final.

Gorman started slowly in the first set. Dibbs, of Miami Beach, Fla., broke his serve in the first game. Gorman then broke back to make it 2-2, then broke again to win the set at 64. He broke on top early in the second set, breaking Dibbs at 20 and again at 5-1.

Otterville wins over Calhoun

CALHOUN — In non-conference basketball action here Friday night, Otterville ran its season's record to 10-5 with a 69-46 win over the Calhoun Eagles.

Robbie Young poured in 21 points to lead the Otterville attack, which sputtered in the first period. Otterville trailed 14-13 as the second quarter opened, but managed a 28-22 lead at the half.

Otterville put the game away with a 22-10 scoring edge in the third period.

Otterville also won the junior varsity game, 38-35. Mitch Gant and Robert Milazzo scored 16 and 13 respectively for the winners.

Scoring

Connors rated tops in tourney

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Top seeded Jimmy Connors leads a who's who in tennis into the $115,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Tournament, starting here Monday.

Fifty-four of the world's best players will compete in the week-long tournament for the $20,000 first prize. This is the only stop on the World Championship Tennis tour where all the top players are in the same field. They split into groups for the other 26 events on the annual tour.

champion Marty Riessen.

Connors, who gets a first round bye, was seeded first ahead of Borg, the young Swede who has earned almost half a million dollars in the last two years. Borg reached the WCT championship final where he lost to Ashe. He'll face Ismail El Shafei of the United Arab Republic in the opening round.

Ashe, a winner of 35 of 40 tournaments enroute to the 1975 WCT title, opens with Fred Stolle of Australia. Last summer, Ashe upset a heavily-favored Connors at Wimbledon, and since they're in opposite brackets, could meet in the final here Sunday.

Indiana comes from behind

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Forward Tom Abernathy and Scott May fired a secondhalf comeback which carried No. 1 Indiana to a 85-76 victory over Minnesota Saturday in a regionally televised Big Ten basketball game.

Ray Williams, a 6-foot-3 forward, had put on an incredible shooting display in the first half, scoring 22 points in leading Minnesota to a 45-40 lead at intermission. He led all scorers with 34.

The Hoosiers, in notching their 46th consecutive regular season victory, hit their first eight shots of the second half and took their first lead at 48-47. The go-ahead basket came on a fast-break layup by Bob Wilkerson after May had stolen the ball and threw a long pass.

Three baskets by Abernathy and another by May put the Hoosiers on top, 56-49, and completed the string of eight straight field goals without a miss.

The Hoosiers went ahead 67-57 on a three-point play by 6-11 center Kent Benson. The closest the Gophers could come after that was seven points.

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. advanced Saturday to the final of the $75,000 Washington women's professional tennis tournament by defeating Su Barker of Great Britain 6-4, 6-4.

The final will be played Sunday at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md.

Former pro to coach at MU

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Don Lawrence, former Notre Dame and Washington Redskin tackle who once was head coach at Virginia, has been hired as an assistant football coach at Missouri.

"We're extremely pleased to get a coach with the background he possesses," said Coach Al Onofrio.

For the past two years, Lawrence has been defensive coordinator at Texas Christian. He has 10 years of experience as an assistant there and at Notre Dame, Kansas State and Cincinnati.

He replaces Tony Kopay, offensive line coach who moved to Oregon State last month.

Irish upset UCLA

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Determined Notre Dame, led by Adrian Dantley's 30 points and a first-half surge sparked by reserve Duck Williams, upset sixth-ranked UCLA 95-85 Saturday.

The 15th-ranked Irish reeled off 11 straight points midway through the first half of the nationally televised basketball game, then withstood a second-half Bruins rally led by Richard Washington.

Notre Dame, now 11-3, avenged an earlier loss to UCLA and handed the defending national champion Bruins their third loss in 17 games this season—all on the road.

Dantley, a muscular 6-foot-5 All-American forward, was held to 12 points in the first half, but he broke loose shortly after intermission after UCLA battled from a nine-point deficit to tie the game with 10 minutes remaining.

The deadly shooting of the 6-10 Washington kept UCLA close until another surge led by Dantley and Williams gave the Irish their biggest lead, 91-77, with less than two minutes to go.

Nixon faces questioning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee will question former President Richard M. Nixon about U.S. operations against Chile, but it has decided not to ask entertainer Frank Sinatra about a woman associated with John F. Kennedy and organized crime figures.

The committee voted Friday to submit a series of written questions to the former president about U.S. efforts to overthrow Chilean President Salvador Allende and about the so-called Houston plan for domestic intelligence gathering, chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said.

But Church said the committee saw no reason to question Sinatra about a possible link between President John F. Kennedy and the Mafia in a CIA plot to kill Cuba's Fidel Castro.

Sinatra had been named as the "mutual friend" who introduced Kennedy to Judith Campbell Exner, a California woman who also knew two underworld figures involved in a CIA plot to kill Castro.

Committee members questioned Mrs. Exner last summer and decided she had not been used to relay information between Kennedy and the two underworld figures, Sam Giancana and John Rosselli.

Church said the decision to submit written questins to Nixon was "the best available" (solution) given the length of time remaining for the panel to complete its investigaion. The committee is scheduled to end its business on Feb. 29.

Nixon earlier refused to testify before the entire committee, saying he would talk in secret to the panel's ranking members. The committee rejected that proposal.

Meanwhile, the House Intelligence Committee approved its final report after cutting out secrets President Ford's advisors said might endanger agents and embarrass the nation diplomatically.

Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said the committee also deleted "unduly critical" comments about Ford administration officials, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

In another development, a former television reporter's claim that Walter Cronkite, John Chancellor and other prominent television figures are named in a list of journalists who have co-operated with the CIA was widely denied.

Both Chancellor, anchorman for the "NBC Nightly News," and Cronkite, anchorman and managing editor of the "CBS Evening News," flatly denied any relationship with the CIA.

The claim they were on the list was made by Sam A. Jaffe, a former correspondent for CBS and ABC news.

Jaffe said in television interviews Friday that he had learned of the list from the House Intelligence Committee as well as from former ABC correspondent Bill Gill.

Both Gill and A. Searle Field, chief counsel for the House panel, denied Jaffe's claim. Jaffe also had said that former Nixon speechwriter Patrick Buchanan had confirmed the existence of the list, but Buchanan denied it.

Kennett mechanic holds out

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — At a salary of $750 monthly, the mechanic for the Kennett Street Department has become the highest paid city employe in this Bootheel community of 10,000.

The city council voted unanimously this week to hire a mechanic at that salary.

The position has been vacant since last September when Dennis Wallace resigned the $540 a month job, citing low pay. The council later voted to hire a man at a $650 salary, but he declined after being offered more money by his employer.

Councilman Arthur Bell said the city could save money by having a fulltime mechanic handle city-owned vehicles in the police, fire and street departments.

CENTRAL MISSOURI COOKS

How do you plan to put the bicentennial spirit into family meals this year? What dishes do you consider All-American? What foods will you prepare for Memorial Day, the Fourth of July, and Thanksgiving Day celebrations?

Also, what are your favorite and best canning recipes? Since this aged method of cookery is making a big comeback, we'd like to know about your favorites.

Please type or print neatly all your bicentennial, canning and everyday favorite recipes, along with your name, address and telephone number.

Special Supplement in the Feb. 22 Edition of The Democrat-Capital

PLEASE TYPE OR PRINT YOUR RECIPE IN THIS FORM:

BLENDER HOLLANDAISE SAUCE
Yield: 1 cup
Mrs. John Baker
1201 Spice Street
Sedalia, Missouri

½ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon prepared mustard

Heat butter in saucepan until bubbly but not browned. Put egg yolks, lemon juice, salt, white pepper and mustard in blender container; cover and run on low speed about 5 seconds. While continuing to run blender, add butter in slow, steady stream until blades are covered; turn to high speed and add remaining butter slowly. Serve immediately on cooked vegetables or fish.

SALES MANAGEMENT
A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY
We are a division of an NYSE listed corporation that is recognized as one of the most successful and rapidly growing in America.

Growth, continued expansion and new product development have created an opening for a Sales Representative in the Sedalia area. In this position, you will participate in an accelerated management training program that is designed to lead to sales management responsibility.

A college degree is helpful, but not essential. Your advancement will be based solely on your performance.

Excellent starting income, based on experience and qualifications plus an outstanding benefits program.

To arrange a personal and confidential interview, call Jim Holcomb in Columbia at 314-449-0051, Monday, Jan. 26 or Tuesday, Jan. 27, after 9 AM.

McGraw-Edison leads the way

Employment running ahead of firm's expectations

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The 365 persons now employed at the local McGraw-Edison Co. manufacturing plant, 305 North State Fair Boulevard, is about 100 more than had been originally projected, personnel director Jerry Jones said recently.

An addition 15 employes work in the company warehouse immediately north of the plant. This figure may increase to around 20 this year if business conditions prove favorable, it was reported.

Roland Springstroh, company vice president of the portable tool and appliance group, said the employe increase was created "because we are moving up our schedule in transferring our Warrensburg (Ill.) plant to Sedalia."

Jones said that between 75 to 100 more workers will be added by around June 1 as the transferral process is completed. By that time, he said, the total work force in the plant should approach 450 employes.

Manufacturing operations at the plant, Springstroh said, "are not yet up to our expectations" primarily because of a difficulty in maintaining motor-building machinery which, he said, "needs constant adjustment and fine tuning."

Presently, he explained, manufacturers' representatives and trained maintenance personnel from other McGraw-Edison plants are monitoring the equipment. However, Springstroh noted, it is often difficult to have an effective maintenance crew under such conditions.

The normal procedure when a new plant is located, Springstroh said, is to have local employes work with skilled maintenance men in order to eventually create a corps of trained local service men. Until an effective team of Sedalia servicemen can be trained, manufacturing operations will probably be somewhat slower, Springstroh stated.

The company announced Nov. 20, 1974, it would locate in the building vacated earlier that year by the Permaneer Corp. On July 30, 1975, it was announced that the firm would also transfer its Warrensburg, Ill., electric tool production operation to Sedalia. This move was triggered by action taken by the recently-formed Sedalia Area Development Corp. (SADC), a group of local financial leaders and businessmen.

The SADC secured financing for a $690,000 warehouse by arranging for a Farmer's Home Administration loan guarantee that provided 90 per cent of the loan on the 100,000-square foot project. The remaining 10 per cent down payment was provided by the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce's post-World War II civic development fund.

Permanent financing of the project was provided by the Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust Co., Missouri State Bank and Third National Bank. Original construction financing was provided by Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust and the Missouri State Bank.

In addition to opening the warehouse and beginning manufacturing operations in Sedalia last year, the company on Oct. 4 dedicated a 62,100-square foot portable appliance and tool group office building in Columbia. The structure contains executive, marketing, engineering, research, development, finance, accounting, data-processing, personnel, public relations and customer service offices. A test kitchen is also contained in the building.

The firm was founded in 1900 by Max McGraw and in 1926 it was incorporated as the McGraw Electric Co. It consolidated with many companies including, in 1957, Thomas A. Edison, Inc. At this time, the company's name was changed to McGraw-Edison Co.

The company's portable appliance and tool group, operating in Sedalia, manufactures and sells portable electric housewares, fans, heaters, power tools, lawn and garden tools, electric alarms, kitchen and decorator clocks and automatic household timers.

There are plants in six Missouri cities in addition to Sedalia. They are Moberly, Boonville, Kirksville, Macon, Jefferson City and Clarence. Other plants are located in Centerville, Iowa, and Laurinburg, N. C.

Nursing care is given a new approach here

The Brooking Park Geriatrics Center, Route TT, opened its doors on Jan. 5. Plans for the center were announced by Hank Monsees, president of the center, in May 1974 and the ground breaking was in October 1974. The building is designed for 120 beds but only half are ready.

Monsees sees the nursing center and its adjoining Brooking Park Village as a new industry in the Sedalia area. Twenty-six persons are employed at the center, Monsees said, and plans call for a total employment of 100. According to Monsees, each of the jobs at the center will help to generate seven more jobs in Sedalia.

"The bulk of the money will come from the federal government through Social Security and Medicare. That money is new to Sedalia. Our payroll becomes a net employable payroll so every job here means seven more jobs in the city," Monsees said. "This will help Sedalia substantially."

Monsees said the idea of the center was started by his father, Dick Monsees, and former U. S. Rep. Tom Curtis, R-Clayton. "They were old friends and Tom developed the St. Louis Geriatric Center," he said. Monsees said the two men are the financial backers of the project.

The center is a one-story contemporary Spanish-design building and has 36,000 square feet of space. Monsees said the building is fire resistant.

The south section of the building was completed first with its 60 beds and interior work on the north wing, with another 60 beds, is progressing. Monsees said the building is designed to eventually add two more wings of 60 beds each.

The concept of the center is not just a place for older persons to live but a rehabilitation and recovery center.

J. H. Mills, the center's administrator, said the center offers three levels of care: ambulatory, for people requiring very little care; semi-ambulatory, for persons needing some nursing assistance in their lives; and complete nursing care.

Mills was named administrator in September 1975. He is the former administrator of Pike Memorial Hospital, Louisiana, Mo.; had the same post at the Scotland Memorial Hospital and Nursing Home, Memphis, Mo., and was the assistant administrator and business manager of the Madison Memorial Hospital, Fredricktown.

Monsees said one problem faced by the center has been the belief that it costs $900 a month. "That's 30 per cent too high," he said. We are within $1 a day of the normal charges of the homes in town. And for the $30 difference there is a lot here."

Besides the professional staff at the center, including a dietician, there is a mini-bus for scheduled trips into Sedalia. Barber and beauty shop services will be offered.

Physical and occupational residents. And the center's chapel is open to all religions.

Operating in conjunction with the center is Brooking Park Village, located south of the center. This is a residential complex where home buyers will live and have the security of owning property. Under the plan for the village the owners of the units will be able to use the facilities of the center also. Monsees plans to have 188 units built.

"We have the four unit model built and we started construction on the second four unit building," Monsees said.

The price of the homes range from $14,900 for a one bedroom house to $24,900 for a two bedroom home.

Pride

Co-founders of the Brooking Park Geriatric Center, Dick Monsees, left, and former Rep. Tom Curtis, R-Clayton, beam with pride standing in front of the center's main entrance. Curtis said there is a great need for the center's concept of "being halfway between a nursing home and a hospital ... Our geriatric center is not necessarily the last stop," he said.

Two projects highlight year for manufacturer

Two major projects during the past year were cited recently by Byrl Stout, works manager at the local Pittsburgh-Corning Corp. plant, 16th and Missouri Pacific Spur, as key improvements made during the past year.

By summer, Stout said, the firm had converted its glass-melting manufacturing process from a natural gas-powered process to electrically-powered operation. In the past, particularly during the fuel shortages of recent winters, the firm had periodically experienced fuel reductions because of its status as an "interruptible" customer by the Missouri Public Service Co. Such status meant that the plant's fuel supplies could be reduced if it was determined that there was an overall shortage of fuel for other purposes.

The uncertain natural gas supply situation, joined by a temporary decline in manufacturing caused by a reduced demand for glass products by the construction industry, caused production at the local plant to fall below full capacity in the early part of 1974. By mid-year, however, the firm re-attained full production, which it has maintained since that time.

The other major improvement, which was started late last year and will be completed fairly soon, is an expansion to the firm's warehouse unit and the construction of additional truck-loading dock facilities. This project, Stout said, will enable the firm to ship out more goods in less time.

Despite dwindling domestic sales during the past year, the company's overall export sales in 1975 were the largest ever, Stout said. One factor leading to this increased export sales record is the sales orders of glass insulation by foreign firms involved in transporting supplies of liquified natural gas in tanks. Last fall, Stout noted, the local plant shipped 32 loads of glass insulation material to a company in Sumatra, a country near Indonesia.

Stout's outlook for the coming year is optimistic.

"I think we can realistically expect increased domestic sales to go along with our expected increase in export sales," he said. "Overall, I'm looking forward to a very good year."

Stout assumed his managerial position in January, 1975, having been transferred from offices in Pittsburgh, Pa. He previously managed the corporation's manufacturing plant at Port Allegany, Pa.

Merger seen as a big help

Sedalia's First State Savings and Loan Association merged with Butler Building and Loan Association effective Sept. 2, 1975, a move that First State's Don Braden, vice president of operations, said has benefited the association.

"The merger increased the size of our total business," he said. "We absorbed $4 million in assets."

Braden said the size of the other association prevented it from offering customers many of the services of a larger association.

"We approached them and showed them what services we could offer them and the community," he said.

Braden said the merger, now giving the Sedalia based association nine offices, including the main office at Third and Kentucky, "permits us to do business in a wider geographic area."

In 1975, Braden said the association absorbed a total of $14 million in assets.

During 1975 a new branch office was opened at 16th and Limit. Braden said this office offers customers regular services plus 24-hour money tender and teller services.

The association is also building a new branch office in Tipton, Braden said. It is expected to be completed in the spring.

Wigs and wallpaper

"We cover the walls or their heads," according to Kenneth Keele, who owns the BJ Design Shop, 506 South Ohio, along with his wife Bethel, who operates the business. The combination store was opened in May and offers wigs and accessories as well as all types of wallpaper. The store features the largest selection of vinyl wallpaper catalogs in Sedalia, the owners said.

Federal grant helps Sedalia obtain park land

One of the first things Sedalia's new Parks and Recreation Department superintendent did when he took office Dec. 1 last year was to help secure $20,000 worth of federal matching money to help buy land for a new city park.

Roscoe Righter had been Recreation Director for about 2½ years when he assumed the additional responsibilities of former Parks Director Jack Couts, who resigned to take a job in another city. At 26, Righter is working on his Master's thesis in order to complete requirements for a degree in recreation and park administration from the University of Missouri, Columbia.

Righter said his job is challenging but added that he is enthusiastic and serious about his new responsibilities. "It's quite a bit more work than before," he said. "It's new and I'm still learning." Along with youth, Righter seems to be bringing in fresh ideas, many of which are evident in his plans for the new park.

The park land, triangular in shape, is about 17½ acres in size and is bounded by 24th Street, Clinton Road and Grand. The park department already owned 4.7 acres of the property, which it bought from the Water Department. The additional 12.7 acres were bought in late November by the Parks and Recreation Department for a total cost of $40,000, with $20,000 coming from the city and another $20,000 in federal funds allocated by the state Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Although federal approval of the matching grant is still needed, Righter said he expects to receive this approval within the current fiscal year, which runs through the end of May.

Righter's plans for the new park are impressive, but he is realistic about his department's budget. The Parks and Recreation Department's revenues were cut by $25,000 last year, resulting in a total budget of $200,000 for fiscal 1975-76, compared to a $225,000 budget for the previous fiscal year, he said.

Hence, Righter's current plans for the park are limited to clearing the land and possibly buying several picnic tables. His more long-range ideas, however, call for the construction of two softball fields to provide for a decent tournament area," tennis courts (Righter said Sedalia needs at least twice as many tennis courts, based on its population), more picnic areas and one of the "newest and most modern playgrounds."

The playground would be composed entirely of wooden equipment, he said, an innovation which would be "unique" in Sedalia. He said a local group was interested in donating money to purchase the equipment, in addition to helping set it up.

The idea of using equipment made entirely of wood originated in Europe, Righter said. He said the equipment is so "natural" it "looks like it grew up out of the ground itself" and thus is not an eyesore, like many pieces of metal equipment. And although the initial cost is high, Righter said the wooden equipment is an economical investment since it is built to last and is completely fire-proof.

He said some companies sell wooden forts or ships while others sell more abstract pieces that let children use their imaginations.

Righter said he hoped to set up the facilities at the park some time during the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Righter said he will continue to advocate buying new park land for the city. He said Sedalia should have an additional 100 acres of park land based on its current population.

One of the major changes Righter wants to see in his department is a new public image. "Some people are behind us," he said, "but others would just as soon not have us here."

Righter said the best way to counteract this negative attitude is for people to use his department's facilities and programs in order to better understand what his Parks and Recreation Department is all about. "We are a necessary part of the city," he said, "as much so as the fire and police department. We're not just a luxury."

It took a year, but dream became reality

An industrial park would be a "tremendous attraction" for the city, Economic Development Director John Hequembourg said in January last year.

The acquisition of the park and its first occupant, The Centralia Container Corp., is "just another in a stream of successes that have come to Sedalia in recent months..." Gov. Christopher Bond said in January this year.

These quotes, coming exactly one year apart, at face value reflect a seemingly logical, if somewhat romanticized, sequence of events — a new man on the job describes one of his primary aims and, exactly 365 days later, the governor comes to town to announce that the goal has been realized.

Hequembourg bridged the gap between these two statements in a string of events involving hard work, doubt and, later, brief discouragement before the Hollywood ending came about.

The city Economic Development Board first discussed tentative plans for an industrial park in March. Hequembourg said at that time he knew of six possible sites for such a facility, ranging in size from 50 to 200 acres. In early April, it was determined the proposed park could possibly be funded by issuing $400,000 in general obligation bonds, a move that would have to be approved by a two-thirds majority of voters in a special election.

The establishment of a not-for-profit corporation to finance the construction of a $400,000 "shell" building of between 50,000 and 75,000-square feet in the park was first suggested at this time by Hequembourg. Such a building, he said, would help to attract industry. After considering six possible locations, the council in June voted to hold a $380,000 general obligation bond issue election Aug. 5 to purchase and develop a 100-acre tract owned by John Van Dyne, 1600 North Grand. The tract is located at the northwest corner of North Grand and Highway 65.

The first obstacle in the road to securing the park came in July, when the city learned the election would have to be postponed because the State Division of Commerce and Industrial Development needed more time to investigate the proposal. Nearly 3½ months later, Attorney General John Danforth's office ruled the election could not be held because the city had no list of potential park occupants when the application for approval of the election was submitted.

The city then decided to apply to the federal Farmers Home Administration (FHA) and the Ozarks Regional Commission for a combined $125,000 in grants. The council also voted to join with the Sedalia Area Development Corp. (SADC) to develop the park. It was agreed that the corporation would be responsible for expenditures such as initial land purchases while the city would pay for such improvements as access roads, water and sewer lines.

The corporation, an outgrowth of Hequembourg's earlier suggestion in March, consists of local business and financial leaders. They are William Mills, president of the Missouri State Bank; E. G. Adams, president of Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Turst; H. W. Harris, president of the Third National Bank; Robert Hardwick, chairman of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce economic development committee; Don Braden, vice president of First State Savings Association; City Councilman David Curry; and Hequembourg.

Financial institutions participating in the funding project for the industrial park included Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust, the Missouri State Bank, First State Savings Association, Third National Bank, and the Bank of Smithton. The initial total cost of the park, including purchase of the land, was about $370,000.

The park will be supervised by a board of control, consisting of three SADC representatives and three city representatives. Hequembourg said recently he is "very encouraged" by the prospects of receiving the $125,000 in federal funds from the FHA and the Ozarks Regional Commission. "We wouldn't have gone as far as we did if we didn't feel pretty confident that the agencies will come through," he said.

Regarding the coming year, Hequembourg added, "I'll be very disappointed if 1976 rolls past and we don't get some additional companies out there."

Warehouse completed during year

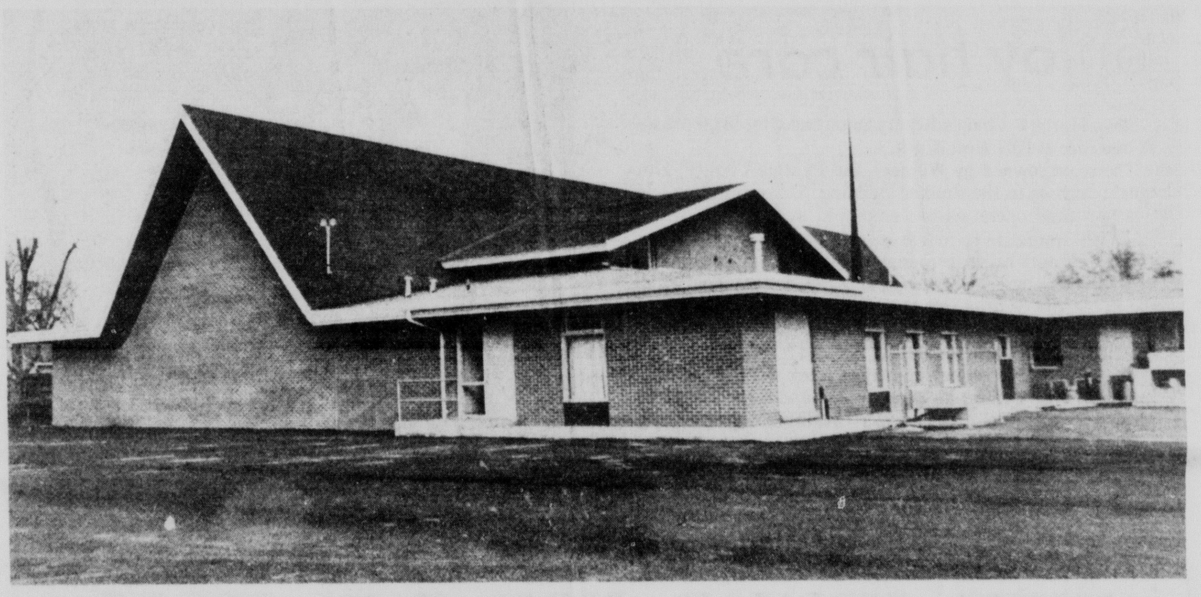

A nearly-completed warehouse will permit the expansion of goods and merchandise offered for sale by the G and M Sales Co., South Highway 65, store co-owner Mrs. Mona Pearl reports.

The store handles a wide variety of merchandise such as building materials, furniture salvage items and groceries. The building materials and furniture are freight-damaged items which are sold at reduced prices, Mrs. Pearl said.

Most of the goods are picked up in Kansas City and taken to Sedalia for sale. The food items, she explained, are bought from warehouses and are sold at wholesale prices.

The freight-damaged merchandise, she said, is still in good condition but is not generally sold by regular retail dealers.

The business has been in operation for about five years.

Church doubles size

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, 1201 West Broadway, doubled the size of its sanctuary last year and renovated the original portions of the building. Bishop Ronald Shuler said the $210,000 project, designed by Sammons and Buller Architects and built by Dean Construction Co., added 7,000 square feet to the original 6,000-square-foot structure. New classrooms, a cultural hall with a stage and gymnasium, a new parking lot, new kitchen facilities and complete air conditioning throughout the building were included in the project. Carpeting was also placed throughout the building and the older portions were completely renovated.

Dr. Don A. Cable and his dental assistant, Mrs. Gail Walter, check the teeth of Jimmie W. Vancil, 17 Clarinda Drive, at Dr. Cable's new office at 701 ½ South Ohio. Dr. Cable began his practice here July 7 on the second floor of the newly-renovated building at Seventh and Ohio.

Dentist's new office makes patients welcome

The new scent of recent renovation, the warmth of orange carpet and rich walnut paneling greet patients of Dr. Don A. Cable as they ascend steps to his new second-floor office at 701½ South Ohio.

The atmosphere is quiet and subdued, yet warm, totally unlike the unpleasant feeling that is supposed to accompany a visit to the denist.

And that's the way the remodeling of the 100-year-old building at Seventh and Ohio was planned by Dr. Cable as he prepared for the practice of dentistry here. Renovation was begun in March and Cable began his practice July 7.

Dr. Cable said Jim Brown, 1617 South Carr, did the remodeling of the inside of the building, which Cable rents from Attorneys James B. Rice Jr. and Kenneth M. Romines who have their law offices on the ground floor.

Cable's office includes two operatories, a business office, reception room, laboratory, dark room and X-ray room. He also has room for two more operatories which haven't been completed; all but one of the operatories have natural light from the building's original north windows. He said that window panes which were not broken were retained.

All ceilings were dropped from 16 to 8-feet except the reception room ceiling, which was lowered only two feet to accommodate the 12-foot windows.

Not many doctors could boast of a private office like Cable's. It's small, but features a huge bay window which overlooks downtown Sedalia.

Cable's office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and every other Saturday morning, 8 a.m. to noon. Cable said his hours are flexible, though, and "we seldom get out of here at 5 p.m. We work until we take care of everybody," he said. He employes two dental assistants who double as receptionists, Mrs. Gail Walter, who has been with him since opening, and Miss Elaine Ensminger, who joined them in December.

Dr. Cable, who grew up on a farm near St. Catharine, Mo., is a graduate of Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville, where he received a B.S. degree in general science. After receiving his D.D.S. degree from the University of Missouri-Kansas City in May of 1973, he was a captain in the U.S. Air Force at Offut Air Force Base, south of Omaha, Neb., for two years. He worked as a dentist at Ehrling Berquist Regional Hospital there.

Seeking some excitement in Air Force life, Cable said he learned to fly and has his private and commercial licenses and instrument rating. He said he's flown "little" since moving here, mostly because neither time nor a plane have been available. But he hopes to find time to fly during monthly dental clinic stints at Whiteman Air Force Base where he's in the Air Force Reserves.

Both Cable and his wife, Judy, who were married in 1968 and now live at 2616 Plaza, were impressed with Sedalia when they were looking for a Missouri town to settle in. They like the small-town atmosphere while having, at the same time, the convenience of a major metroplitan area, Kansas City, not far away. Mrs. Cable is a learning disabilities teacher at Hubbard School and they have two children, Cami, 5, and Chad, 2.

Relocation move helps

Business has "improved" since Uncle Jim's has moved from 214 East Second to Main and Ohio, according to the store's owner, Jim Grieshaber.

Grieshaber said that although the square footage of the new store is "slightly less" than that of the old, business is up because of the improved location. A series of four burglaries during 1974-75 precipitated the move, he said.

Three employes, besides his wife, Louise, operate the store. Men's, women's and children's clothing, in addition to textiles, are stocked. Grieshaber said that 90 per cent of the items come from Spiegel, Chicago, in the form of discontinued items and customer returns, which enables him to sell them for "50 per cent of the catalog price."

Uncle Jim's has been in business since August of 1973. Grieshaber also has another Uncle Jim's in Warrensburg which opened in April of 1975.

Variety draws more customers

A variety in the menu means a variety of customers. That's the philosophy held by Richard J. Braeckel Jr., manager of Ken's Pizza Parlor, 1613 South Limit.

"A lot of people just don't like pizza," Braeckel said. "If a family comes in and the husband doesn't want pizza, we've got something for him."

Since Ken's opened on July 31, Braeckel said that his customers have been of all ages. Ken's is owned by a pizza parlor chain based in Tulsa, Okla. The chain presently has more than 125 restaurants. Most of them are located throughout the midwest but they have spread as far east as Georgia.

Although specializing in pizza, the restaurant features sandwiches, spaghetti and baked rigatoni.

The secret to Ken's pizza, according to Braeckel, is in the sauce. He said that the sauce recipe is copyrighted. "The sauce is the most important ingredient in our pizza," he said, and the recipe is kept a secret.

Also different about Ken's pizza is the crust. A special type flour which has a yellow color is used by the restaurant.

Braeckel said that this flour makes the crust more tender than a normal white flour would. It also helps make a flatter crust.

Most important, however, the yellowish crust makes the pizza more pleasing to look at, according to Braeckel.

"If something is good to look at, people are going to enjoy it a lot more," he said.

Association helps local, area firms

The Sedalia and West-Central Missouri chapter of the Missouri Restaurant Association was formed last February to better educate persons handling food regarding state sanitation regulations, association president Mrs. Millie Johnson, 1218 South Park, explained.

The group also sponsors various seminars to further acquaint food service owners and employes with information on relevant state and federal legislation and tax and wage laws.

Mrs. Johnson, who was instrumental in organizing the area association, said she helped establish it because she felt such an organization would benefit restaurant owners in central Missouri.

"The closest organization before ours was formed was located in Columbia," she explained. "I just thought it would be better to have a group closer to Sedalia for the sake of convenience."

The group, which has 12 charter members, now has a membership of around 50, including restaurant representatives from Sedalia, Higginsville, Marshall, Concordia, Knob Noster, Otterville, Warsaw, Lincoln, Cole Camp, Clinton, Windsor and other communities.

Men, women can enjoy hair care

Since March 6, Cindy's Beauty Salon has offered all phases of hair care at 1703 West Ninth.

The salon, owned by Wilmont and Cynthia Coulter, 1701 West Ninth, is in the Coulter Building. Three full-time and one part-time operators are employed at the salon, which could accommodate up to five operators.

In addition to hair care, assistance with eye lashes is given and ear piercing is done. According to Coulter, they are in the process of putting in a skin treatment room in order to give facials. He also said he plans to have off-street parking available for 24 cars in the future.

The shop, which is open six days a week, features wall-to-wall carpeting, central air-conditioning and a marble entry. Although most of the shop's business is done by appointment, walk-ins are welcome, Coulter said.

Coulter, who said his salon strives to offer more than most other shops, said business is "good — increasing all the time."

Farm property is specialty of firm

A new realty company specializing in farm properties recently opened near Smithton. Everette Wood, Roue 2, Sedalia, started the Midwestern Realty and Farm Management Service Nov. 1, 1975. He operates his business out of an office in his home.

Wood, who moved to this area about four years ago, had formerly been a part-owner of a farm operation before receiving his broker's license. He has his degree in agriculture from the University of Missouri-Columbia and has taught courses in agri-business for the past two years at State Fair Community College.

Wood said an important part of his business is selling farms for investment purposes. "Farmland is a good inflation hedge," he said. "Traditionally it's been better than the stock market." The price of land in the past 20 years, he said, has been going up as the value of money has been going down.

"Land last year increased about 10 to 15 per cent in value," he said.

Besides selling farms outright, Wood said he provides a "complete farm management service." An investor utilizing this service would theoretically never have to see the farmland he operates. "I would handle all the technical operation of the farm," he said, "all the management aspects of it."

The service includes hiring farmers to work the investor's property, selecting fertilizers and the types of crops to be planted, buying and selling livestock, and all the other routine items that would normally be handled by the owner himself. Wood's service also supplies the farm investors, some who live as far away as New York, with computerized data on the farm's financial progress.

Wood, who sells mostly to customers in the Sedalia area, sees 1976 as a good year for the farm realty business. "When spring comes along, we'll see a real good market in this farm property," he said. "We have some good farm listings available."

Mexican dishes a big success here

Being the only restaurant in Sedalia specializing in Mexican food has turned an unlucky location into a lucky one, according to Mrs. Gerry Busby, manager of Taco Grande, 632 East Broadway.

Taco Grande opened for business March 4, 1975 at Broadway and Thompson Ave. Numerous other businesses, including restaurants, have failed in the past at the location in the same building.

Mrs. Busby said that she feels it is a "beautiful location." She said that Sedalia's Taco Grande is "one of the best stores in the chain."

The chain has its home offices in Lawrence, Kan. There are 26 restaurants, mainly in Kansas. Only Sedalia and Warrensburg have Taco Grandes in Missouri.

Mrs. Busby said that the restaurant has a very diversified clientele.

"Even little old ladies come in and order the extra hot sauce on their food," she said. She also said that Smith-Cotton High School students have helped the business. The restaurant is about two blocks from the school.

Hot and spicy

Things got better

A customer at the Sedalia Typewriter and Adding Machine Co., 200 West Fourth, examines a possible purchase recently. This display rack is one of the outstanding features of the company's new store building, which was occupied last year.

Move comes after 27 years

The Sedalia Typewriter and Adding Machine Co., founded 27 years ago, relocated in an office building at 200 West Fourth last February.

Until that time, it was located at 506 South Ohio, store owner and manager Charles Hofheins noted. The new location, he added, doubles the amount of space formerly available.

The move was made, it was explained, because the new site offered a more advantageous location and building to accommodate the company's steadily-growing business. The store sells office furniture such as desks, chairs, filing cabinets and index files, in addition to offering mimeograph and duplicating machines and supplies, adding machines and typewriters.

The additional space in the new location and subsequent larger floor area did not prompt store officials to add additional lines of merchandise but, rather, "permitted us to do a lot more with the merchandise lines we already had," Hofheins said.

The company has five full-time employes and one part-time employe. The number of employes was not increased after the relocation, it was stated.

The company's new location on West Fourth was formerly occupied by the Hurlbut Office Products Co.

Sedalia law firm relocates

The law firm of Lamm, Barnett, Crawford, Barnes and Fritz moved to its fourth location last year since the firm was originally founded in 1871 by Judge Henry Lamm and Peter Sangree.

The firm moved from its old location at 118 West Fifth to a renovated building at 202 West Fourth, Donald Barnes, one of the partners in the firm, said. Barnes said he and his partners wanted a first-floor office. Their old offices were located above the Industrial Loan and Investment Co. on the second floor, he said.

The firm is composed of Barnes, Lawrence Barnett, Earl T. Crawford, and Robert Fritz. Donald Lamm Sr. died in April, 1974, Barnes said.

The firm was located for about five years at the West Fifth address and prior to that the law offices were situated for about 80 years at the present location of Reed and Sons Jewelers, 309 South Ohio, Barnes said.

Barnes said he and his partners had the building at the new address "completely gutted," leaving only the outside walls and roof standing. They furnished the building with much of the furniture from their old location, he said, which gives it a somewhat "old-time" motife.

Barnes said the building also has some articles which some might term "museum pieces." The firm has a complete collection, for instance, of the Missouri Statutes from the beginning of Missouri's statehood in 1821 and earlier, from the territorial legislature. They also have a bound volume of Judge Henry Lamm's decisions.

Judge Lamm, one of the founders of the firm, was appointed to a 10-year term on the Missouri Supreme Court in 1904. Barnes said Lamm was "one of the most literary" judges in the court's history and his decisions are a "delight" to read.

Barnett joined the firm in 1934, while Barnes joined in 1961. Crawford joined the next year and Fritz entered into the partnership in 1971.

New well meant for emergency

A new emergency water well was installed recently by the Sedalia Water Department at the corner of Grand and Clinton Road on about 1⅛ acres of department property, Manager Herb Taylor said.

Drilling for the well, which is 1,600 feet deep, was finished on Feb. 3, 1975, and on Nov. 26 the completed well was tested for the first time. Total cost of constructing the well was $16,990, Taylor said.

The well is equipped with an automatic chlorinating system, Taylor said. It can be controlled by radio from the main water plant at Flat Creek, Taylor added. The amount of water being pumped can also be determined from the Flat Creek plant, he said.

Taylor said the well has only been used once so far, on Nov. 26, when the equipment was first tested. He expects the well to be used during high demand periods this summer. The well could be operated 24 hours a day, he said, and supply the entire city in the event that the main water supply should fail to be available.

Taylor said the Water Department eventually plans to build a water tower at the well site. Construction has been delayed, however, because of work being done at the main plant. He said he hoped to begin construction of the tower in 1978.

Merchandising concept is unique

Mini-service

Service is held to a minimum at Food 4-Less, 1020 Thompson Blvd., in an attempt to give customers a break on their food bill. The customer bags, marks prices and carries his groceries to the car.

(Democrat-Capital Photo)

You mark it. You bag it. We reduce overhead. You save.

This, in a nutshell, is the thinking that sparked the change of Thriftway to Food-4-Less, 1020 Thompson Blvd., last February.

Besides a shopping cart, standard equipment at the store is a soft-lead pencil. The customer marks the price on many of the items, checks out, bags his own groceries and takes them to the car himself.

"It amazes me the system runs as efficiently as it does," says Dan Bray, store manager.

The self-service approach at large grocery stores is growing in the United States. This is the first such store in Sedalia.

Bray said the store has had little trouble with people deliberately marking lower prices. "The biggest problem is people not marking the price at all, but it's not that bad a problem."

At first, Bray said, some women were aggravated having to sack their own groceries. "But, basically," he said, "most don't mind now. They realize we are passing on labor costs to their savings."

The store does use employes to sack groceries during times on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

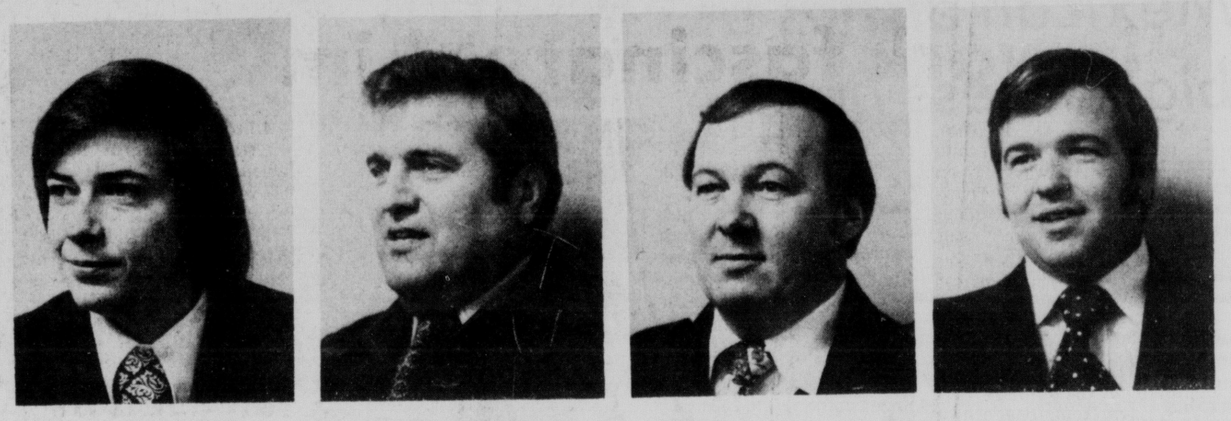

Since the switch, the store has reduced its work force from around 15 or 16 to 11, Bray said.

Bray said he wouldn't be surprised if more stores adopted the self-service approach.

"With labor costs going up, it's hard to give the consumer a good buy.... I don't think an entire chain would adopt this in each store — just certain areas."

Bray said he didn't have any figures, but the store has been doing more business since the change.

The store, and the adjacent G-Disco store, are owned by Charles Boyd of Olathe, Kan.

New positions

Four company appointments and promotions were announced recently by officials of the Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., 2503 West Broadway. The men involved are, left to right, Phil Nelson, Jack Shelledy, Bob Bagley and Bill Potter. Nelson, 2791 Oak Ridge Circle in Maplewood, is now distributor-coordinator and supervises distributor orders and manufacturing scheduling. Shelledy, Southwood Acres, is a new dealer-salesman and Bagley, of Ralston, Neb., was named manager of the firm's north-central sales district. Potter, of Otterville, was promoted to manager of the company's southwest sales district.

Piano repair going strong

Mike Rooks says Sedalia has always been a musical town and one of the more popular instruments here is the piano, which Rooks repairs and rebuilds.

Rooks is the owner of Ye Olde Piano Shoppe, State Fair Shopping Center, and he and employe Leonard Mayfield are currently busy rebuilding seven of the instruments, ranging from a player piano to an 1875 square.

The business was located, until early December, at 109 South Kentucky, where it had been for 18 months, according to Rooks.

"We moved here because we now sell new pianos and we wanted to get a little more exposure," Rooks said.

A licensed piano tuner with the Piano Technicians Guild, Rooks started the business "several years ago in my home, like most tuners, and it just grew until now I have pianos to sell."

Rooks stocks a line of Everett pianos, a company owned by the Japanese Yamaha Corp., he said. The pianos are made in America. "They are a small company, but they are slightly above the average in market values. They (the company) bill themselves as the lowest priced professional quality piano."

Rooks said there are three types of piano customers — those who "have the money or the inclination to buy a new piano," the person who is buying a used upright to "test the child out on" or the person who has a family heirloom piano or has an antique piano and wants it rebuilt.

Almost new again

Mike Rooks, owner of the Ye Olde Piano Shoppe, is busy "dressing down" the hammers of an upright piano. Rooks used a motorized hand tool for the job, but said on the more expensive grand piano the quality demands complete manual work on such projects. Rooks said although there are seven pianos in his repair shop he and his employe only work on about three at time. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

The last is Rook's specialty. "I don't do as much tuning as some of the others (local piano tuners). I do a lot of major rebuilding," he said.

Rooks estimates that by the end of this year he will have rebuilt from 20 to 30 pianos. Rebuilding a piano includes completely refinishing the wood, putting in new strings, adding new pins and "rebuilding the action," which he said includes replacing the hammers and adjusting the pedals.

The piano service also offers moving, Rooks said, and used pianos.

Rooks said every piano teacher he knows in Sedalia tells him they have long waiting lists of students, so it appears there will be plenty of business for Rooks and his fellow piano tuners and repairmen.

We Hope You Have A Very Prosperous "1976"

His work fascinates him

"Ever since I was 15-years-old I've wanted to be an auto dealer. I've always been fascinated with cars." That's how David J. Malmo, president of Malmo Motors Inc., 2901 South Limit, described his youthful plans for his future.

The dealership, formerly Routszong-Malmo Motors, was taken over by Malmo effective Jan. 1. Malmo said he had an option to buy the business since he and David Routszong formed the partnership 7½ years ago.

Malmo was born in Springfield, Mo., but his family moved to the east coast when he was small and from the time he was 12 to 21-years-old he lived in Montreal, Canada.

"In school I took all the courses I thought could help me to get what I wanted," Malmo said.

At Montreal's McGill University Malmo majored in business and was graduated in 1954 with a Bachelor of Commerce degree, the equivalent of a Bachelor of Business Administration degree, he said.

After returning from Canada Malmo served in the U. S. Army from 1956 to 1958 and was a clerk-typist instructor at Fort Chaffee, Ark., "something I didn't know anything about until I was in the army," he said.

Malmo said under his leadership the business will be "more customer orientated than in the past." He said customers should have the feeling the dealership is big enough to give them a good deal, but still small enough to know them by first name.

Malmo has also increased the service department staff by three persons. One is Karen Darby, Hughesville, who was hired as a service counselor.

A $9,000 engine analyzer has been ordered from Kansas City, Malmo said, and is expected to be installed in early February.

Malmo says the investment in the service end of his business is worth it. "People are now buying cars for different reasons than in the past and they are keeping them longer. Service is more important than before."

If customers know this dealership, or any other, is taking an interest in them at the time of purchase and when service is needed, they will keep coming back Malmo feels.

In all, Malmo employes 25 persons, and offers the customer Cadillac, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and the Italian Fiat.

"I always wanted to work for General Motors," Malmo said, "because I believed they offered me a better chance of having a dealership."

Prior to coming to Sedalia, Malmo was in a GM partnership in Nevada, Mo., for four years and for 10 years prior to that worked as a salesman and public relations man for GM.

"While we were here before, when I worked for GM, my son (17-year-old David L. Malmo) was born," Malmo said.

Malmo and his wife, Mary Alice, along with their daughter, Susan, 14, live at 2614 Plaza.

Dream fulfilled

Even when he was a high school sophomore David J. Malmo knew he wanted to be an automotive car dealer. Interviewed in his office recently, Malmo, owner of Malmo Motors Inc., said customer service and satisfaction will continue to be an important part of the business under his ownership. The dealership sells four makes of cars ranging from the economical Fiat to the classical Cadillac, including the new internationally designed Seville.

'Fireside' remodels its dining area

Around the Fireside, 1975 West Broadway, re-opened March 3 following a redecoration project that emphasized dining facilities.

Owner Ralph Walker, a former Sedalia mayor and vice president of Walker Publishing Co., said the restaurant-lounge was re-opened after the fireplace, located in the center of the room, was converted to permit cooking steaks, sandwiches and seafood there, in full view of the patrons.

Smoked mirrors were installed behind the bar. Tiffany lights and other nostalgia theme items, including antiques, were added to the decor.

Open Monday through Saturday, the restaurant offers a variety of steak cuts, sandwiches, seafood and other luncheon and dinner fare.

Bowling lanes open

Red Apple Lanes, 3400 West Broadway, owned by West 50 Enterprises, Inc., opened for business on June 2 with bowling, a restaurant and lounge.

State Rep. James Mathewson, president of the founding corporation, operated the business until June 15, when he turned over control of the firm to Jack Meyer, sheriff of Boone County, who has since become the sole owner of the business.

The bowling alley was instituted after Biederman's furniture was liquidated by court order. Public Acceptance Company foreclosed upon and sold through its agent, Anlet Investment Co., the entire inventory at Biederman's.

Tom Ryan of Columbia was retained by Meyer to manage the firm, effective June 16. Rayn moved his family to Sedalia and purchased a home here.

He operates the bowlers' pro shop at Red Apple, fitting and drilling the bowling balls himself. Ryan said he has been doing this since 1958.

The restaurant facility will be re-eopened within a few days, Ryan said, under new management.

Also available for patrons at Red Apple are pool tables, a penny arcade and a staffed nursery.

About half the trees cut down throughout the world are burned as fuel, with much of the wood first converted into charcoal.

Mrs. Marilyn DeHaven feeds a brown and white, salt water, lion fish at DeHaven's Tropical Fish, owned and operated by Mrs. DeHaven and her husband, Kenneth. Mrs. DeHaven stocks 200 varieties of tropical and salt water fish in their new store at 710 West 16th. Healthy fish are "very important to me," says Mrs. DeHaven, whose aim it is to sell quality fish.

Fish business is prospering

By KAREN FLANDERMEYER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Aquariums gurgle busily for thousands of tropical and salt water fish at the new DeHaven's Tropical Fish Store, 710 West 16th.

Bright green carpet and large live plants add to the exotic atmosphere of the 1,500 square foot store which the DeHavens occupied in April. Their former store, located at 610 West 16th, was only one-fourth the size of their new store.

"Business is looking up for '76," said Marilyn DeHaven, who with her husband, Kenneth, and two sons, Jeff and Pat, own and operate the store.

Mrs. DeHaven, calling herself the "fish nut" in the family, got hooked on fish when her son got his first aquarium, even though she originally didn't want him to have it. After Fred Kidwell's Fish Store went out of business in 1970, she talked about her "dream" fish store for two years and then opened in June of 1972 at the former location.

"I had high hopes that the business would succeed and it did. I have new customers all the time," she said. "Business has definitely improved since moving to the new location," she added.

Mrs. DeHaven credits her success to her "aim for quality." Healthy fish are "very important to me," she said. "I try hard to keep fish healthy and hope that all the fish that go out of here are healthy." She said she checks her fish every morning and, after getting in new fish every Monday, she holds them for a while to make sure they're healthy before selling them. Fish suppliers for DeHaven's include a fish hatchery in Hazelwood, Mo., which transports the fish here via bus, and a California supplier which imports the fish and sends them by air to Kansas City International Airport, where the DeHaven's pick them up.

Her 200 varieties of fish in 101 fresh and 10 salt water tanks (of 5½ to 100 gallon capacity) include exotic fish, like the clown trigger, lion fish, cow fish; tropical fish, such as the Asian arrawana, tiger shovelnose catfish; large fish, like oscars, severums, piranhas; and a tank of invertebrates, which includes corals, anemones, clams, crabs and scallops. She also has a shark and a vegetarian pacu fish, as well as the popular gold fish.

Besides fish, the store has everything needed to stock an aquarium, including a complete line of tanks and hoods (5½ to 55 gallon), filters, air pumps, nets, plastic and live plants, rocks, colored gravel, aerating and statute ornaments, medicine and dried and frozen food, including cyclops, brine shrimp, scallops, worms, clams, tubiflex, squid and beef heart. Books on how to care for fish are also available. Jeff DeHaven offers a repair service for aquarium equipment at the store.

Being the only salt water fish store in the area, Mrs. DeHaven said she has customers from Columbia, Jefferson City, California, Tipton, Versailles, Windsor, Warrensburg, Sweet Springs, Marshall and Knob Noster.

The store is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday; 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Friday; and from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. DeHaven said she's enjoyed the fish business. "I enjoy the people and have made many good friends. Everybody would enjoy just coming in to browse — even if they're not interested in fish."

Nova Scotia is Canada's only province with its own flag granted by royal charter. The flag originated with the Charter of New Scotland given in 1621 to Sir William Alexander by James, King of England as James I and of Scotland as James VI.

Mushrooms were so highly esteemed by the ancient Egyptians that the delicacy was reserved for the Pharaoh and his courtiers.

Manager now owner of local rental firm

Charles McCowen, 2506 Albert Lee, purchased U.S. Rents-It, 530 East Fifth, March 15, 1975, after managing the business for four years.

McCowen and his wife, Juanita, altered the name of the business slightly to Mac's U.S. Rents-It and changed the displays inside the firm, McCowen noted.

"We've just about got it all," McCowen said, adding that no major policy or service changes had been instituted.

Rental cars and trucks from Hertz and trailers from Nationwide are still available, McCowen said, including "everything from scoops to nuts and jackhammers to dishes."

The firm specializes in short-term rentals of hundreds of items which are more economical to rent than purchase.

Hobby kits galore

George William Deuel eyes a model kit that is also being examined by one of the many customers that have come to his new little "mini store" located inside Scotten's Book Shop and Hobby Center. The shop itself was taken over by Deuel's son, Gary, in June. Gary later decided his dad would be the perfect man to take over the hobby department of the shop.

Store ownership new; hobby center succeeds

Gary and George William Deuel, a father and son team in June took over ownership of Scotten's Book Shop and Hobby Center, 712 South Ohio.

Gary, a lifelong Sedalian, had called on the store as a magazine supplier. When he became owner, Gary asked his dad to get into the act by running a hobby shop section of the store. The senior Deuel has been a model enthusiast over 20 years and seemed made to order for the job.

The hobby section of the store features complete lines of some of the major names in model railroading as well as race cars and tracks.

In addition to the railroad and car sets, the shop provides items to make a miniature landscape over which the trains and cars can travel.

One of the newest hobby items featured is a spin-off of the old ship in the bottle. In place of ships in bottles, hobby enthusists can construct scenes in bottles. One of the top sellers currently, according to Gary, is a scene from the movie, "Jaws."

Some of the more traditional hobby items are also available, including kits for beginning stamp enthusiasts.

The book store features a full-line of paperback books including the top 10 best sellers and all major magazines, according to Gary.

School supplies are also available at the store including pens, paper, drafting supplies and art supplies. The store receives a complete listing of art supplies for the coming school year, according to Gary, and keeps all listed items in stock.

In addition, candy, potato chips, cigarettes, pipes and camera film are also available.

Sheer volume made store a necessity

"It's a good hand in poker and seems to apply to antiques. I wanted to come up with something different."

This was Richard Turner's explanation of the Full House, Sedalia's newest antique store at 111 East Third.

Turner, who started the shop Sept. 1, has been selling antiques through the mail for five years from his home on Route 1 between Green Ridge and Sedalia.

"It got to the point where I had so much stuff on hand I couldn't sell it all through the mail," said Turner, explaining his reason to open the business. "I was buying faster than I could sell it through ads (in antique magazines)."

Turner specializes in glassware, china and some silverware, spurning cheaper collectibles such as depression glass and reproductions. "I try to handle the better quality stuff," he said.

Turner also has stocked and sold many baskets, mostly to young people, and is trying to stock more paintings.

He said his business has been better than he expected, although it has slowed down somewhat since Christmas due to the seasonal slack.

Although he does not carry bicentennial-related antiques, the celebration has had its effect on his business. "I got a lot of people from out of town — on vacation — looking for something with history to it."

Turner would like to have more space to display furniture, but at present he has no plans to seek a store that has more room.

Turner has no definite business plans for the future. "I'm not sure what will happen. I'll probably decide when I get tired of sitting here."

Icebergs in the North Atlantic draw attention because they are hazards to shipping, but they are pikers compared with icebergs found in Antarctic waters. Some Antarctic bergs have been estimated to be as large as the state of Delaware, the National Geographic Society says.

Building, not location new

Stinger Sam Auto Parts, 2610 West Broadway, has moved not to a new location but backwards on its present lot.

Salesman Ralph Connor said the new building was occupied by Dec. 1, 1975, and the old building was torn down to allow more customer parking.

"I'd say we can get 30 to 35 cars on the lot now and the customer response to this has been very good," Connor said. "Parking space has been a problem out here since the highway was expanded and they took an extra two lanes off the businesses along the highway."

The new 60-by-80-foot building was built by Tempel Callison Co., 1801 West Main, according to Connor.

"The plans were drawn and the building was ordered in July," Connor said, "and construction started about the first of September."

"One big drawing card" of the store Connor said is a complete line of 15 different brands of motor oil in the various weights.

New for the store are short blocks, or rebuilt motors. Connors said these are of interest to the auto owner who wants another engine without the expense of a new engine.

"Most people will rework their heads and use the old oil pan and so most will put in this short block," he said.

The auto parts store also carries a full line of high performance parts and more are expected.

"I'm sure we will expand it a little more come spring when the weather turns warmer and people start to think more in high performance ideas," he said.

Connor said the biggest part of the business "comes from general use items, things the average guy needs to keep his car going." These include spark plugs, oil and air filters and brake shoes, to mention just a few.

"We also carry the appearance items and some hubcaps," Connor said.

In the past year Connor said business has increased by 20 to 25 per cent and this is credited to the growing concern by motorists for fuel economy.

"The crunch on the energy makes drivers a little more conscience of their tuneups an when things get tight more guys will come in here to get items to do their own repair work," Connor said.

The Iron Gate Dam, built jointly by Romania and Yugoslavia, produces more power than any other hydroelectric installation in Europe outside the Soviet Union, National Geographic says.

Move backwards

Stinger Sam Auto Parks literally moved backwards in late 1975. The new building and its expanded parking lot have brought favorable reaction from customers, employe Ralph Connor said. "The idea was kicked around on adding to the old building," he said, "but it was decided we couldn't do this and still have any way of adding parking space." So the decision was made to move back and knock down the old building.

Electronics store

Radio Shack manager Gary Dake, left, and store employe Ken Akin prepare to help two customers select from the hundreds of different electronics items available at the store, which opened in June in the State Fair Shopping Center.

Radio Shack can meet all needs

Radio Shack, 1400 South Limit, boasts a full line of electronic equipment for the do-it-yourselfer as well as for beginners who don't know their woofer from their tweeter.

The local store is managed by Gary Dake, who brings several years of experience to the job. He began working with Radio Shack in Jefferson City and has managed two other stores in Kansas City prior to his move here in August. The store officially opened its doors June 6.

Dake claims the store has everything an electronics buff could want, from citizens band radios to stereo equipment. He says the store has evolved to "kind of a caterer to the handyman who likes to do things on his own."

CBs are new to some people, but according to Dake, Radio Shack is no Johnny-come-lately to the current rage. "Radio Shack has made its own CB now for 16 years," he said.

Most people getting started in CBs ask, "is this a good one?" according to Dake. He says Radio Shack offers a special book on citizen band radios to help answer such questions.

Fulltime dive shop is eventual goal for one local businessman

By OWEN HARDY
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Sedalia might seem to some people to be the most unlikely place in the world to establish a scuba-diving center. Yet Don Kabler, Route 1, did just that, and seems to be making a success of it.

Don's Dive Shop and Holiday Liquors Inc., located at 3312 South Highway 65, is a one-man operation, run by Kabler himself. While Kabler admits that the liquor store is still the major part of his business, he says that interest in diving in the area is strong and he hopes to someday be able to dispense with the liquor business altogether.

Kabler's diving business started as a part-time job operated out of his home. On June 1, 1974, Kabler moved the diving shop into his liquor store.

Kabler says divers come from an 80-mile radius to purchase his equipment and fill their tanks with air from his compressor.

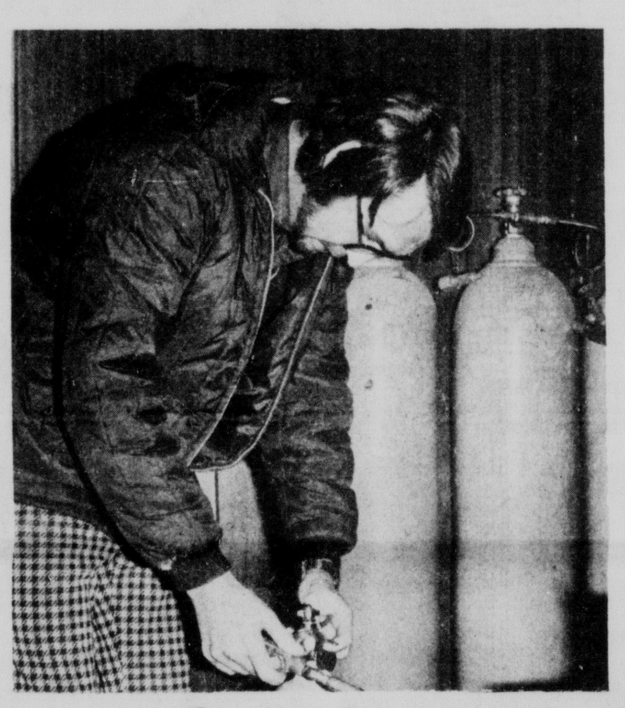

Equipment for diving can range from as little as $50 or less for fins, mask and snorkel, then on up to $2,000 or $3,000 or more for scuba tanks, underwater photographic equipment and other paraphernalia, Kabler said.

For the last three years, Kabler and his wife have been sponsoring diving tours to the Caribbean. The Kablers left with their latest group Saturday, for the Roatan Bay Islands off the coast of Honduras.

Kabler stresses, however, that one needn't travel halfway around the world to find good sucba-diving areas. Table Rock Lake, near Branson, and the Lake of the Ozarks are just two examples of good diving lakes near here, Kabler says.

Mrs. Kabler estimates that there are at least 50 divers in Sedalia, and she feels that her husband will some day be able to concentrate solely on skin diving related activities. "I think he could make it alone if he had a swimming pool on the premises to give swimming lessons."

Kabler also points out that he sells fishing supplies such as bait, lures and other equipment.

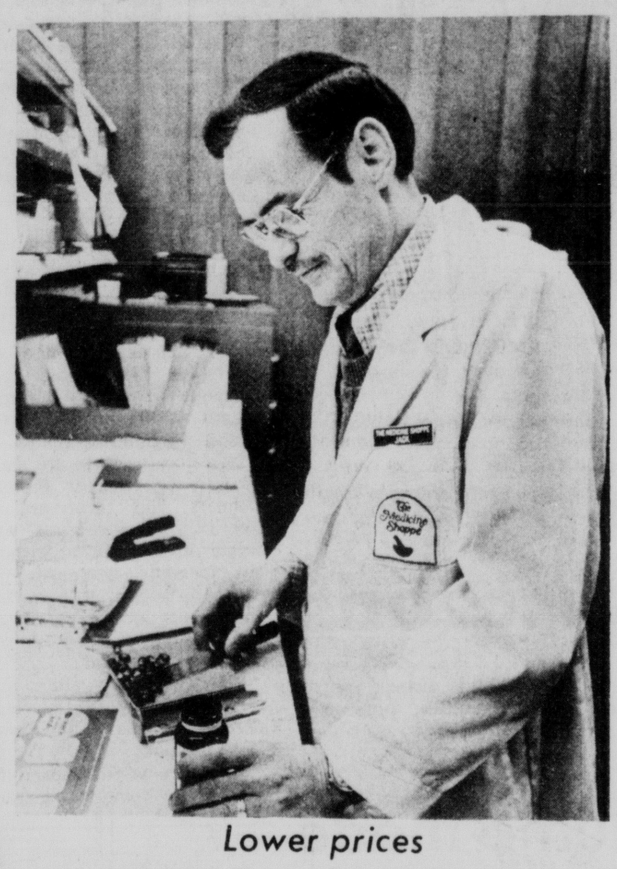

Give me some air

Don Kabler, of Don's Dive Shop and Holiday Liquors, Inc., fills a scuba diving tank with his air compressor. Kabler says people come from an 80-mile radius to fill up their tanks at his shop. Filling the tanks, however, is a dangerous job and should only be done by an expert, he says.

Unusual approach means lower costs

Lower prices

Jack H. Morris, operator of the Medicine Shoppe, 709 East Broadway, prepares a prescription in his new pharmacy. An 18-year veteran in the business, Morris said the shop's unique approach to prescriptions permits it to charge lower prices for prescriptions.

Jack H. Morris brings 18 years of experience into his new pharmacy, the Medicine Shoppe, 709 East Broadway.

The Medicine Shoppe is part of a chain of National Prescriptions Centers, with stores open or opening in 40 states, according to Morris. He says the Medicine Shoppe emphasizes prescription service and keeps overhead costs to a minimum by reducing over-the-counter sales. Health and beauty aides are not carried by the store, according to Morris, as another means of keeping costs down.

One of the greatest benefits to Medicine Shoppe customers, Morris points out, is their National Guarantee program. Morris explained the program's benefits as including the posting of a sign in the store, detailing benefits provided all registered customers.

When customers register with the guaranteed plan, according to Morris, there is no charge or obligation. Registration guarantees each customer a low Medicine Shoppe price 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

If customers have to make a purchase at another store, "they can present the receipt at the Medicine Shoppe, and a credit memo for the difference is filled out and sent to the home office," Morris said. The credit is applied to another purchase the customer makes in a Medicine Shoppe.

Morris stated that "with prices rising on almost everything, there is a strong need for these kinds of stores in this area."

Appliance business has moved

The A-1 appliance repair business, formerly located at 820 South Engineer and 101 West Main, is now consolidated and has been located at 107 West Main since last June.

Formerly, the firm's main office and repair headquarters for washers, dryers, refrigeration devices, air conditioners and other equipment was located at 820 South Engineer. The company's electronic service department was formerly located at 101 West Main.

The company is now owned by Larry Keele and Carl Vannoy, who purchased it from Jack Isgur. Both Keele and Vannoy were employed by the company before purchasing it from Isgur.

A primary advantage of the consolidated, larger location on West Main has been the increased space, which has made possible a larger inventory of machinery repair parts, Keele said.

The firm currently employs 10 persons in its Sedalia shop and two additional workers at its smaller shop in Marshall.

Space doubled by move

The Furnell Lumber Co. moved Dec. 1 from its old location at 2200 West Main to a more spacious location on Highway 65, about five miles south of the city limits.

Manager Duane Furnell said the main reason for the move was to acquire more space. He said the new 18-acre facility has twice the inside storage space of his old location, which only covered about two acres.

"It'll help us to do a better job," Furnell said, noting that he would be able to increase his inventory considerably, including such farm materials as treated lumber, poles and posts. Furnell said he also prefers the highway location.

Furnell said about 50 to 60 per cent of his customers are contractors, with the rest being private home-owners and farmers.

Furnell pointed out that his company carries not only lumber, but also "just about everything you'd need in building materials," including roofing, culvert pipe, paneling, doors and moulding.

One change in policy has resulted from the move to the new location, Furnell said. Although his company still delivers orders to customers, the service is no longer provided free of charge because of the high transportation costs.

Furnell started his business in 1965, he said, at 2929 West Main.

Twice as big

Alva Lemens, 2107 East Sixth, hauls a load of prefabricated doors at the Furnell Lumber Co.'s new location five miles south of the city limits on Highway 65. Company president Duane Furnell said the move was made because of space limitations in the old building on 2200 West Main. The new buildings have twice the indoor space of the old location, he said.

Space was needed

The York World of Electronics, 1716 West Ninth, acquired more space to display more products in 1975, according to Miss Debi Boatman, manager.

A wall separating York from what was a beauty shop at the Brinc Building was removed to give the business an extra 600 square feet of display space.

The store now has a larger selection of components and compact stereos, Miss Boatman said, and recently increased its selection of Panasonic television sets.

York has also kept up with the citizens ban radio craze by stocking and selling more CB radios, Miss Boatman said.

The store has enlarged its album and tape selections. More car stereos also are available.

The company's shifting emhasis the past 30 years from radio to television sets to stereos to electronics in general has resulted in its present name, although the local phone book keeps a separate listing for the company under its old name, York Radio and TV.

The company is owned by a corporation based in Decatur, Ill.

'Magic wand' transforms building

By TOM MAUPIN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

"We took one of the oldest and most dilapidated buildings in town and waved a magic wand over it," attorney Jim Rice said of the building at 701 South Ohio that now houses the law offices he shares with Kenneth Romines.

Rice said he's been told the building is 100 years old. Prior to being bought by the two laywers, the building was owned by the late Aubrey Owen. Rice and Romines bought the building on Jan. 6, 1975, from Owen's son, Robert Owen, Republic, Mo.

Rice said before purchase the ground floor was being used as storage by Sherman-Williams Paint Co. and the second floor was storage space for General Tires.

"Upstairs there were tires. Stacks of tires for 20 years. They hadn't moved a tire up there," Rice said. "Bats were flying around. It was in a terrible state of disrepair."

Why would two attorneys go to the time and expense of renovating an old building?

"I have a strong feeling that our society should not tear down all the old buildings or put up metal facades," Rice said. "There's a lot of beauty in these buildings. I think we have a duty to preserve the past."

Rice said the same day he and Romines bought the building workmen were inside clearing out the inventory of the previous owner and renter.

The first item on the work schedule was getting the law offices completed. Rice said, "there were wires and pipes all over the place." All of this was removed and the first floor was completely remodeled.

Six weeks after purchase Rice said the law offices were finished. New heating, air conditioning, plumbing and insulation was installed. The first floor ceilings originally had been 18 feet high, Rice said, but have been lowered in the back section of the first floor to average height.

Rice said when the door is closed in either his or Romines' office the room is almost sound proof.

In the basement concrete pillars and floor jacks were brought in to reinforce the weight of the floor.

Rice said the building, "is probably the most modern building inside in town."

After the inside was finished work began on the exterior. The red brick walls had to be sand blasted to get old and loose mortar out from the bricks. The walls were "tuck pointed," Rice said, to replace the old mortar and a seal coat was painted over them.

"We had to paint it because there was such a hodgepodge of bricks and we wanted to give a uniform appearance," Rice said.

On the north side of the building a second-story bay window was removed and rebuilt. A door on the north west corner of the building was replaced by an office window. Where once were showroom style windows are now two windows and the main entrance to the law offices on the Ohio side.

The four arched windows on the front of the building were retained and the two metal doors on the front, one for the law office and the second for the upstairs dental office, are arched and have four arched window panes.

The windows on the north side of the building are arched only from the outside. Rice said these windows are lowered and look leveled-off at the top from the inside.

Exterior work was completed on July 30.

While the interior work was till going on a barber shop was put in the back of the building. Two barbers, Bill Wilson, owner, and Pat Pummill are there.

The upstairs was finished when Dr. Don A. Cable moved in during the late summer, but the floor plan of the office was left to his design.

New inside

Once the showroom for tires and the storage space for paint supplies, the interior of the old building at 701 South Ohio was transformed during 1975 into a modern law office for attorneys Jim Rice, standing, and Kenneth Romines. Paneled walls and plaid carpets now accent the lobby of the offices. With Rice are secretaries Donna DeWitt and Anna Swords.

Manager is new for local shoe business

Mrs. Florence Steenburgen, 1703 South Warren, is the new manager of the Shoe Corral, 228 South Ohio.

Mrs. Steenburgen, who moved here from Clinton, has more than eight years of experience as a shoe store saleslady or manager. She assumed her present job in October.

Mrs. Steenburger said the store recently enlarged the children's shoe department and may enlarge it more this year.

Registration office moves from downtown

The State Motor Vehicle Registration office began operations in its new office on the west side of the State Fair Shopping Center on March 5.

Fred Kraft, fee agent for the local office, said the new location offers plenty of free parking, a problem when the office was located in the county courthouse.

Moving of the office was the result of a conflict between the Pettis County Court and Kraft over a proposed increase in the rent for Kraft's former office space in the courthouse.

REPUTATION
The McLaughlin Reputation
96 YEARS of Service to Sedalians 1880-1976
QUALITY FURNITURE AT AFFORDABLE PRICES
Much of the time the consideration of a company's reputation in business transactions, service and concern for its customers, and the community of which it is a part, has been the prime factor responsible for the success and stability of that company.
... it all began back in 1880 ... a time when Sedalia numbered its people in the hundreds, not in tens of thousands.
McLaughlin Bros. has grown with Sedalia and Sedalians from the first store located on West Second Street to our present modern store located in the downtown business district.
We've served a lot of people, too ... in fact, it is a point of pride with us that we are now serving the fourth and fifth generation of our original customers.
There have been many great changes in these years of serving Sedalians ... but there has never been a change in our basic principle: Giving our customers America's finest quality home furnishings and appliances at reasonable prices.

Slow economy forced change

Team work

Karen Stewart, left, an employe of B & B Ornamental Iron, operates an angle cutter forming part of the iron aquarium stands made by the company. Co-owner John Blaschke, above, has finished welding one of the stands together. The next step is painting.
(Democrat-Capital Photos)

During an economic slowdown, Tony Blaschke is inclined to believe people are not going to buy gift and decoration items for their homes, so in early 1975 he diversified his small business.

"We used to be heavy in the decorated type ornamental iron — candle holders and stands — for the gift shops and flower shops. But that kind of thing went bad the end of 1974 and the first part of 1975," Blaschke said.

His business is B & B Ornamental Iron Specialties, 318 West Second. "We bought this building (the old Bagby hatchery) and we now manufacture light iron aquarium stands."

Prior to his location on Second Street, Blaschke had his business at 710 West 16th. "The old building was where DeHavens (Tropical Fish) is now. They happened to mention they were buying these stands (iron aquarium stands) from a Kansas City wholesaler and they didn't care for them. They suggested I make a sample and take it to Kansas City and I did," Blaschke said.

The time spent on the sample product paid off for the company. "We've been doing business with them (the Kansas City wholesaler) for eight months now and have an order for 220 more stands," Blaschke said.

The company makes stands ranging in size from one for a 10-gallon aquarium to a 100-gallon tank.

Iron is cut, bent, welded and painted to complete the product.

"The way we are geared up right now I'd be willing to bet that from start to finish we could build a stand in about three to seven minutes after everything is cut and bent," Blaschke said, the total process takes about 10 minutes per stand.

"We can produce 200 in a week's time," he said. "I'd say we average about 100 to 150 a week now but we can go to 200, 250 or more."

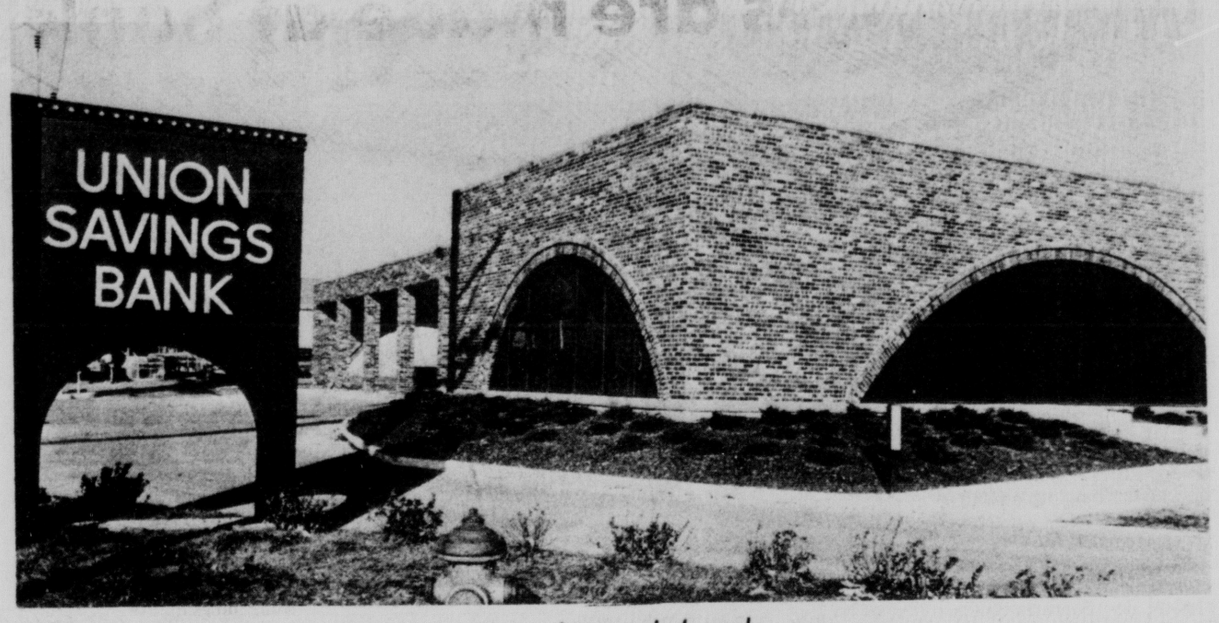

Co-owner of the company is Blaschke's son John, who also welds the iron frames together. Cutting work is done by Debbie Stewart. Other employes are Blaschke's wife and a daughter.

Blaschke said he got into iron work full time about five years ago. Prior to that he had been a salesman in Kansas City and only did iron work as a hobby.

"I enjoy this and I wouldn't have gotten into it and accepted this new work if we couldn't have made a decent profit," he said.

Blaschke has also made iron railings in the past year for the south entrance to Bothwell Hospital and the north entrance of Red Apple Lanes, 3400 West Broadway, and various homes in Sedalia.

"I'm not actively soliciting the candle holder business now," he said, "but we are looking for new products all the time."

New branch bank

Union Savings opened a new full-service branch banking facility at 14th and Limit on March 10. The new addition added six employes for a total of 29. The parent bank is located at 101 South Ohio. Included among other services at the branch facility, according to Bob Mason, vice-president, are safe-deposit boxes.

Airplane dealership is a first

David Routszong took his first ride in an airplane in 1939. During World War II he was a navigator in B-24 missions over northern Italy. After the war he learned to fly. He also got into the car sales business.

Now, 30 years later, Routszong has decided to get out of the car business. He severed all ties and gave up his president's job at Routszong-Malmo Motors to start Routszong Aviation Sales and Service, Sedalia's first airplane dealership, on Jan. 4 this year.

"The aircraft business is a new segment of American industry, expanding at a very good rate," Routszong said, explaining the switch. "I had an opportunity for an aircraft dealership for the whole midwest of Missouri."

Routszong, whose offices are at the Jaycee Building next to the Sedalia Municipal Airport on West Highway 50, is the exclusive dealer for the light single-engine and high performance single-engine line of Cessna aircraft. He also has been approved by the General Aviation Division of Rockwell International to be the dealer for a line of that firm's planes.

Routszong's area consists of Kansas City on the west, Kirksville on the north, Jefferson City on the east and near Springfield on the south. He expects to hire a full-time salesman in the spring.

Routszong says he eventually wants to build a new facility at the airport once improvements there are completed.

Routszong also will buy and sell used airplanes and service them.

He presently has three planes on display — two Cessna Skyhawks and a Cessna 150.

Routszong has no concern about the demand for his product. "Cessna had its largest month in history last month (December) nationwide. Yes, there's a demand," he said.

Big changes are made at bank

New addition

This addition to the Missouri State Bank of Sedalia building, 917 South Limit, was completed during the past year and provides much more space for banking operations in addition to featuring a special conference room on the lower level. The room is available to community groups for meetings.
(Democrat-Capital Photo)

Both physical and financial expansion characterized the Missouri State Bank of Sedalia during 1975, according to bank president Bill Mills.

Physical expansion was highlighted by two events — the June opening of a bank branch facility in the Thompson Hills Shopping Center on West Highway 50 and the dedication in November of a 4,000-square foot, two-level expansion to the bank's main building at 917 South Limit.

The expansion, at a cost of approximately $500,000, significantly enlarges the bank's business area and also provides a spacious modern conference room, which is available for community interest group meetings.

In conjunction with the expansion program, the facility's drive-in banking services at the South Limit location were enlarged from one lane to four. Coupled with the two drive-in lanes located in the new branch facility, there has been an increase of five drive-in lanes in the past year. The new State Fair Shopping Center branch also offers two lobby service windows.

Corresponding with the increase in size and facilities, the bank has added one additional staff member designated as a "consumer loan officer," who works not in one specific area, but is involved in arranging loans for various types of purchases. There are now six officers at the bank empowered to make loans, Mills said.

Despite the nationwide economic crunch, the past year was prosperous for the bank, which realized a 17 per cent increase in total assets and an increase of $2 million in total deposits, Mills said.

Another development during the past year, of which Mills says he feels particularly proud, is the bank's involvement with the Sedalia Area-Development Corp. (SADC), a not-for-profit group formed last summer by local financial and business leaders to provide funding for economic expansion projects. The SADC provided money for the construction of a warehouse by the McGraw-Edison Co. and also was instrumental in providing funds to develop the city's new industrial park.

"We just feel that 1975 was a tremendous year for us all the way around," Mills said. "We have stood ready to help encourage the economic development of this community and do whatever else we can to assist in the growth of Sedalia. Our record, I believe, reflects that commitment. We just as eagerly stand ready to do these same things in 1976."

Change in name reflects an expansion of service in city

Some Sedalians may have noticed last February a subtle change at the Sedalia Bank and Turst Co., 111 West Third.

The sign outside now says Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust Co.

The "change" at Sedalia Mercantile is not really new, President E. G. Adams explained. It merely reflects the fact that the bank is affiliated with the Mercantile Bank Corp., St. Louis. Sedalia Bank and Turst Co. became affiliated with Mercantile in November, 1973, Adams said.

With 27 affiliates at present and another two planned for completion by March, Adams said Mercantile Bank is the largest bank holding company in the state. "With people getting more cosmopolitan, we changed our name to denote our affiliation" with Mercantile Bank Corp., he said.

Adams pointed out that his bank's affiliation with Mercantile allows Sedalia Mercantile to offer "services that ordinarily wouldn't be available in a small community the size of Sedalia." These include such services as trust planning and international banking facilities, he added.

The original Sedalia Bank and Trust Co. was chartered in 1932 and has been operating continuously since that time, Adams said.

Adams noted that Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust Co. has experienced an almost 11 per cent growth rate since this time last year. Year-end assets for 1975 were approximately $27,841,000, Adams said, compared to assets of $25,142,000 for 1974.

Adams' forecast for 1976 was optimistic. He said, "1976 will be a good year for the community. Unemployment is down to below seven per cent" compared to a high of 15.1 per cent last year.

Realty firm expands

Hieronymus and Son Realty, 1030 South Limit, expanded its offices and staff at the end of 1975 to a total of eight sales persons and three real estate brokers.

Merging with Hieronymus, composed of David Hieronymus Sr. and David Hieronymus II, was Janet Shelledy of Shelledy Real Estate. The firms have combined experience of 33 years in the real estate business.

The firm enlarged its office space and remodeled, as well as adding new office furniture.

Services offered by Hieronymus include home, commercial and farm real estate, with Homer Williams and Gaylon Alfrey specializing in farm sales.

Banion new owner of drug store

John Banion, registered pharmacist and owner of Sedalia Drug Co., bought Warren's RX Nov. 1 from A.B. Warren, who owned the store at 212 South Ohio from June 15, 1961, to Nov. 1.

Warren has helped cerebral palsy victims for the past 21 years by fitting orthopedic appliances, and Banion will continue to work with such appliances in the future, he said.

The drug store specializes in orthopedic braces, traction appliances, wheelchairs, walkers, canes, and colostomy equipment. Sickroom needs and cosmetics are also available. The store is primarily a prescription shop, however, Banion said.

John Watkins is chief pharmacist at Warren's RX, and Banion is chief pharmacist at Sedalia Drug.

Firm here has a new manager

Harold Kraus, 2608 Wing, last year replaced Ned Postels as manager of Beatrice Foods Co., 111 West Fifth. Kraus took over March 1, 1975, after Postels resigned to go into business for himself in Grinnell, Iowa, Kraus said.

Kraus and his wife, Georgia, came to Sedalia from Brainerd, Minn., where Kraus served as General Manager of the Beatrice Food Co.'s milk and ice cream division there.

Mrs. Kraus is currently employed as a secretary for Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming.

The Beatrice Sedalia plant, which manufactures "Meadow Gold" ice cream, cottage cheese and a processed resale "mix" for companies which sell soft ice cream such as Dairy Queen, employs about 73 people, Kraus said. The market for the company's product covers an area roughly bounded by Sedalia, Springfield, Columbia and Kansas City, he said.

Meadow Gold ice cream is also distributed throughout Missouri in addition to eastern Kansas and northern Arkansas, he added.

Kraus said his company's sales were "running ahead of last year by about 8-10 per cent." He estimated a total sales for the fiscal year ending Feb. 28, 1976, at between $5.5 million to $6 million. Kraus attributed this to an increased market share rather than a growing market. "I'm not sure that the market has grown all that much," he said, "we're just getting a little bit more of the market."

Kraus has been with the Beatrice Foods company for 16 years.

Barbershop duo

John Wilson, Route 2, carefully clips a steady customer, Jim Woodsmall, 1703 South Harrison. Although Wilson says he can cut longer hair, he says most of his clients are persons who prefer the old-fashioned shorter styles. Wilson moved from his old location in the Bothwell Hotel because of lower rent and more parking at his new location at 104 East Seventh.

(Democrat-Capital Photo)

Added parking area helps barber shop

John W. Wilson, Route 2, owner of the old Bothwell Barber Shop at the Bothwell Hotel, moved last year to a new location at 104 East Seventh.

Wilson moved to the new site because of lower rent and more abundant parking facilities. Wilson said the guests at the Bothwell Hotel were mostly permanent, pointing out that the more transient visitors generally provided more business.

Previous to working at Bothwell Hotel, Wilson said he had had his shop for about 10 years at 210 South Lamine.

Wilson, who began cutting hair in 1953 after graduating from barber college in Kansas City, said he tries to keep up with the new longer hair styles. Most of his permanent clientel, however, are older persons who prefer shorter hair, he said.

Joking with one of his customers who had just walked in the shop, Wilson said, "It doesn't generally take all day to cut your hair."

Pat W. Pummill, Woody's Trailer Court, isn't so sure he wants to cut "long hair." Pummill cuts hair at Wilson's shop a few hours a week. "I leave that to the younger boys," he said. "I've been here too long for that." Pummill said he has been cutting hair since 1928.

Wilson said he charges $2.75 for a regular hair cut, $3.50 for a razor cut and $8 and up for a hair styling.

Business is better after relocation

Happy owners

Andy and Doris Anderson, owners of Factory Wholesale Outlet, look over their clothing selection at their new store at 1709 West Broadway. They made the move from 1710 West Ninth in July, expanding floor space four times. Business has "almost doubled" since the move, Anderson said.

(Democrat-Capital Photo)

Business has "almost doubled" since Factory Wholesale Outlet, formerly of 1710 West Ninth, moved to its new location at 1709 West Broadway.

Andy and Doris Anderson, owners, feel a better location and bigger selection of clothing is the reason for the increase in business.

The store, which was opened at its new location July 15, provides 1,200 square feet of floor space, four times the space the owners had at the former location. Clothing in stock includes suits, leisure suits, slacks, sport coats, shirts, belts, ties, socks, outer wear and underwear. They carry men's coats in sizes 36 to 56 and slacks, sizes 28 to 60.

"When people think of factory outlet stores, they automatically think of seconds and irregulars," Anderson said. "So many people are under the impression that we sell seconds. We don't. We gurantee clothing not to be seconds. We buy factory close-outs, factory overruns and cancelled orders," he explained.

"Our prices are 30 to 60 per cent lower than normal retail price and in many cases, are below normal wholesale price," Anderson added.

Anderson anticipates a good increase in business in the new year. "I think in 1976, business is going to be on the up. The trend of the past six months is that things are on the upswing," he said. Expansion of industry in Sedalia is another reason business is improving, Anderson said.

Enthused over role at SFCC

In his fourth month as director of business affairs at State Fair Community College, E. N. "Bud" Healey, Route 2, feels that "people is what makes this job so interesting — they're a dedicated, fascinating bunch."

Healey has been in control of SFCC's finances since November, having worked during October with William Grossmiller III, former business affairs director, who moved to California. Before taking this position, Healey was the controller at Town and Country Shoes for 13 years. When the company's accounting office was moved to its executive office in Clayton, Mo., Healey said he commuted to St. Louis from May through August on a weekly basis.

"But the roots were pretty deep," he said, and his motivation was to stay here. When the business affairs director position became available, Healey said both he and his family were happy he was selected to fill it.

Healey said working at SFCC is "intellectually stimulating — a whole new atmosphere." He said his job at the college is one where a business background "really fits. Twenty-five years of business experience was just preparing me for this," he said.

Healey is responsible for the fiscal affairs of the college, including the budget, safeguarding capital assets and managing the business office, custodians, book store and student union.

E. N. "Bud" Healey

Heley said he feels the college is "returning good value for each tax dollar spent." Tax money allocated to state universities is three times as much as the amount allocated to junior colleges per credit hour. "The money goes a lot farther this way," he said. "I see myself as a representative of tax payers in controlling the budget and as such, I'm pleased to see they're getting such a bargain," he added.

Healey also said he enjoys "working with the kids." He is married and has four children, ages 13 to 22, and two grandchildren.

Even though SFCC's budget remains "tight," Healey said in 1976 he anticipates a further increase in enrollment from last fall's 33 per cent enrollment increase. He also feels that after the permanent campus is started (the Yeater Learning Resources Center is expected to be completed by fall of this year), "the public's support of future capital needs will be more affirmative" and the district voters will support SFCC "more enthusiastically," he speculated.

Insurance agent moves to own office

In 1975 State Farm Insurance Agent Robert (Bob) Hoskins struck out on his own, moving his office from 2111 West Broadway to 821 West Main.

Hoskins remodeled the Main street office building and began operations in June, 1975.

In his 16th year with State Farm, Hoskins began his insurance career with the company in 1960 with an agency in Brunswick, Mo. He moved to Sedalia in 1967.

The office operated by Hoskins serves over 1,800 policy holders in auto, health, fire and life insurance in the Pettis County area.

Sherrill Rowland is office manager and secretary for Hoskins.

Mrs. Nancy Gravatt, 1315 South Quincy, deftly handles machine parts as they come out of a 30-ton molding press at the Missouri Press Metals Co. on East Boonville. The machine molds powdered metals into various types of engine parts.

Ownership change planned

The Alpha Sintered Metals plant, on East Boonville near the Missouri-Pacific Shops, recently underwent a name change that will soon reflect a change in ownership.

The lease for the plant, formerly a subsidiary of Alpha Sintered Metals, Inc., Ridgway, Penn., was transferred in October to the plant's namager, Norman Bankovich, pending a stock transfer agreement between Alpha Sintered and Bankovich, which he expects to complete "any day now." The new corporation's name is Missouri Press Metals.

The plant manufactures bearings, bushings and structural parts out of iron and bronze powder, Bankovich said, in a process known as sintering. The parts are used in such items as power lawn mowers, power saws and other machine parts.

The production process begins when the parts are first pressed in molds and then hardened in long sintering ovens, Bankovich said. The parts are then shaped to specifications which call for at least one-one thousandth of an inch accuracy, he said. After the shaping process, the parts, which are porous, are filled with lubricating oil through a vacuum process. The parts are thus "self-lubricating" and do not need oiling, he said.

The plant currently employs 22 persons, Bankovich said. Business has been improving every year, he said, with sales valued at approximately $450,000 for the past year, compared to a figure just over $100,000 for 1974. Bankovich's goal for 1976 is a "minimum" of $650,000 in sales, he said.

Bankovich said Alpha Sintered originally located a plant in Sedalia because "the business was here." As freight costs became more and more prohibitive, the company found it increasingly advantageous to locate nearer to the source of business. Bankovich said nearly all his customers are within the state lines.

Hair stylist will attend show

Truman Cramer, a Sedalia hair stylist with a shop at 2111 West Broadway, will attend the World Style Show in New York March 21 to 23, the first time the international show has ever been held in the U.S.

Cramer, who has had his barber and beauty shop at the present location for two years, said he plans to remodel the shop in the spring.

An estimated 23 nations will be represented at the show, Cramer said, and each will have a five-member team competing in free style, creative, casual and sculpture hair cut contests. More than 500 suppliers will have their merchandise on display, he said.

Cramer will be accompanied to New York by his wife, Mary.

Change in name part of move

Booth's Television and Appliance is now A-1 Television and Appliance and instead of two locations, there is one at 105-107 West Main.

Carl Vannoy, co-manager with Larry C. Keele, said the store was "centralized" for the convenience of customers.

"We wanted to get the television and appliance stores together so people wouldn't have to run back and forth," according to Vannoy. He said store hours are unchanged. A-1 is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. through the week and from 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

The move also allowed the name change. Vannoy said following purchase of the stores "several years ago" the Booth name was retained to minimize customer confusion.

One aspect of the business that has not changed, according to Vannoy, is service. "We offer warranty service on almost every major brand," commented Vannoy, "no matter where it was purchased."

Vannoy said the store is "trying to build a name" by offering such extensive service work. "We like to be known as the house of service for almost everything in the home," said Vannoy.

Increased business reported

The State Farm Insurance Companies district office located in Sedalia announced that its four Sedalia agents, George R. Thompson, Wray Schroeder, D. I. Sevier, and Bob Hoskins had an increase of approximately 25 per cent in policies written during 1975.

William C. Hopkins, district manager of the west central Missouri district for State Farm, said two State Farm offices are now located in Sedalia, with Thompson, Schroeder, and Sevier having their agencies at 2111 West Broadway. Hoskins opened a second office at 821 West Main on June 1.

The two State Farm offices, according to Hopkins, service more than 8,000 policy-holders in auto, fire, life, and health insurance in the Sedalia area.

Over $2,000,000 in life insurance was added to the four agents' accounts in 1975. Thompson again qualified for the State Farm "Million Dollar Club" by paying for over a million dollars in life insurance. He also ranked in the upper three per cent among State Farm agents in production out of 10,000 in the company this past year.

Program aided by car use

The Sedalia Public Library now has a 1972 station wagon available for use in its outreach program. The vehicle was purchased last year at a cost of $1,500.

Outreach Librarian Margaret Dowdy uses the car to deliver books to shut-ins and to show films at five nursing homes in the area.

The vehicle is used the most on Wednesdays and Thursdays, the delivery and film-showing days, according to Donald Morton, librarian.

Every other Thursday Sheila Blackledge, children's librarian, uses the vehicle to visit Melita and Minniolia Day Nurseries, followed by Morton, who shows films to Head Start classes at the Community Center. Then, in the afternoon, Mrs. Dowdy uses the car to make further deliveries. Before the station wagon was purchased, private cars were used.

Morton said another important item of the past year was the reception of a $10,000 grant from the State Library for use in purchasing books. Old books, some dating back as much as 50 to 70 years, are being replaced with newer material purchased through the grant, he said.

Despite a tight budget, reflected by a 25 per cent loss in the library's book buying power, Morton said the library "enjoyed another good year."

The Callawaya Indians of South America claim they were medicine men to the Incas. Today their descendants roam the length of the Andes peddling herbs and charms said to cure fright, better the earth and attract lovers.

Spanish look is given to bowling lanes

An extensive summer remodeling effort at the Broadway Lanes Inc., bowling alley, 2119 West Broadway, has given a Spanish look to the exterior and interior of the recreation center.

The outside of the building was re-painted and improved upon by adding chert shingles and wrought iron trimming over the windows. Inside, the installation of red carpeting, new chandlier lights and light posts, and wrought-iron dividers separating the dining area continued the Spanish-style effect. The interior was also re-painted.

"We put in a lot of work on this during the summer and we are really very, very pleased with the way it all turned out," commented Mrs. Betty Rose Thompson, owner. "We feel it is very attractive."

The remodeling project was the second major effort to be undertaken since the establishment was opened 18 years ago, Mrs. Thompson said.

Plaza Stereo is happy with new location

Plaza Stereo re-located in 1975 and manager Arthur Bird is pleased with the move.

"We've doubled our business," Bird said of his Thompson Hills location. Plaza Stereo joined the Thompson Hills merchants in February.

He notes that customers seem pleased with the firm's new home. He emphasized the convenience afforded buyers who can park with ease and take care of many shopping chores in one trip.

Sales and service, however, are Plaza Stereo's main concern. Bird says his store offers all price ranges of stereos, car stereos, citizens band radios and television sets. Other appliances can be ordered, according to Bird.

Appliance line grows at new site

Since last May, Mid-Mo. Electric has been located in the building previously occupied by Reinhart-Welch Sales Inc., 4013 South Limit, and has added household appliances.

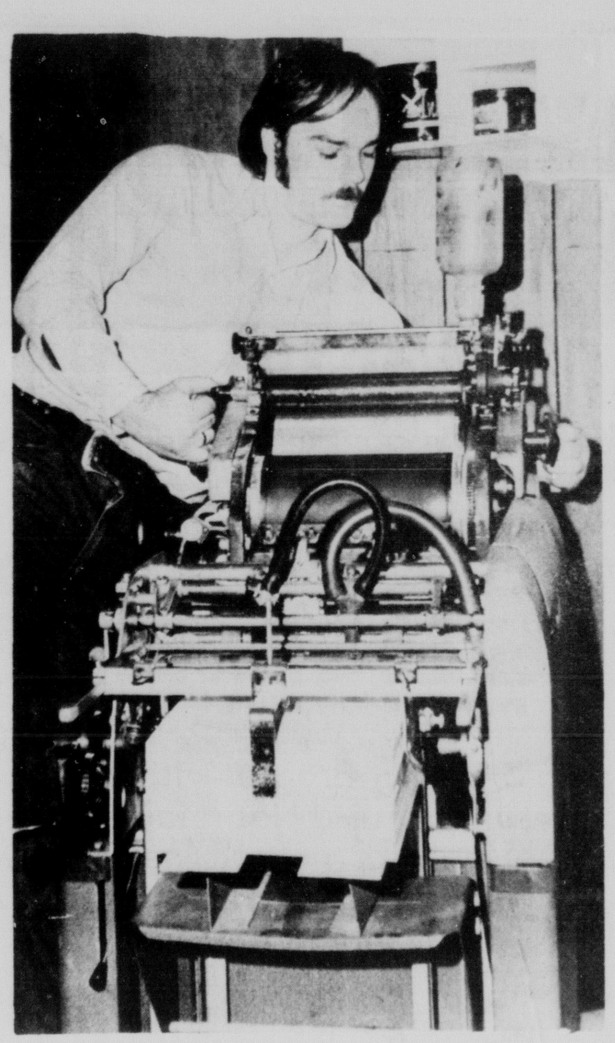

According to Gregory Gunn, one of the managers, the building is divided into a major household appliances section and the pole line transformers section.

Gunn said the business had to relocate after a fire in January destroyed its previous location on South Limit. The firm employes three persons, Gunn said.

Chuck Wensch, manager of the appliance section, and Gunn admitted business hasn't been booming.

Wensch said since May the appliance sales peak was in October. His most popular items with customers have been freezers, dishwashers and television sets, he said. The appliance section stocks a complete line of those items plus ranges, driers, washing machines and refrigerators.

"People are just hanging on to their money," Wensch said. As for predictions, the economy will improve Wensch said, "that's all you hear."

Adjustments

Charley Moon, owner of Pioneer Printing, 110 South Ohio, adjusts his multilith. Moon decided to get into business for himself in November.

(Democrat-Capital Photo)

Wish for own firm caused relocation

One of the newest businesses on the downtown scene is Pioneer Printing, 110 South Ohio, owned by Charley Moon.

Moon, 219 South Gentry, formerly worked in the printing plant at Parkhurst Manufacturing Co. and in his spare time operated a printing shop at 104 South Osage.

However, on Nov. 19 Moon decided to devote all of his time to his new business. The new facility gives him about 1,500 square feet, three times as much as he had on South Osage.

Moon said he made the switch simply "because I wanted to get started on my own."

The company offers offset and letterpress printing, hot stamping and rubber stamps.

Other employes are Moon's wife, Mildean, Pat Wickern and Janie Marino.

Warehouse permits growth

With a new warehouse and office facility, Fechtel Beverage and Sales, Inc., 1616 West Main, now distributes five types of beverages.

The new 17,000 square-foot warehouse and office was opened May 12, 1975, after the company moved in two days before.

The building has complete office space; a special storage area on a partial second floor which is used to store novelty items, such as coolers; a large walk-in cooler used to store kegs of beer; and a loading dock for boxcars as well as truck-trailers.

Fechtel employs 13 persons and distributes its products throughtout nine counties. The company is the area distributor for Schlitz, Old Milwaukee, Stag and the newest addition to their line, Olympia beer, as well as Schlitz Malt Liquor.

The new warehouse is large enough to allow all of the company's delivery trucks to park inside at night. Fechtel also has its own railroad siding at the building.

The structure was built for Fechtel by Tempel-Callison Co. and is made of concrete block with a brick front.

Consumers names 2 new managers here

New managers for the Consumer's East supermarket, 701 East Broadway, and the Consumer's West supermarket, Thompson Hills Shopping Center, were named during the past year.

Clarence Silvey, formerly assistant manager of Consumer's East, was named manager of Consumer's West in May. Silvey, who came to Sedalia in 1970 from Moberly, formerly served as assistant manager of the Kroger supermarket, which was located in the building now occupied by Consumer's East.

One major change in the Consumer's West store implemented since Silvey assumed control has been the removal of the store restaurant. The space formerly occupied by the restaurant is now the center of the store's non-food section, featuring such items as records, health aids, and magazines.

The new manager of the Consumer's East store, named in August, is Bob Wasson, who moved to Sedalia from Joplin, where he had also been employed at a Consumer's supermarket.

Wasson has been in the grocery business for the past 15 years, spending most of that time in southern California.

Firm tied to computer

The local branch office of CIT Financial Services (CITFS), located in the State Fair Shopping Center, is now linked to what company officials term "one of the most complex commercial computer systems ever developed."

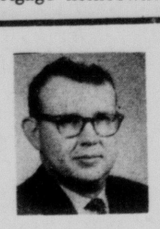

Benefits afforded by the new system include simplified processing of transactions, faster and more accurate services, a more convenient payment method and less personal record keeping, according to G. W. Bernheimer, CITFS manager. It is capable of performing more than 200 different functions such as completing loan documentation for customers, retrieving information about a customer's account, and compiling 150 detailed reports including daily operating statements formerly prepared manually.

As of the first of the year, all CITFS branch offices in the continental United States, more than 800 in all, will be linked to the complex data processing network, it was reported.

The computer linkup was created by a collaboration between Eastern Airlines Computer Sciences and CITFS, that began in 1971.

"Instead of designing a system independently or leasing one of the existing systems offered to us, our company decided to tap the considerable expertise and bank of equipment that had evolved at Eastern during development of the airline's computerized reservation and ticketing system," explained CITFS president Glen E. Jorgensen.

CITFS offers a wide range of consumer services including personal loans, second mortgage homeowner loans in many states and the financing of mobile homes and recreational vehicles. It also finances and leases industrial and business equipment and automotive fleets and offers an income tax service in most states. The firm is a subsidiary of CIT Financial Corp., a multi-line financial services company with assets of more than $7 billion.

Ownership of 52 years changes for company

The Midwest Auto Stores company, a chain of 13 automobile supply and equipment stores founded locally 52 years ago by the late R. J. Hausam, was sold last April to J. P. Knight and Sons, Inc., Arlington, Tex.

At the time of the sale, the company was operated by Hausam's son, Paul Hausam, 1001 State Fair Blvd., who assumed control in 1941. When he took over, the firm had 11 stores but later expanded to 13 branch stores in Kansas and Missouri and 23 associate stores. The company's headquarters is at 610 South Hancock.

Commenting on some of the lighter moments of his years as president of the company, Hausam recalled the gigantic Paul Bunyon figure which for many years stood at the company's Columbia store. Purchased in the 1950's for about $2,000, the landmark statute was moved to Moberly several years ago when Columbia officials ruled that it violated a city ban against billboards and other large advertising markers.

"I didn't get any more of them because they cost so much, but that one sure got a lot of attention, that's for sure," Hausam said.

Another advertising animal purchased by Hausam for use in Columbia was also eventually taken down — but it didn't leave the city. A life-size tiger figure, purchased for $250, was later donated to the University of Missouri athletic department where it rested near the press box at Faurot Field football games this fall. Before that, it had cruised atop a Columbia cab, gathering all sorts of attention.

"I got a call from the athletic department and they finally convinced me it was a legitimate request," he said. "I gave it to the University and I saw it on TV this fall when the M.U.-Nebraska game was on."

Hausam and his family are constructing a house near Lincoln, where they will move following its completion.

"It has taken some doing, because we are doing most of the work on it ourselves," he said. "But it's a challenge and one we all feel will be justly rewarded."

The Knight organization, since assuming control of the auto stores, has expanded various lines of merchandise and is currently involved in remodeling all of the company stores. A remodeling project involving the local store, 119 East Fourth, was completed late last year.

"We're primarily dressing the stores up a little to provide more sales space and to make them all look more modern," explained division manager Loren Hood.

Tough year keeps advances low-key

Sedalia has made it through a financially tough year and the advances made by the city have been "low-profile," Larry Melton, former executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said recently.

Despite the recessionary period of 1975, Melton said, "if times were all that bad, we wouldn't have had 80 new members in the Chamber of Commerce," Melton said.

In order for Sedalia to be a more progressive city, Melton said he believes the city needs a city administrator who would be a full-time employe, working with different departments on budget and administrative problems.

"We have an immediate need for an over-all city administrator. There's nobody looking over every department and working with each department," Melton said.

He also expressed concern over what he considers inadequate educational funds. He said that better education in Sedalia would prevent young people from leaving the city. it would teach them trades that could be applied here, which would bring in industry and new jobs. Melton said these ideas should be of higher priority to Sedalians than streets and sewers.

Melton said the average age of a Sedalian is 36 years. He said this means most Sedalians are either of school age or are retired. Neither group is a major financial contributor to a city, he said.

The downtown merchants have been more successful this year in that they are advertising and merchandising more effectively, Melton said. Advertising is crucial to the success of any business, far more so now than in the past, because Sedalia merchants must compete with Jefferson City, Columbia and Independence, because travel is easy and other shopping centers are accessible, Melton said.

New trailers

Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., Inc., 2503 West Broadway, is producing two new all-purpose, tilt trailers for 1976. The single-axle model, with a 1,000-pound capacity, is ideal for lawn and garden tractors, golf carts and motorcycles. It features a spring-loaded tilting bed and measures 4½-by-10½ feet. A tandem model with a six-foot wide bed and a 2,400-pound load capacity for larger and heavier equipment is also in production.

Kirby Co. occupies new home

New at 703 South Ohio is the Kirby Co. John Holem, owner and manager, said the move from 16th and Quisenberry was made in April. The new store has 2,800 square feet of floor space compared to 1,200 square feet at the previous location.

He has a 15-year lease on the building from Dr. J. W. Boger. Holem, who has been with Kirby for 24 years, has offered sales and service in Sedalia for 15 years.

Holem says that his basic Kirby upright vacuum cleaner is a "versatile piece of equipment." It can shampoo carpet, wax and polish floors and can be turned into a tank-type cleaner for above-floor cleaning. Power tools are available for drilling, buffing, sanding, polishing and grinding, Holem said.

Holem, who is the exclusive Kirby dealer in this area, said he offers complete repair on all makes of Kirby. He estimated that he has $5,000 worth of parts in stock.

Helm said the move to 703 South Ohio has primarily made his store more accessible to his customers. He feels that 1976 will be "a good year."

Expansion programs underway

Two major expansion programs by Sedalia restaurants are underway and should be completed by next month.

McDonald's, 1611 South Limit, is adding a dining room and a storage room, while the Pizza Hut, 1425 South Limit is adding to its dining area, as well as the kitchen.

Ernie Keele, manager of McDonald's here, said the dining room and storage area additions will each be 24-by-30 feet. The work is being done by Arthur Ostmann General Contractors, Inc., St. Charles, and should be completed by February, he said.

At the Pizza Hut, Lynn Travers, manager, said an 15-foot addition will be made to the dining area and 14 feet will be added to the kitchen on the building's east side. New equipment will be installed in the kitchen, and the entire remodelled area will be covered by a bright red aluminum roof. A new Pizza Hut sign will also be installed.

The completed dining area will increase the firm's capacity to 112 persons, he said. The store also plans to expand its parking area.

Travers has been associated with Pizza Hut for four years, working in Boonville and Warrensburg before coming here. He is a graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia.

TWO GOLD RUSH STAIRCASES REMAIN

WEAVERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Seven spiral staircases leading from sidewalks to balconies adorned the outsides of buildings in Weaverville more than a century ago. This architectural feature distinguished Weaverville from all other California gold rush towns.

Today only two of these unusual staircases still stand.

General appeal goal of new store

Books and Boodle is a new bookstore at 115 South Ohio that opened Nov. 24. Mrs. Jean Sims, manager, describes her store as a "bookstore that would appeal to everyone."

The store features a large selection of paperbacks, art prints, old advertising posters, and Broadway soundtracks.

Various categories of books include art history, history, interior decorating, sewing, children's fiction, biographies for children, sports, movie and film biographies, reference books, and about 2,500 paperbacks.

Mrs. Sims said this is a new venture for her. She is the only employe and owns the business; the building is owned by John Webb, Warrensburg.

Only bookshelves and some new wallpaper were needed before the bookstore opened. The building was previously occupied by BJ's Paraphernalia Shop.

Store hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Mrs. Sims said she is particularly proud of the "giant selection" of paperbacks, and estimates about 1,000 hardbacks are stocked in the store. Books not in stock may be ordered, she said.

KEEP FRESH AIR INSIDE CAR

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carbon monoxide in the low levels that are often found in the passenger compartment of a car can narrow the driver's field of vision, slow down his action time and decrease his ability to concentrate.

Even these small amounts of carbon monoxide can be lethal because they can cause serious accidents. The National Automobile Club advises motorists to avoid driving for long periods of time in heavy traffic and to keep fresh air circulating through the car on open roads.

Something for all at store

Tina Smith 's Tina Anne Imports, State Fair Shopping Center, offers Sedalia a line of products designed to add an international flavor in purchases.

"I decided to try it (imported gift items), ' ' Mrs. Smith said, "It was a new line of products for around here. ' '

Among her line of imported merchandise are wrought iron flower stands, pottery, macrame flower pot holders, statues, pictures, and even a Buddha.

Mrs. Smith said her customers have been interested in the items from other countries and in the coming year she plans to expand her line.

"As new as I was and no more advertising than I put out, I consider I had a good Christmas, ' ' she said.

Repat business was good, she said, and the "craze for houseplants ' ' has been a factor in making an 8½ inch flower pot one of her most popular items with customers.

Most of the imports in the shop are from Mexico, but there are a few items from India and Taiwan.

Mrs. Smith said she hopes to get a bigger coverage of countries and products in the future. She said a European line should be in during the year.

Her first orders were through a company in Jefferson City, but she is now planning to do her own buying, she said.

The Whiskey Insurrection (July-November 1794) was when farmers in western Pennsylvania revolted unsuccessfully against the excise tax of 1791.

Penney's busy after finding new home

Staying busy

Jim Edwards, foreground, manager of the local J.C. Penney store, checks some figures in the store's catalogue center as merchandising manager Steve Kettle looks on. The store was relocated in the Thompson Hills Shopping Center last October after being in the downtown area for more than 50 years. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Retail sales at the local J.C. Penney store "have exceeded all our expectations" since the store moved Oct. 1 from the Trust Building at Third and Ohio to the Thompson Hills Shopping Center, store manager Jim Edwards reported recently.

Particularly striking, Edwards said, has been a significant increase in store catalogue sales during the three-month period from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31.

"This has been surprising," he noted. "We just attribute this to the increase in store traffic and our improved handling facilities."

The store, which had been located in the dowtown area for 55 years, now has a total of 30,000 square feet of space in its new location, or 53 per cent over the amount of space in its former downtown location. Approximately 20,500 square feet of this total space is occupied by retail sales operations.

The new location reflects two trends being adopted by the Penney chain of stores in recent years, Edwards said. These trends are relocating in shopping centers away from downtown traffic congestion and occupying one-story structures to eliminate the inconvenience of stairs.

The local Penney's store is classified as a "soft-line" operation, meaning that it handles only clothing, a store spokesman explained.

Former local Penney store manager Paul Hedderich has many fond memories of the downtown establishment he managed from 1935 to 1959. He especially recalls the numerous visits made by the company founder, the late J.C. Penney.

"Mr. Penney had a large cattle operation on a ranch near his home in Hamilton (Mo.) and he regularly exhibited cattle at the State Fair," Hedderich recalled. "He always stopped in and visited us then ... as a good-will ambassador ... He also stopped through several other times as well."

One other memorable incident during his years as manager, Hedderich stated, was a fire in the mid-1940's which broke out on the third floor of the Trust Building. Although the Penney store at that time was located only on the first floor and basement of the building, some smoke and water damage to the store resulted from the fire which was contained to the third floor of the building. Because of that fire, a remodeling project was initiated, resulting in the expansion of the Penney store to the second floor of the Trust Building.

IF YOU'VE WONDERED ABOUT MILEAGE SIGNS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The signs posted alongside the highway that give the motorist the distance to a nearby town or city, says the National Automobile Club, actually measure the number of miles from the sign to the City Hall of the next town.

Police department stability is needed

These days one is hard-pressed to keep up with developments at the Sedalia police department.

On Friday, Mayor Jerry Jones appointed another interim chief of police to succeed Gary Dey, who abruptly resigned Wednesday. Dey would only say that his decision was based on "personal reasons — which must have come upon him rather suddenly, since as recently as last Monday he was still giving every indication of staying on.

It goes without saying that the pressures on Dey were extraordinary. He stepped into a department that is a veritable hotbed of discontent (especially so after he recently revealed that in his opinion several officers need to go), and he no doubt found the going rough.

On the whole, we feel Dey acquitted himself rather well in the position he held for less than five weeks, considering the circumstances. Certainly many of the reforms and changes he was attempting to make were basically sound.

Sedalia now has a Kansas City police captain filling the position on a temporary basis. Capt. James A. Reynolds has the age and experience that is needed, and comes highly recommended by Kansas City Police Chief Joseph McNamara. We are sure we speak for the community when we wish him well in this difficult position.

A final resolution of the turmoil that has affected the police department is urgently needed. The Police Personnel Board set the stage for this Friday, when it scheduled a public hearing for former Police Chief William Miller — Feb. 12.

In something of a departure from its normal function, the board made several recommendations in other areas. It proposed a $100 across-the-board pay raise for policemen, and — presumably in a gesture on behalf of women's liberation — even urged that a woman be hired to fill an existing vacancy for a field police officer.

Certainly the pay scale of the police department leaves much to be desired, as the board demonstrated by a comparative study with surrounding cities. Raises must come, but this should be part and parcel of an overall effort to upgrade the quality of the Sedalia police department—whatever that might entail.

Several good ideas along these lines, some submitted by the Concerned Citizens Committee, have been recommended recently. These include physical fitness programs, incentives for continuing education, the hiring of a drug specialist, and the like.

Many of these, and other ideas, will of course have to be postponed until some stability is restored to the police department. We hope that time is not too far off.

Merry-go-round

Hoover went after the obvious Reds

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The late J. Edgar Hoover was an incurable curmudgeon, conservative in his ways, narrow in his outlook, who fiercely believed the words "My country, right or wrong."

He used his enormous power as director of the FBI to uphold his viewpoints. The least opposition, by his lights, bordered on treason.

In the name of patriotism, he brought a touch of totalitarianism to the United States. It is important, therefore, to understand how he operated.

This is the reason we have been dwelling on his record. In past columns, we have reported how he collected potential blackmail on prominent Americans, how he used his files to intimidate our elected leaders, how he destroyed with whispers those who crossed him.

All the while, he posed as the crusader against public enemies, Communist spies and other forces of evil. In his latter years, he devoted most of his energies to spy chasing.

He concentrated upon the Communist Party, USA — a collection of cranks who mimicked Moscow and shook their fists at Washington. However, they were poor spies, who made little attempt to disguise their activities but, on the contrary, tried to attract the spotlight.

The professionals, who did the real spying, avoided the spotlight. They stayed carefully in the shadows, keeping as inconspicuous as possible.

Meanwhile, the Communist Party was easy to infiltrate, and the card-carrying Communists were easy to identify. So Hoover built up the party as a national menace, which the FBI could triumphantly, if conveniently, expose.

The more Hoover attacked the party fanatics, the more the real spies must have secretly smiled. Counter-espionage experts have told us bitterly that Hoover assigned hundreds of agents to investigate the noisy fanatics while the real spies were left undetected.

The old FBI bulldog, according to former associates, was more interested in appearances than in results. His agents had spent five years, for example, planting a counterspy upon the Czechs. It was one of the FBI's major successes in penetrating a sophisticated spy ring.

The Czechs came to trust the counterspy, who planted a microphone for them behind a bookcase in the State Department's Czechoslovakian Affairs office. This gave the U. S. a unique opportunity to feed phony information into the microphone and, thereby, to confuse the Soviet bloc with plausible but false facts, figures and names.

Yet Hoover was so delighted over a legitimate espionage success that, for the sake of two days of favorable publicity, he boasted to the press about the Czech eavesdropping and blew the whole operation.

Instead of the confusion that could have been spread, Hoover got two lower-level Czech diplomats kicked out of the country. The agents who worked five years on the case still grumble over the disaster.

Hoover's concern about appearances went so far that he insisted his surveillance teams not only should use standard sedans but should keep them washed. The FBI sedans soon became so recognizable that the G-men may as well have been driving painted police cars.

Agents engaged in some vital surveillance in the midwest begged Washington to let them rent some old taxicabs that would look less suspicious. But Hoover told an aide angrily: "I won't approve any use of taxicabs."

As a result, the spies quickly detected the spic-and-span sedans following them around, and the surveillance had to be dropped. It was Hoover's fixation on cleanliness, complained one agent, that made the FBI cars even more obvious.

"To hell with the spies!" bellowed the agent. "I'm gonna wash my car. I can't get in trouble if I bungle a case, but I can get fired if I don't wash my (expletive deleted) car!"

To save money, Hoover also used junky, antiquated surveillance devices, which were adequate enough to fool the party regulars but were easily detected by the professional spies.

A Soviet-bloc spy, for example, quickly discovered a bug that the FBI had planted in his office. U. S. counterspies learned that he took it to his bosses who laughed uproariously at its antique construction. They concluded that it must have been planted by some amateur local police, because they assumed erroneously that the FBI wouldn't use such obsolete equipment.

Another time, agents managed to attach a magnetic beeper to a spy's car so they could follow at a distance. But the signal faded, and they lost the car. An old device had been used because the FBI was too cheap to buy modern homing devices which could be slipped into the gasoline tank.

The FBI's most famous spy case was the arrest of Soviet agent Rudolf Abel in New York City. While FBI agents did some excellent surveillance work, the case was really broken when a member of Abel's ring simply walked into a U. S. intelligence office and spilled the beans on Abel's operation.

From our own examination of the FBI's counterintelligence work, which is now under study also by both the Senate and House, we are convinced that it should be split off from the routine criminal investigations.

Crime: still shocking, still unattacked

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — In his State of the Union message last Monday, the President devoted only a few paragraphs to the unyielding problem of crime in the United States. Understandably, because other parts of the speech had more pizzazz, his comments on crime claimed little notice. They merit your thought.

Kilpatrick

Mr. Ford hammered anew at the same hard themes he developed last summer in a special message on crime. Congress made little response in its first session. If the ideal of domestic tranquillity is to be taken seriously, Congress owes it to the people to make some response now.

Here and there, it is true, the situation improves, but the improvement is only here and there, and it is a poor kind of improvement: The rate of increase declines. That is the best that can be said. Otherwise the picture is bleak.

The most recent figures we have are for 1974, and these admittedly are incomplete. From one-third to one-half of all serious crime never is reported to the police or to the FBI. The figures long ago ceased to shock — we are numb to crime statistics — but they cry out for legislative action.

Serious crime in 1974 was 18 per cent greater than in 1973. The stunning increase was from 8.6 million such crimes in 1973 to 10.2 million in 1974. The increase was bad enough in major cities — up 12 per cent — but the increase in suburbs and rural areas was still worse: up 20 per cent. The pattern is sickening. Since 1969, the number of persons under 18 arrested for crime has grown by 16 per cent. Ten per cent of those arrested in 1974 for violent crime were female, and a fourth of these were girls of 17 or younger.

Enough. Our country is plagued by crime, infested with crime, and in some neighborhoods terrorized by crime. The problem is overwhelmingly a problem for the states and localities to deal with, but they have dealt with it poorly. Mr. Ford's recommendations necessarily deal with federal offenses and federal law enforcement, but his tough approach should provide a model for all jurisdictions.

The President starts with the grim truth that most crime goes unpunished. Fewer than half the crimes of violence, and only 18 per cent of the crimes against property, are cleared by arrest. Those who are arrested seldom are tried or convicted on the charges originally brought against them; those found guilty seldom stay behind bars for long. At every point there is a watering down: plea bargaining, probation, early parole, suspended senences.

The machinery of justice simply is inadequate to cope with the volume of crime. Mr. Ford recommends more judges, more prosecutors, more marshals. He proposes four new federal prisons. On Monday he returned to the concept of mandatory prison sentences for certain offenses. This is an idea whose time most surely has come.

Specifically, the President asked mandatory sentences in federal cases involving the use of a gun. He urges a punishment that could not be bargained away in some cozy little meeting among the defendant's lawyer, the prosecutor and the judge. He wants mandatory sentences for dealers in hard drugs. Where these criminals are concerned, Mr. Ford would take off the kid gloves. Lock 'em up! His aim is to get the repeaters off the streets, and to keep them off the streets.

The merits of sheer incarceration seldom are sufficiently acclaimed. Most serious crime is the work of criminals who have been around the track once or twice before. They are cold-blooded professionals, and they are virtually beyond redemption. In all but a tiny fraction of such cases, efforts at rehabilitation are a waste of time and money. Law-abiding people have a right to demand that these vicious misfits be put away until time turns them into old men.

The Ford program, extended to the states, would require major outlays to expand the machinery of justice. State legislators, pressed from every quarter, may be reluctant to provide the courtrooms, judges, prosecutors and new prisons that will be needed if the incidence of crime is to be effectively reduced. But the President's approach is basically sound. It ought to be pursued.

Christmas lingers in homes

WASHINGTON — You would think by now that Christmas would be over. But for millions of children in America, it isn't.

Buchwald

I discovered this when I visited the Carmichaels the other evening. As I walked into the house, Mrs. Carmichael was yelling at her 12-year-old son. "No, you're not going to any movie until you write your grandmother thanking her for the lovely scarf she sent you for Christmas."

"Aw, Ma, I'll write her tomorrow."

"You've been saying that for three weeks. You haven't written one thank-you note, and you're going to do it tonight. And while you're at it, you can thank Uncle Arthur and Aunt Sue for the fruitcake."

"Who are Uncle Arthur and Aunt Sue?"

"They're not really your uncle and aunt. Uncle Arthur works in Daddy's office. He's Daddy's boss."

"Good grief."

"And don't forget to write a note to Uncle Lester who sent you the Washington Redskins wool hat that didn't fit."

"Should I tell him it didn't fit?"

"Don't you dare. Tell him it was perfect and just what you wanted."

"That's stupid. I didn't want it, and if it doesn't fit, why should I say I liked it?"

"Because when someone sends you a gift, you're supposed to thank him."

"Okay. If I write them, can I go to a movie?"

Mrs. Carmichael took out a list and said, "There are several more people you have to thank. Grandma Collins sent you a sweater, Aunt Harriet a pair of gloves, Uncle Jack and Aunt Arlene a Walt Disney cereal plate. Wait a minute — I think Aunt Arlene sent you the gloves and Uncle Jack the Walt Disney plate. I can't make out my own handwriting."

"Why can't I say 'Thanks for the gift'?" Tommy wanted to know.

"Because it's not personal enough. Relatives want to make sure when they buy something for Christmas that the gift is really appreciated."

"What am I supposed to say? " Tommy asked, taking out a yellow lined pad.

"Tell them it was the best gift you got all Christmas, and it was just what you wanted."

"You want me to say that about a Walt Disney cereal plate?"

"I don't care what they sent you," Mrs. Carmichael said. "It's what they want to hear that counts."

"How's this?" Tommy said as he was writing. "Dear Uncle Jack and Aunt Arlene. Thanks for the great Walt Disney plate. I really liked it and would have eaten from it except my sister Estelle stepped on it and broke it the same day."

"You don't have to mention Estelle broke it," said Mrs. Charmichael. "Just say you love it and had wanted one for three years."

"I thought you told me I wasn't supposed to lie."

"That's not lying. Well, it may be lying, but it's all right to fib where Christmas gifts are concerned. If everyone told the truth about the gifts he received, there would be no Christmas. While you're at it, don't forget to thank Aunt Ellen for the electric toothbrush and the Baxters for the woolen shirt which we had to exchange. But don't say we exchanged it, as you don't want to hurt their feelings."

"I'll never get to the movies," Tommy protested.

"Start writing," Mrs. Carmichael said, "and be careful of your spelling."

"Boy," said Tommy, "adults sure take the fun out of Christmas. All they make you do is tell one lie after another."

A meeting will be held ... Monday night at the public library to organize in Sedalia a branch of the National Conferene of Christians and Jews.

95 years ago

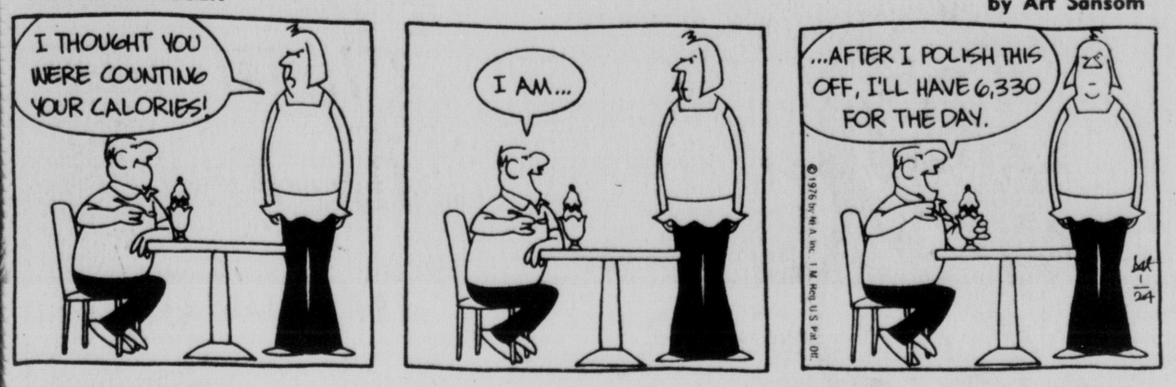

Sedalia has been cursed with more detective frauds than any other city of her age in the United States. No sooner is one of these dead beats gone than another drops in, and, sad to say, never fails to find victims.

Shopping centers

The boom in shopping centers appears to be slowing down. An estimated 1,100 shopping centers are expected to be completed in 1975, down from 1,300 in 1974 and 1,600 in 1973. Altogether, there are an estimated 16,000 shopping centers across the country. Reasons cited for the current slowdown: the rising cost of land, construction and interest rates and the fact that supply may have caught up with demand in many areas, The Conference Board reports.

Opening lead — A ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When your partner uses Blackwood and you happen to be void of some suit you should have some way of showing that you have that specific first-round control.

The Jacoby method of handling such a situation is to bid six, not five, in the suit you would normally respond in if you consider that your void is a valuable one.

If South were void of either spades or diamonds, he would simply respond five diamonds to his partner's Blackwood. But his missing suit happened to be clubs and West had bid clubs. So South jumped right to six diamonds to show one ace and an apparently important void.

This six-diamond bid made it easy for North to bid seven hearts and it was just as easy for South to wrap up 13 tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

A Maine reader wants to know if it is ever correct to lie in responding to a Blackwood four-notrump call.

There are times when everyone has felt that he has overbid and that he wants to discourage his partner by responding to show one ace less than he actually holds, but we don't recommend this procedure. If you do respond wrong and do miss a slam your partner will never forgive you.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Storage problems solved by local firm

Specialty is space

In a crowded world, this Sedalia business offers something unique for everyone — space for rent. Owned by Bob Wolf, Space Unlimited, located just off west Main Street, offers rental space for storage items to industry and the average homeowner. Wolf believes he fulfills a definite need for local residents.

(Democrat-Capital Photo)

Bob Wolf has something for sale, and he says his product is for everybody, from homeowners to industry. His product does not have weight or volume. It cannot be carried and almost everyone walks through it every day. His product is space.

Wolf manages Space Unlimited, which he describes as "a new concept oriented toward good, dry, clean storage space, not just for industry, but for you and me."

Space Unlimited's concept of storage is not geared toward the home mover, but to industry and individuals who need storage space for from two weeks to a year or more.

Those using the service are afforded 24-hour access and their own key to "come and go as they please," Wolf said.

He said the storage buildings are equipped with movable walls allowing the firm to offer a variety of storage spaces from 48 square feet to 400 or 500 square feet.

He emphasized that industrial storage was limited to non-flamables, as protection against loss. He noted that insurance is available on stored items, through Space Unlimited.

Wolf said a need exists in the Pettis County area for a service like that provided by Space Unlimited.

"A lot of folks have boats or trailers that need to be stored," Wolf maintains, "and it always seems people need a little more space to store." Wolf noted that area military personnel might like the services of his company "because of the many moves they make."

No matter what the storage needs, Space Unlimited has a lot of space and it's for rent.

Hamer in practice with Bryden

Dr. Brown M. Hamer Jr., 1008 South Misssuri, set up practice with Dr. J. W. Bryden in February last year following his graduation from the Logan School of Chiropractory in St. Louis.

Hamer, a native of Marshall, received his undergraduate training at the Missouri Valley College there and set up his offices last January and began practicing Feb. 11. The shaky economic situation affected, in part, Hamer's decision to join Bryden.

"It's hard times all over," Hamer said. He said chiropractors call "the first few years (out of school) the starvation period." The bleak economic outlook last year-coupled with his just graduating and setting up a new practice made business a little slow at first. Hamer said, however, that with time things have picked up to the point where he now has about 20 patients per week.

Not content to end his education after graduation, Hamer said he has been attending seminars in St. Louis and Kansas City for chiropractors. One seminar especially of interest he attended last March in St. Louis on acupuncture. Hamer said that chiropractic acupuncture differed from acupuncture in that the chiropractor uses his fingers to massage the acupunctural pressure points.

Nothing mindless about Browne

Roscoe Lee Browne

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — There is a notion that most actors are mindless puppets totally controlled by childlike emotionality, narcissism and sexuality, and capable only of the thoughts put into their heads by writers and directors. Famous filmmakers like Alfred Hitchcock speak of treating actors like cattle, and fan magazines exploit suspicions that actors exist in a fantasy world of swapping mates and creating unwanted pregnancies. However, these images do a disservice to most of the accomplished actors in the world.

Roscoe Lee Browne is a case in point. As a human being, he is certainly emotional and sexual. As an actor, he meticulously follows directions and speaks the speech given him by the writer. But as a human being and an actor, Browne is well-read, eloquent, spiritual, deeply thoughtful and filled with a wide range of real-life experiences.

This becomes abundantly clear within a few minutes after meeting Browne in his comfortable trailer directly outside Universal's Sound Stage 22, where he is in the process of filming a segment of his new NBC series, McCoy, with costar Tony Curtis. Browne broadcasts his greeting through a melodic voice that reveals intense training for public speaking and classical theater. Indeed, a major part of the experience of being with Browne is the experience of listening to Browne.

A graduate of Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, he did post-graduate work in comparative literature and French at Vermont's Middlebury College and at Columbia University in New York. He later taught these subjects at Lincoln University, which conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters in 1972.

The other, physical, side of Browne is equally impressive. At 5 feet 10, he has broad, muscular shoulders that cap a powerful, compact build — the build of a former U.S. international track star. His face is alive with expression.

On McCoy, which is a new segment of the NBC Sunday Mystery Movie, Browne plays Gideon Gibbs, McCoy's (Tony Curtis) partner in crime against criminals. In order to live in the high, gambling style to which they are accustomed, McCoy and Gibbs set about cheating con-men out of their ill-gotten gains through a series of cleverly planned and executed ruses.

(CBS) — The finals of the Chicago pro tennis tournament are featured on Women's Tennis Champions.

(ABC) — Live coverage of the third round in the Hawaiian Open golf tournament from the Waialae Country Club in Honolulu, Hawaii.

(NBC) — Jane Fonda won an Oscar for her performance as a call girl stalked by a killer in "Klute," on NBC Saturday Night at the Movies. (Repeat)

(ABC) — Glen Campbell, Aretha Franklin and Olivia Newton-John cohost the third annual American Music Awards, live from Hollywood.

Ask TV scout

Picture spot

I would like to get my dad a picture of James Garner. He is a great fan of Garner's. Where can I write for it? — Lisa Traylor, San Jose, Calif.

Garner's series, The Rockford Files, is filmed at Universal Studios. Write Jim there, Universal City, Calif. 91608.

All relative

What relation is David Carradine to his "old lady"? — C.G., Chicago, Ill.

"Old lady" is a pop term used in place of wife when a man is living with, but not married to, a woman. That's how it is with David.

The television listings printed by The Sedalia Democrat-Capital are furnished by television stations in advance of publication. Last-minute changes in scheduling, therefore, may not be shown. The absence of an individual channel's listings indicates failure by the station to furnish a schedule.

A Candid Chat With Outrageous Valerie Perrine

Our Pro Football Draft Preview— An Inside Report

Is the "Melting Pot" Working? Our Ethnic Pride And Problems

ONLY IN AMERICA: South Dakota's James Abourezk, of Arab descent, and his Jewish colleague in the Senate, Abe Ribicoff of Connecticut

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR REP. JOHN M. MURPHY (D-N.Y.)

Evel Knievel says he was hurt by your proposal that his last jump be kept off TV because too many youngsters try to imitate him. Why are you so opposed to Evel?—Roger Lewis, Hackensack, N.J.

● Knievel wasn't hurt as much as the boy who is paralyzed for life from the neck down and whose family is facing hospital bills topping $100,000; or the boy who has no spleen, half a pancreas, is uninsurable and unacceptable to medical school; or the boy who was impaled on his handlebars—all in imitation of Knievel. Literally thousands of similar cases followed the broadcast of this lunacy. I was under the impression that death and dismemberment as family fun went the way of bear baiting and the gladiators. Yet ABC continues to flaunt this as "sport." I am pressing for Congressional hearings on television violence in an effort to bring acceptable standards to network programming.

FOR CYBILL SHEPHERD, actress-model

How much time each day do you devote to fixing yourself up?—R. C., York, Pa.

● I have a rule: look in the mirror as little as possible. I try to ignore my face, hair and figure, and all those rules about dieting. Women who are always preening and consulting their mirrors have a tense, vacuous look that I don't want.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

You have indicated that your family is the inspiration for many of your articles. What will you do when your children "fly the coop"?—Mary Ellen Wallace, Los Angeles, Calif.

● I would not have chosen the word inspiration. "Target" is a better one. When my children are gone, I plan to burn plastic for eight days, board up the bedrooms, buy five rooms of white furniture, read a book, learn how to use a telephone and write a cookbook or some other kind of fiction.

FOR DELLA REESE, singer

What was your nicest show-business experience?—B.R., Little Rock, Ark.

● Getting a $5,000 royalty check in 1958. I'd never had one that big, and I sat up all night staring at it. It didn't seem real, so next morning I cashed the check, took the money home in assorted denominations and carpeted the floor with the bills. I sat down in the middle of the money and, when I was convinced it wouldn't vanish before my eyes, gathered it all up, took it back to the bank and deposited it in a brand-new account.

FOR HAROLD ROBBINS, author of "The Lonely Lady"

What kind of books do you read?—G.B., Boise, Idaho

● I read purely for pleasure. A novel should be entertaining. If I enjoy it, it's good. If I'm bored—no matter how well written it is—it's bad. I never criticize a book's style and technique, just its holding power.

FOR LIBERACE

What is your most striking outfit?—J.B., Washington, D.C.

● A silver lamé, flowing floor-length cape with ermine ties and a matching three-piece suit underneath. I wore it for the first time in England, at a Royal Command Performance. Since it was such an important occasion, I decided to give them the works. The Queen Mother liked it; I was flattered she noticed. I told her it was one of a kind, and said I didn't have it cleaned, I had it polished. She's a good lady. She let herself go and gave a nice laugh.

FOR JIMMIE WALKER, star of "Good Times"

What's it like to be a star?—L.P. Chattanooga, Tenn.

● I'm not a star yet. When I am, I'll let you know. You're not there until you're there. And once you get there, it doesn't take too long before you know it. [Editor's Note: FAMILY WEEKLY readers seemed to have no doubt about Jimmie Walker's "star quality" when they voted him, overwhelmingly, "Most Popular Supporting Actor on TV" for 1975.]

FOR YUL BRYNNER, star of Broadway's "Home Sweet Homer"

How do you feel about Telly Savalas, Isaac Hayes and all those who have copied your "hairstyle"?—B. H., Asbury Park, N.J.

● I'm very grateful. Now they've got the job of answering all those lousy questions about why they're bald. Now they can give all those lousy answers that I used to give.

FOR CAROL BURNETT, author of "What I Want To Be When I Grow Up"

When you were a child, what did you think you'd grow up to be?—M.R., Easton, Pa.

● Many things. A cartoonist on a newspaper. Then I wanted to be "Brenda Starr, glamorous girl reporter." But when I entered UCLA and, as part of a journalism course, had to take theater arts, all that changed. That's because I found myself in a play in which I was cast as an elderly woman, with a two-word part—"I'm back." It got me a huge laugh, and from then on I was hooked on show business.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is Nancy Walker the same in real life—always cracking acid jokes?—M.W., San Antonio, Texas

● Definitely not. In fact, she's almost the reverse of what she is on screen in "Rhoda" and "Macmillan and Wife." "Being funny does not come easily," she said seriously. "One has to work at it. Work very hard, in fact, and when I'm not working, I like to relax and let my own personality and nature take over." The real Nancy Walker is inclined toward pessimism. "My attitude is that things will not turn out all right. If they do, my immediate reaction is that it was a fluke, or a one-in-a-million chance." Nancy has been happily married to David Craig for 25 years and says theirs is not a house shrouded in gloom. "My husband and I are opposites. It's a perfect arrangement. If we were of the same temperament, we'd either be grinning all the time or else bogged down with the blues, both of which would be boring."

Nancy Walker

"Sometimes I think I would be better off if I shut up. But it just isn't in me. I'm too emotional. I'm a screamer. I'm a crier. I'm the world's greatest crier, particularly in movies."

Valerie Perrine, Hollywood's New Kind of "Mother Earth" Symbol

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

I arrived at Valerie Perrine's house only to be met by five ferocious and yapping dogs—three Great Danes, an Irish setter and a Mastiff. A good-looking young man working in the garden shouted, "Go through the garage and I'll open up for you!" With the dogs barking full blast, I uneasily hurried through the garage to the door the young man held open. I was led down a hallway, past a pair of torn Levi's draped on one wall, and into the living room where Valerie Perrine was yelling invectives at someone on the other end of the phone. When she finished, she offered me something to drink. By now her five dogs were all over me, apparently trying to lick me to death.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Why do you keep so many dogs?

VALERIE: They're the best alarm system I could have.

FW: But they aren't acting very dangerous.

VALERIE: That's because I'm in the house. I used to live in an apartment before I rented this place, and the landlord walked in one day, thinking the dogs were friendly because they always were when I was home. He never tried that again! They almost took his ear off.

FW: But wouldn't one or two big dogs be sufficient? Why so many?

VALERIE: When I was little, my parents wouldn't let me have any. So I showed them. How I showed them! In fact, everything I wasn't allowed to do, I love to do now.

FW: Like what?

VALERIE: I was told to not overdress or be overly made up. I was told who I could go out with, and who I couldn't see.

FW: What happened if you dated someone your father didn't approve of?

VALERIE: Once I went out with a garage mechanic and Daddy went after him with a gun.

FW: Did he get him?

VALERIE: No.

FW: When I walked in, I noticed a pair of torn Levi's draped on the wall like a picture. What's the meaning of them?

VALERIE: They remind me of when I was a happy hippie—fond remembrance of days gone by.

FW: What was the nicest part of those days?

VALERIE: No responsibility. Now I've got responsibility for a house, for the people who live here, my dogs, their dogs, my brother, my parents, my manicurist, pedicurist—it doesn't end...

FW: Is it worth it?

VALERIE: You bet it is!

FW: Before you got started in films, you worked as a show girl in Las Vegas for five years. In retrospect, did this help you or hurt you?

VALERIE: It hurt more than it helped.

FW: There were no advantages to working in Las Vegas all of those years?

VALERIE: Yes, there were. The money was good and I had a lot of time to read—mostly philosophy. [She broke into a grin.] I bet you didn't think a show girl would read Schopenhauer and Nietzsche, did you? But most of all, it gave me a chance to travel. I made two trips to Europe, once for a year, once for a year and a half. In fact, I fell in love with a dancer in Paris.

FW: Do you ever see yourself getting married and having children?

VALERIE: Yes, but it may be too late.

FW: What do you mean?

VALERIE: Well, I want to concentrate on my career for the next few years, and after that time I may be too old to have children, and then there's no use in getting married any more.

FW: Why are you so much against marriage?

VALERIE: I've lived ten years looking after myself. It would be too much of a shock to my system to share life with someone else.

FW: What was your parents' marriage like?

VALERIE: Terrible. My mother always said she would stay with my father until the kids were out of school, and that's exactly what she did. My father is still in Scottsdale.

FW: What kind of men do you like?

VALERIE: I've got no preference. I've never gone with two men of the same type. They can be young, old, rich, poor. I really don't care, except they must be intelligent and have a sense of humor.

FW: And have money?

VALERIE: Money isn't important. I'm making money on my own.

FW: How good are you in business?

VALERIE: It's laughable. I have a business manager and a lawyer and they put me on an allowance.

"Men can be young, old, rich, poor. I really don't care, except they must be intelligent and have a sense of humor."

FW: Do you stick to it?

VALERIE: Right now, yes. There really isn't much money I spend on anything. The house doesn't cost much. It's rented. Someday I want to buy my own.

FW: How did you get started enjoying travel so much?

VALERIE: I was born an Army brat and traveled all over the U.S., Japan and the Philippines. I used to speak fluent Japanese and Spanish and French. I've forgotten it all now, but I still like to look at Japanese movies on TV and can understand a few words. I like living abroad. I'm never going to settle in Hollywood. There are too many restrictions here.

FW: Such as?

VALERIE: Paying taxes. It's getting outrageous! I formed my own production company; I'm incorporated now to avoid paying taxes. Legally, of course. But I'm supporting so many people already, I feel I'm doing my share. I also ignore the speed limit, and a lot of other things.

FW: How did you like working with Dustin Hoffman?

VALERIE: He's marvelous! Like when I had the flu, he didn't just send me flowers; he actually brought me a tree to the hotel in Miami where we were staying. A beautiful tree!

FW: Do you think you're sometimes too frank?

VALERIE: Sometimes I think I would be better off if I shut up. But it just isn't in me. I'm too emotional. I'm a screamer, and I'm a crier. I'm the world's greatest crier, particularly in movies. When I saw "Doctor Zhivago" I couldn't get out of my seat when the lights went on again. I was still crying. And every time I heard "Lara's Theme" on the radio, I'd start crying all over again.

FW: What's your sign?

VALERIE: Virgo—Mother Earth. That's me, all right. I get involved in all my friends' affairs, and boy, can that get you into trouble!

FW: Would you care to elaborate?

VALERIE: There's this best girlfriend of mine—we've known each other since we were seven—and she was hanging around with this idiot. One day when I visited her with all my dogs, I said, "Look, I'm not going to leave you until you get rid of this idiot. I'm going to stay right here!"

FW: And did you?

VALERIE: Sure. I stayed for two months. She couldn't take my dogs, but I wouldn't leave. Her boyfriend finally walked out. Then I introduced her to someone and said, "He's the right man for you to marry." They were married a year ago and have been happy ever since.

FW: You were not exactly a youngster when you became a success in films. Do you think this is an advantage or a disadvantage?

VALERIE: I think it is a tremendous advantage because it helped me keep my head on my shoulders. If I were in my teens, I would have freaked out with all the attention I'm getting, and for a couple of months, I thought I would do just that anyway. But because I am older and have gone through a lot, I have gained the necessary strength to cope with what I am doing. At least I hope I have. FW

Is the "Melting Pot" Working—And Should It?

Compiled by Frances Spatz Leighton

Eleven Leaders on the Pain, Struggle and Fierce Pride of Being "Them" and "Us" at the Same Time

As America faces its 200th birthday, it is natural to wonder how well we have adjusted to our own identity as a land composed of many ethnic groups. FAMILY WEEKLY went to leading Congressmen and Senators of ethnic origin to find out how they answer some provocative questions like: Have you suffered slights or harassment because of your ethnic background? Should America continue to be a land of multi-heritage, or should there eventually be just a single heritage? Is there a conflict between the "melting pot" tradition and the concept of preserving one's ethnic identity? How does your ethnic background make you and America stronger?

Frank Annunzio
"All ethnic groups have had to battle slurs."

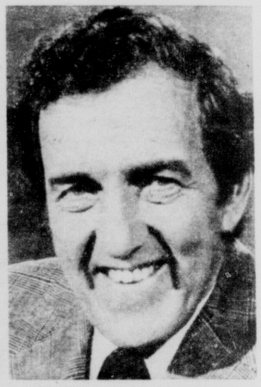

Abe Ribicoff
"I'm not here to repudiate the American dream."

Yvonne Burke
"I was expected to fit a certain mold."

James Abourezk
"The Indians mourned with us."

Edmund S. Muskie
"I remember the burning crosses."

REP. FRANK ANNUNZIO (Illinois)

On Capitol Hill, they call Frank Annunzio "Mr. Ethnic." One of his crusades, the legalizing of Columbus Day as a national holiday, became part of an omnibus bill on legal holidays.

I grew up interested in ethnic problems. My father was a tradesman. I worked my way through night school and earned a master's degree in education at DePaul University in Chicago. Like all children growing up in a large city, I had Irish, Jewish and black neighbors—and I had my share of fights. They'd call me "dago" or "wop"—and I'd slug them. All ethnic groups have had to battle slurs.

Growing up in a mixed neighborhood has made me a very strong American. We were a close-knit family. A deeply religious family. We commingled all the American and Italian holidays and customs, and I still do the same today. As a matter of fact, every Sunday I become an Italian cook and make all the recipes my mother brought over from the old country—braciola, flank steak in parsley and garlic, meat balls, spare ribs in sauce, spaghetti.

Now we have enriched the family with a little Irish blood. One daughter married an O'Donnell. But I'm happy to say last Columbus Day parade found the little O'Donnell grandchildren marching right along with their Italian cousins. That's my idea of America as it should be!

SEN. ABRAHAM RIBICOFF (Connecticut)

Sen. Ribicoff was the first Jew to be elected governor of a New England state.

Preserving the melting-pot approach is a matter much on my mind lately. I worry that this philosophy may be endangered by those who now stress isolation of cultures.

As the son of Jewish emigrants from Poland, I am always aware of my ethnic background. I was fortunate to grow up in the small-town atmosphere of New Britain, Conn. As a boy, I was subject to religious slurs, but these instances were rare and had no lasting impact. What did leave a lasting impression was the belief of my parents that you will be accepted for what you are, regardless of background.

My friends came from all ethnic and religious backgrounds. I went to their homes at Christmas. They came to mine at Chanukah.

During my first gubernatorial race, I faced anti-Semitic smear tactics. I decided to confront them. I said, "Anybody, regardless of race, creed or color, has the right to aspire to public office. It is not important whether I win or lose. The important thing is I'm not here to repudiate the American dream, and I know that the American dream can come true." I won the race.

REP. YVONNE BRATHWAITE BURKE (California)

Mrs. Burke is the first black woman ever elected to the House from California.

As a child, I don't suppose I suffered any more than any other black children in the Los Angeles area. But, I did become aware that I was expected to fit a certain mold. When I was 10, I was admitted to a special school where I was the only black. I was subject to a lot of personal abuse. Later I went to a high school that was only 10 percent black. To prevent my being classified again, I became very much involved in student activities. I was vice president of the student body and graduated with honors.

In a way, I feel that my background has given me an advantage. The drawbacks normally associated with being black and being a woman only challenge me to overcome them. This has made me a stronger person, and I feel that if other minority groups would take the same attitude, it would add to our country's strength.

SEN. JAMES ABOUREZK (South Dakota)

The only Arab ethnic in Congress, Sen. Abourezk has championed another minority group—the American Indians.

I know about bigotry. As a kid, I was called a Jew by classmates who knew I was somehow different but didn't know what that difference was. It only makes me feel closer to my Jewish colleague, Abe Ribicoff, who must have experienced something of this cat-calling.

Even so, I still think our different ethnic backgrounds are a good thing for America. Nonconformity makes anything stronger. With a divergence of ideas, one is bound to come up with a better result.

Why my interest in Indians? Well, they've always been a special ethnic group for me. I was born on the Rosebud Reservation. My father had immigrated to the U.S. from Lebanon, and he was a pack peddler in that area, carrying a heavy load as he went from house to house with his wares. Success for him was saving enough money to buy a horse. Eventually, he saved enough to start a store. He was one of the few white men who didn't exploit the Indians. In fact, during the Great Depression, he never turned down a grocery order, even when he knew he would never be repaid. It brings tears to my eyes to remember how, when he died, the Indians lined the streets and mourned with us.

I don't want the good things of the Indian way of life to disappear, just as I don't want the good things of my own Lebanese background to fade from memory. To keep my own heritage alive, I speak a little Arabic and I have taken two of my three children to Lebanon with me. Both stayed on with relatives and came back with new pride in their ethnic heritage.

SEN. EDMUND S. MUSKIE (Maine)

Sen. Muskie was Democratic nominee for Vice President in 1968.

With only three Polish families in my hometown of Rumford, Me., I was distinctly in a minority. I can still remember the sting of such ethnic references as "Polack." I also remember the burning crosses of the Ku Klux Klan.

My father gave me important advice. He told me to be proud of my strong Polish background but to think of myself as an American first. He was a tailor named Stephen Marciszewski, who came to America when he was 20. The reason he came was that his father was determined that he grow up in a free society.

There is no conflict between America's "melting pot" tradition and the preservation of my ethnic identity. The "melting pot" distills the best traditions into something distinctly American.

In my family today, we still talk about the customs and traditions of my parents because I enjoy them and associate them with fond memories of childhood.

Joseph M. Montoya
"There's nothing ethnic in ballet or pizza."

James A. Burke
"I am tired of being a hyphenated American."

SEN. JOSEPH M. MONTOYA
(New Mexico)

As a college student of 21, Montoya ran for and was elected to the New Mexico House of Representatives. On Capitol Hill he became famous as a member of the Watergate Committee.

Until the turn of the century, no one had ever heard of a melting pot in America. It has only been recently that the idea of melting us all down into identical carbon copies of some mythical and generally Anglicized American caught the imagination of the public.

My own family came to this continent in 1598. We have always treasured our heritage and kept our ability to speak Spanish as well as English. I was lucky to be born in New Mexico, where nearly half the population is bilingual, and where there is a deep and warm understanding of our multicultural traditions.

We do not feel that there is anything "ethnic" or foreign about names like Sierra Nevada or Los Angeles or Montana or New Orleans or Albuquerque or Sante Fe. We all understand and use words like ballet or rodeo. We all eat things like pizza or chili or liverwurst or crepes. So, you see, our American culture is really rich with the words and ways of many groups.

REP. JAMES A. BURKE (Massachusetts)

Congressman Burke is a member of the prestigious Ways and Means Committee and chairman of the Committee on Social Security.

The other day, on the floor of the House of Representatives, a colleague called me an Irish-American Congressman. I rose and said, "I am not an Irish-American Congressman. I am an American Congressman of Irish descent."

I am tired of being a hyphenated American. The sooner we get through with hyphenated Americans, the better off America will be! I was in World War II, and I can tell you the blood of every ethnic group you could name was spilled on those beaches, but nobody was saying, "There is an Irish-American and there is an Italian-American." They were all Americans.

Of course I'm proud of my Irish ancestry. I grew up in a Boston neighborhood concerned with ethnicism. I was the kid who went around the neighborhood lighting gas stoves for Jewish neighbors who could not light their own on the Sabbath for religious reasons. It was not a part-time job. My mother sent me around. It was her good-neighbor policy.

I still keep one Irish habit my mother taught me. I say a few words to the good Lord every Call me old fashioned. I want my boys to be raised by me—not a baby sitter. And Avon fits into my way of thinking.

As an Avon Representative, I make my own hours. So I have plenty of time to spend with my family. Being my own boss and managing my own business suits me just fine. And I just love having money of my own.

Thanks to Avon, I've made some real good friends. As I make my rounds as a Representative, I meet dozens of nice people. And Avon products are so well liked, I feel welcome when I call.

Best of all, my work doesn't interfere with my job as a mother. As I see it, that's the most important advantage of being an Avon Representative.

Philip Morris Announces The First Major Step Since The Filter.

'Enriched Flavor'™ discovery revealed for new low tar cigarette.

An intensive twelve year research effort just ended with incredible flavor in a low tar smoke.

The cigarette is called MERIT.

Only 9 mg. of tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Yet in taste tests involving thousands of smokers, MERIT delivered as much or more taste than brands having up to 60% more tar.

If you smoke—you'll be interested.

Smoke Cracked: 'Enriched Flavor'

While other cigarette-makers were busy designing special filters that would somehow filter out tar but not taste, Philip Morris concentrated on the business end of smoking. The tobacco end.

By "cracking" cigarette smoke and isolating certain "key" flavor ingredients—ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar—what we call 'Enriched Flavor' was developed.

'Enriched Flavor' is extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't drop out, can't do anything but come through for you.

We added—packed—'Enriched Flavor' into MERIT.

And began a rather startling series of taste tests.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarettes ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were involved, smokers of filter cigarettes like yourself—all tested at home.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now smoke the cigarette.

'MERIT. Astonishing taste at only 9 mg. tar.

night, and I do so again in the morning. And then I read the newspapers, and if my name is not in the obituaries, I shower and shave and go to the office.

REP. TED RISENHOOVER (Oklahoma)

During the dark hours of World War II, a Navy munitions ship exploded in San Francisco Bay, and my father, a Navy enlistee, was killed. It was a bitter loss for a nine-year-old boy. My widowed mother moved us to a small town in Oklahoma. There, I quickly discovered, the name "Risenhoover" was considered German. Was I an American, or was I part of Germany's fascism?

Playmates taunted me and called me a Nazi. I faced them squarely. The red, white and blue of my patriotism was matched by red noses, white rage and blue bruises—some of them mine. Eventually I made a great discovery—that bullies are more interested in trying one's patience than in testing one's patriotism.

We all matured together as we grew older. I gradually turned to debate and won them over. My battlers became my buddies, and I can say with affection and pride, they are my staunchest supporters today.

I really believe that the people in America are growing in tolerance. Today, ethnic names are seldom handicaps; in fact, they are usually assets. Excuses of race, sex, creed or national origin just don't wash any more. They are especially meaningless to a person named Risenhoover who suffered—but survived—World War II.

SEN. DANIEL K. INOUYE (Hawaii)

A holder of a dozen decorations, Sen. Inouye lost his right arm in fierce combat during the closing days of World War II. He is Assistant Majority Whip.

Many of today's young voters weren't alive when, as an infamous sequel to the infamous Pearl Harbor attack, the Federal Government rounded up tens of thousands of Japanese and placed them in barbed-wire concentration camps.

But what progress we've made! Today, three members of the House and one member of the Senate are of Japanese descent. Thousands of other Japanese-Americans have reached high professional levels. The lesson I draw from all of this is that there is a melting pot process at work in America—but the process is neither automatic nor painless.

I grew up in a predominantly Japanese neighborhood in Honolulu. Ours was really a fairly happy existence. But I do recall "English standard schools." These were public schools for those students who could meet a rigid standard of spoken English. In other words, they were schools for Caucasian children.

I suppose this Hawaiian version of cloaked segregation did stir some resentment in me, but I didn't really let it bother me. I was convinced that I could do as well and learn as much in the public schools.

I became a father at the relatively late age of 40, and I was concerned that I wouldn't have the opportunity to sit down and tell my son of his ancestry, of how his great-grandfather came to this country, of the sacrifices his grandfather made for his son. So I decided to put everything

Family Weekly's NFL Draft Preview, 1976

"It's the Year of the Running Back," Says Our NFL Scout, Harry Cartwright

By Larry Bortstein

When representatives of the National Football League teams meet next week for the annual draft of college players, they will be able to select from the finest group of senior running backs to come along in recent memory. This is the expert opinion of FAMILY WEEKLY's "Harry Cartwright," code name of one of the top professional football scouts in the country. This is the third year Cartwright has analyzed the upcoming pro draft for FAMILY WEEKLY. His report is based on material he himself compiles and disseminates to many general managers and coaches in the NFL.

[Note: Two new teams—the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the Seattle Seahawks—will compete for the first time in the fall of 1976. The first choice of any player in the country will be awarded to whichever of these two teams wins a coin flip.]

There is so much running back talent available, says Cartwright, that if every one of the 28 NFL teams wanted to make its first choice a running back, there would still be plenty of high-quality performers leftover.

The player mentioned most prominently is California's sensational Chuck Muncie. He was second to Archie Griffin in the Heisman Trophy voting, but his performance has greatly impressed pro scouts. A 6-foot-3, 220-pound powerhouse, "Muncie has the speed to run outside, the legs to run inside, the ability to throw and catch passes, and he also blocks well," says Cartwright. "He's a terrific back. About the only area he needs to work on is strengthening his upper body, and a summer of working with weights should do that."

Craig Penrose

Muncie, who wears eyeglasses on the field, ran for 1,460 yards and a national high of 13 rushing touchdowns last fall. He averaged 6.4 yards per carry.

Next on the list are Ohio State's Archie Griffin and Oklahoma's Joe Washington. Griffin, the only two-time Heisman winner in history, closed out a sensational undergraduate career as the only major-college back ever to carry the ball more than 5,000 yards. But some people are saying Griffin may be too small to grind out big yardage in the pros (he's 5-9 and 180 pounds). They're saying the same thing about Washington, who's an inch taller and the same weight. Cartwright has another view: "Look at what the so-called little men have been doing in the pros the past couple of years—guys like Terry Metcalf of St. Louis and Greg Pruitt of Cleveland. Griffin and Washington will be picked in the first round because they're both super backs. Small as he is, Griffin can still run inside because he's so powerful. Washington has more speed and will be valuable to any team that selects him as a kick-return specialist as well as a regular running back."

Archie Griffin

The list doesn't end there. Other top-flight runners include Sonny Collins, Kentucky, 6-0, 190; Ike Forte, Arkansas, 6-0, 200; Bubba Bean, Texas A&M, 6-0, 194; Wayne Morris, Southern Methodist, 6-0, 195; Mike Pruitt, Purdue, 6-0, 206; and Jimmy DuBose, Florida, 6-1, 218. DuBose played fullback for the Gators, but he'll likely be a halfback in the pros. He averaged 6.8 yards per

Steve King

For teams seeking power-running fullbacks, there's Tony Galbreath of Missouri, 6-1, 230, who was sidelined part of 1975 with an ankle injury, but who is a punishing runner and strong blocker when healthy; and Jim Jensen, Iowa, 6-5, 233, who has excellent speed for a man his size and who also blocks well.

Perhaps the most unheralded of all the top senior running backs is Herb Lusk, who very quietly rolled up 1,596 yards on the ground for Long Beach State this past season. A 6-foot-1, 195-pounder, Lusk finished second in the national rushing statistics to Southern California's brilliant junior, Ricky Bell, who won't be eligible for the NFL draft until next year.

Although several running backs probably will be chosen on the first round, the honor of being the first player chosen in the draft may fall to a defensive lineman. (Defensive linemen have been No.-1 picks four times since 1967. The last running back who was chosen first

Though not all of them will be picked on the first round of the draft, these are the players our top pro scout expects will be the first players chosen in their positions:

People who love music and fine furniture have made Magnavox the world's leading stereo console. Here's why:

Sound. Today's Magnavox stereo consoles reproduce music with greater fidelity and realism than other comparably priced makes.

- Sealed, air-suspension bass woofers are side-fired (in specified models) to provide the realistic "surround sound" of the Concert Hall.
- Front-fired tweeters and mid-range speakers complete the system, to bring you superb sound across the entire musical spectrum.

Fine furniture cabinetry in more finishes and styles—to fit your lifestyle—than anybody else.

Save 4 ways with Magnavox Videomatic™ Big-Screen Color Television.

1. Save energy. All Magnavox Videomatic TVs have 100% solid-state circuitry, so they use far less energy than conventional TVs.

2. Save your eyes. The American Optometric Association recommends that your TV picture be adjusted to changes in room lighting, not the roomlight to the TV picture. Magnavox Videomatic was the first color TV to do it for you—automatically.

3. Save on servicing. If servicing ever is needed, the Magnavox chassis' plug-in modules can be replaced in minutes, usually in your home. But servicing is less likely to be needed than ever before, thanks to 24 hours of extra testing for extra reliability.

in the nation was a fellow named O. J. Simpson, in 1969.) This isn't an especially good year for gifted defensive linemen, says Cartwright, but three men who could be first man picked are Ken Novak, Purdue, 6-7, 274; Leroy Selmon, Oklahoma, 6-2, 260; and Steve Niehaus, Notre Dame, 6-5, 260.

"Novak's got that tremendous size you have to like," says Cartwright, "and some people think he might make a better offensive lineman than a defensive player. Selmon's a tremendous all-round athlete, extremely fast and smart. He made the NCAA's list of top scholar-athletes this past season. Niehaus had knee operations in his freshman and sophomore years, and isn't as fast as he once was, but he's a tremendous performer. He plays the run very well."

Ranking closely behind this trio are Dewey Selmon, Leroy's brother, at Oklahoma, and Ben Williams of Mississippi. Dewey was the least publicized of the three Selmon brothers to play at Oklahoma in the past few seasons. Though Leroy was an All-America choice at tackle in 1975 and captured the Outland Trophy, voted annually to the country's best lineman, Dewey was also an All-America choice at middle guard. He's 6-1, weighs 257 pounds.

Mississippi's Williams, 6-3, 253, has great speed and was one of the nation's leaders in quarterback "sacks" his junior and senior years.

Randy Cross

There is good depth on the offensive line, as well as a host of topflight place-kickers. Ranked best among the linemen on offense are tackles Steve King of Michigan, 6-5, 250, and Bob Simmons, Texas, 6-5, 245; guards Randy Cross, UCLA, 6-4, 250, and Joe Davis, Southern California, 6-3, 245; and center Ray Pinney, Washington, 6-3, 240. UCLA's Cross has played both guard and center in college, and scouts look on him as a future pro center.

Scott Parrish of Utah State, 6-6, 268, is another outstanding offensive line prospect. Colorado has no fewer than three offensive linemen rated as potentially high-draft picks; tackles Mark Koncar, 6-5, 266, and Steve Young, 6-9, 261; and center Pete Brock, 6-6, 248.

Heading a talented group of senior place-kicking specialists is Temple's Don Bitterlich, a left-footed soccer-style booter. Bitterlich, 5-7, 166, established four one-year and career records for accurate footwork, including 21 field goals in 1975 and 87 consecutive successful extra points over three seasons.

Chris Bahr of Penn State, who already has enjoyed professional athletic success in the North American Soccer League, also figures to be tapped for NFL service, along with Bob Berg of New Mexico, Fred Steinfort of Boston College and Jose Violante of Brown.

Greg Buttle

Bennie Cunningham

The senior class of quarterbacks, wide receivers and defensive backs is short on top-level talent, says Cartwright. This was true last year, too, when California's Steve Bartkowski was the only quarterback selected on the first round. Best bet among quarterbacks to be called on the first round this time is Craig Penrose of San Diego State, 6-3, 200, who topped the nation with 18 completions per game in 1975. Gene Swick, 6-2, 188, from Toledo, closed out his collegiate career as the all-time leader in total offense yards with 8,074, and also could be a high draft pick.

The two best senior wide receivers in the country might both have played at Oklahoma in 1975. Cartwright expects that both Tinker Owens, 5-11, 170, and Billy Brooks, 6-3, 200, will go early in the draft. Neither man finished among the national leaders since the Sooners employ a run-oriented offense, but both Owens and Brooks are blessed with breakaway speed and excellent moves.

Among tight ends, the two top prospects are Bennie Cunningham of Clemson, 6-5, 252, one of the biggest men ever to play the position, and Mike Barber of Louisiana Tech, 6-3, 231, who became a super prospect as a senior after adding about 20 pounds.

Cartwright rates the top defensive back prospects this way: cornerbacks Tim Fox, Ohio State, 6-0, 186, and Mike McCoy, Colorado, 5-11, 180; and safeties Steve Wagner, Wisconsin, 6-2, 200, and Wonder Monds, Nebraska, 6-2, 204. Right behind is Arizona State's Mike Haynes, a 6-foot-2, 190-pound cornerback.

Kevin McLain, Colorado State's 6-foot-2, 240-pound star, is rated tops among middle linebackers, while Greg Buttle, Penn State, 6-2, 220 and Ron McCartney, Tennessee, 6-2, 219, are outstanding outside linebacker prospects. Penn State has sent many fine linebackers on to pro lineups, but some consider Buttle to be perhaps the best ever.

Enter Family Weekly's '76 BICENTENNIAL ESSAY CONTEST

TWO GRAND PRIZES OF A DISNEY FAMILY VACATION TRIP

PLUS! A CHANCE FOR 76 WINNERS OF CASH PRIZES!

Choose any one topic listed below. Write about it in 250 to 500 words. The essay you write can win one of two Grand Prizes or one of the 76 cash awards.

What makes America great? It is every American who lives and works and breathes today. It is Democrats and Republicans, radicals and conservatives, it is the old who feel their time has past, and the young who feel their time is yet to come. America is you!

America is what you have seen in your lifetime. It is what you learned at school or read in the newspaper. It is the mother who kissed you, the father who scolded you, the friend who smiled at you, the neighbor who argued with you.

We want you to write about it. We want you to put on paper your thoughts, your dreams, your hopes, whatever seems appropriate and right to you in the context of the topic you select.

Here are the topics you can choose to write about (pick only one):

1. The Time in My Life I Was Proudest of Being an American
2. Why America Thrives on the Right to Disagree
3. What I Like Most About My Home Town
4. The Greatest Unsung American I Have Known.

Pick one of the topics listed above. Think about it, and write down your thoughts in 250 to 500 words. (That's equivalent to about one to two double-spaced typewritten sheets of paper.) Mail your written essay to us, along with the filled-out entry form.

Your essay will be checked and read by a panel of independent judges. Any of the four topics is eligible. Any age is eligible to win. The judges will select the winning essays based on the following: sincerity, clarity of expression, originality, fidelity to topic, age and legibility.

Remember, in addition to the two grand prizes, you have a chance to win one of 76 cash awards!

This is more than just a contest. This is your chance to share your words and your feelings about America with millions of other Americans, fellow readers of FAMILY WEEKLY. Add your words to your country's 200th-birthday celebration.

On this page is an official entry form. Fill it in. Clip it out and attach it to your essay entry. Mail to:

FAMILY WEEKLY ESSAY CONTEST
641 Lexington Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022

Don't delay. Contest closes Monday, March 8, 1976, and all entries must be postmarked before midnight March 8.

76 Cash Prizes

1st Place— 2 prizes of $250
2nd Place— 2 prizes of $100
3rd Place— 6 prizes of $ 50
4th Place—12 prizes of $ 25

DISNEY TRIP PRIZES

If you live east of the Mississippi River, your Grand Prize is four nights and five days at Walt Disney World in Florida for you and three other members of your family. The trip includes air fares, a rented car, accommodations in one of the three Walt Disney World resort hotels, elegant dining, recreation and daily visits to the Magic Kingdom, where you'll see "America on Parade," the happiest Bicentennial celebration in America. And you'll be greeted by Mickey Mouse himself.

If you live west of the Mississippi, your family vacation will include four nights and five days at Disneyland in California. You'll be flown to Los Angeles, then presented with your rental car. You will sleep and dine at the world famous Disneyland Hotel, and Mickey Mouse himself will greet you inside Disneyland, where you will watch "America on Parade," performed daily on Main Street U.S.A.

OFFICIAL RULES

1. Write 250 to 500 words about one of the four listed topics you have chosen. (That's equivalent to about one to two double-spaced typewritten pages.) Attach your essay to the official entry form. You may enter more than one essay. However, each essay must be attached to an entry form.
2. Mark the number of your chosen topic "1," "2," "3" or "4" in the lower left-hand corner of the mailing envelope.
3. Winning entries will be determined by an independent judging organization on the basis of: sincerity, clarity of expression, originality, fidelity to topic, age and legibility. Decision of the judges is final.
4. The two grand-prize trips to Disney World, Florida (if you live east of the Mississippi), or Disneyland, California (if you live west of the Mississippi), consist of the following: five days and four nights at a Disney Hotel, subject to availability, with a three-to-four-week reservation time, for you and three members of your family. Three meals per day at a Disney Hotel (excluding liquor). Ticket books for rides. Air transportation from nearest airport, via Eastern Airlines. (Transportation to airport not included.) On arrival, use of rental car from American-International. Trip must be taken before December 31, 1976. No cash substitution for Disney trip.
5. All entries are the property of Family Weekly which reserves the right to publish and publicize entries, names, addresses and photos of winners. Selected winning essays may appear in forthcoming issues of Family Weekly. Submitted essays cannot be returned.
6. Only one prize per family. All federal, state and local taxes are the sole responsibility of the prize winner.

Plant Now . . . Step Back . . . and Watch Out!

Amazing Super-Growing Species Soars Into A Magnificent Tree IN JUST ONE YEAR!

And if you think that's startling — just wait 'til you see the spectacular show when it starts to flower — Actually smothers itself in such lavish masses of bouquets, its branches appear to bend from the sheer mass and weight of the magnificent blooms.

That's the kind of wondrous results reported by the U.S. Gov't. Plant Research Stations . . . Botanical Gardens . . . and University Plant Scientists on what is undoubtedly the most fantastic flowering shade tree ever introduced in America — the incredibly beautiful Paulownia . . . the only flowering shade tree in all of nature that can do all of this and more:

READ WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY ABOUT THE INCREDIBLE PAULOWNIA . . . THE FASTEST GROWING FLOWERING SHADE TREE EVER DISCOVERED!

HEIGHT: Gov't. Plant Scientists and Botanical Experts report 18 to 22 feet of growth the very first year on specimen trees.

That's more growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE SEASON than even a fully matured 15-year-old flowering dogwood, or prize star magnolia.

SPREAD: University Researchers report beautiful ornamental spread of nearly 40 feet at maturity . . . packed with thousands of magnificent flowers. Think of it. Not only does it surge skyward in the most spectacular burst of beauty you've ever seen . . . but, also arches out in a magazine-cover display of color-drenched branches.

EASE: Leading editors report: Tree of unusual merit . . . grows in almost any soil . . . and below-zero root-hardy, too. Yes, because nature has endowed this landscape-artist's "dream-tree" with super-growing strength . . . because it is virtually resistant to most every common disease . . . requires practically no care at all. You simply plant it and forget it . . . it's as simple as that.

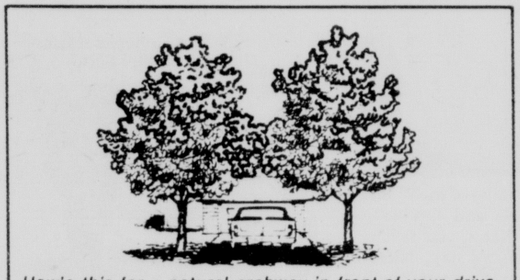

A TOWER OF BEAUTY IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

Yes, who says you have to spend a small fortune for a flowering shade tree? — and then spend half a lifetime waiting for it to grow? It used to be that way — BUT NOT ANY LONGER. Not since we have finally tracked down the one single tree in all of nature that hoists itself high, so fast you can literally measure the difference in both height and spread from week to week . . . or take a yardstick and measure the incredible difference in feet from month to month!

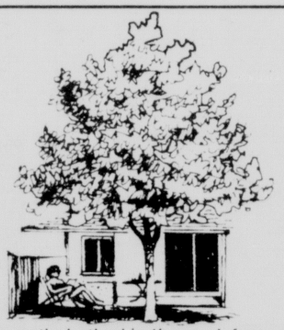

GROWS IN ANY SOIL — REQUIRES NO SPECIAL CARE — SOARS INTO A MASTERPIECE OF LUSH, GREEN BEAUTY IN JUST A MATTER OF MONTHS!

Best of all, unlike most trees that demand sprays, pesticides, insecticides and constant pampering . . . the only thing you do when you plant Paulownia is water it and enjoy it. That's why leading botanical gardens . . . landscape artists . . . garden editors . . . can't stop raving about its indescribable beauty . . . its super-growing, super-flowering ability . . . its trouble-free maintenance. Is it any wonder that every leading expert has hailed Paulownia in the most glowing terms . . . recommended it again and again for home-owners who want a stunning display of both beauty and shade . . . and with practically no more work than a couple of sprinkles a season.

How's this for a natural archway in front of your driveway — twin towers of flowering beauty in less time than you ever dreamed possible.

VITAL STATISTICS FROM LEADING EXPERTS

MATURE GROWTH SIZE — 45 to 60 feet

MATURE GROWTH SPREAD — 35 to 50 feet

ZONE OF HARDINESS — completely root-hardy from deepest south to as far north as Montreal, Canada. Flowers beautifully even after 10 below zero winter freeze.

ONE YEAR GROWTH RATE — Experts report range of up to 22 feet the first year after planting on specimen trees under optimum conditions, up to 15 to 18 feet under poorer conditions when pruned for foliage growth only.

FLOWERS — When tree is at blooming size, in just a few short years, you'll enjoy thick panicles of fragrant lavender blooms. Highly recommended by landscape artists as specimen planting for front lawn.

SOIL REQUIREMENTS — Natural strength and vigor allow it to soar full forth in even poor soil. You can plant it anywhere.

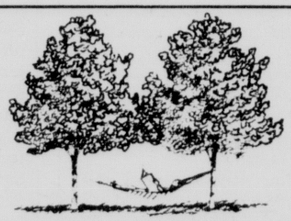

CARE — No special care whatsoever. No spraying. No dusting. No special feeding. Naturally resistant to most every disease, pest or insect.

TAKES BUT 10 MINUTES TO PLANT — REWARDS YOU WITH A LIFETIME OF BEAUTY STARTING THIS VERY YEAR!

ONLY A LIMITED SUPPLY YET AVAILABLE FOR RELEASE TO THE PUBLIC — FULL SUPPLY WON'T BE READY UNTIL 1976 . . . SO ACT NOW!

Now, the price of this super-growing shade tree is not the $20 or $30 you might expect . . . and probably be glad to pay. On this special introductory offer it is a mere $3.95 . . . yes, only $3.95 for this magnificent shade tree that rewards you with such a glorious display of growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

However, since supply is still sorely limited . . . it will take our growers at least another year or two to propagate enough trees for full nationwide distribution. Therefore, this may be your only chance this year to plant and enjoy this wonder-tree entirely at our risk. And since now is the time to plant, you must act now!

Here's a luxury sight you don't have to wait half a lifetime growing — a matched pair of flowering showpieces, so strong and sturdy you can actually sling a hammock between them.

Never Has There Been A Faster Growing, Flowering Shade Tree Introduced To America — Royal Paulownia

Yes, plant this Fall — see it soar forth in a tower of beauty in just one year! It's the most spectacular splurge of both growth and beauty of any shade tree ever brought to this country. And it's so easy to grow even a child can do it.

And Remember: Satisfaction is guaranteed. You must be thrilled in every way with this wondrous flowering shade tree or RETURN AT ANY TIME within 90 days for a full refund of your purchase price. Use the No-Risk Coupon below.

To help you keep your family healthy—and help beat the high cost of medical services

LADIES' HOME JOURNAL FAMILY MEDICAL GUIDE

"... the most practical and complete medical guide ever written."
Recommended by Journal editors as a vital source of information for you to use as the first line of your own and your family's medical defense.

- Comprehensive. More than 1,000 pages of reliable medical information.
- Authoritative. Written by Allan E. Nourse, M.D., in consultation with specialists in many fields.
- Practical. Filled with thousands of medically sound procedures you can use at home.
- 69 Chapters—filled with facts and sound advice in 1,088 pages.
- Special quick reference index for emergencies.

- Family advice from a family doctor in more than 2,500 easy-to-read subject references.
- Life-span questions answered clearly. From "Infancy" to "Old Age."
- Early warning signs of approaching illness.
- Bedwetting—causes and cures.
- Complete glossary of terms, from "Abortion" to "Yellow Fever."
- Master index—from "Abdomen" to "Zuelzer."

Next to your doctor, you are the person most responsible for your family's health.

You as a wife and mother may play an even more important health role than your family doctor—because you, much more than he, are always "on the spot."

The Ladies' Home Journal Family Medical Guide is written expressly for you. Clearly, concisely and authoritatively, it presents you with a complete, frank and above all, reassuring view of the current state of medical knowledge.

We invite you—at no risk—to examine the Family Medical Guide for 10 days. Leaf through its more than 1,000 pages. Look at its more than 200 illustrations. Make a list of the illnesses you worry about most, and look them up. Discuss the book with your husband. With your children. Above all, with your doctor. Then make up your own mind—without pressure from us—whether this extraordinary volume is worth its special price to you of $12.95 (it regularly retails for $14.95).

You may not need this 1,088 page Family Medical Guide today, but someday you will need some of the helpful information and peace of mind it can bring. Invest in it today.

Is the "Melting Pot" Working?

into a letter, which eventually grew into a book, "Journey to Washington."

REP. E. "KIKA" DE LA GARZA (Texas)

Rep. de la Garza served in both World War II and the Korean conflict. He is fluent in Spanish, French, Italian and Portuguese.

I'm proud that the Spaniards sent out the first expedition that discovered America. We started it all. And as for my Mexican ancestors who were already here, they gave us a civilization which created pyramids greater than those of the Nile, a calendar, zoological gardens, libraries, and medicine so advanced that they even performed surgery!

I was very fortunate in not having experienced any intended slights or harassment worth mentioning in the area of Texas where I grew up. As a fourth-generation Democrat from down on the banks of the Rio Grande in Mission, Texas, I made it to the Congress of the United States by the grace of God and our system of government.

There is to my mind no conflict at all between the melting pot tradition and the concept of preserving one's ethnic identity. That's what America is all about. Each person can be his own self—old world, new world. If one wishes to wear a yarmulka, a Homburg, a cowboy hat or a sombrero, he can do it and no one will say him nay.

REP. F. EDWARD HEBERT (Louisiana)

Congressman Hébert—pronounced "A-bear"—is intensely proud of his French origin and does not let his colleagues forget it.

Although my family comes from the Cajun country in Louisiana, I never learned to speak French. To do penance, I am involved in a program to keep our French heritage and the language alive in Louisiana.

"Kika" de la Garza

I feel very strongly that ethnic identities should be preserved in America. Having Cajun blood has never hurt my career. In fact, I feel it has been my strength. I remember once when my daughter Dawn tried to give me some political advice. I said to her, "Listen, honey chile, I didn't study journalism and I did all right in the newspaper business, and I didn't study political science and I have done all right in politics—so let me do things my own way."

F. Edward Hébert

Growing up in Louisiana, of course, I didn't face the problem of name calling or of being considered "different." Nearly all of us were of French heritage. But after coming to Washington, I have on occasion had to face some ribbing because I am a Cajun. It doesn't bother me until someone makes a serious accusation against my people. Then I let them know how I feel.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Good Kids or Bad? Can You Read The Clues?

True or False? Telling a small child who asks "Where did I come from?" that the stork brought him is regarded by experts as silly and, perhaps, harmful. (See number 2.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If your child likes to live in a world of fantasy, this tendency should be discouraged.

2. Telling a small child who asks "Where did I come from?" that the stork brought him is regarded by experts as silly and, perhaps, harmful.

3. In many cases, parents secretly approve of their child's delinquent or antisocial behavior.

4. The way your child crosses the street tells a lot about his personality.

5. How well a girl gets along with her father has a direct bearing on whether or not she will develop delinquent tendencies.

6. If a child runs away, you'll probably find him in the house of a friend or relative.

ANSWERS

1. False. Psychological studies show that children derive many benefits from fantasy. For example, it has been found that while "boys who are low in imaginative play tend to be more aggressive, those skilled in fantasy seem to reduce their feelings of aggression through fantasizing." It's also noted that the greater a child's ability to fantasize, the longer he is content to wait for something his parents feel he is not yet ready for.

2. False. A team of behavior specialists, impressed by the popularity and persistence of the stork fable, conclude from their studies that the fable is an "artful condensation of a host of human conflicts, attitudes and aspirations." It is doubtful, they say, that scientific explanations can adequately replace the stork fable to the small child's satisfaction and, in fact, our scientific explanations are likely to be just as suspect in the child's mind as the stork fable ever was.

3. True. Psychiatric studies have demonstrated that some parents find subtle ways to encourage their children toward delinquent behavior, which they themselves would secretly like to indulge in, but fear to because of social censure. (Their attitude is: If a child does it, that's something else again.) This is particularly true when parents tend to live vicariously through their offspring.

4. True. In a psychological study conducted at England's University of Southampton, children, age five to 11, were observed crossing a road a total of 405 times. The crossing behavior was analyzed, and each child placed in one of three categories: "safe road crossers," "careless" and "unsafe." Each child was then given a standard personality test. The results showed that the "safe" children were the most calm and relaxed, the most contented with their lot. The "unsafe" and the "careless" children were the most excitable and demanding, the most tense and frustrated. The "careless" children were the most dominant and assertive. The "unsafe" appeared to be more mild and submissive, but were more likely to evade rules when it appeared to serve their purpose.

5. True—according to University of Southern California studies, which surveyed hundreds of young women via confidential questionnaires. It was found that there was a strong relationship between delinquent behavior and a poor relationship with the father—the more negatively a daughter regarded her father, the more likely she was to go astray.

6. True—as shown by the findings of an extensive study of young runaways conducted by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research. According to the study, 70 percent of runaways ended up in the house of a friend or a relative. Only 13 percent went "on the road" and left their city or community. The runaway urge is most likely to hit a youngster at ages 15 and 16.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

TWO-CAR, OR NOT TWO-CAR?

Our garage is full of garden tools
And sacks of fertilizer.
We've cordwood stacked along both sides,
The place is a good-sizer.

Old papers here are piled in piles
Awaiting their recycling.

We've empty crates, a workbench, too,
Three bikes, besides, for bikeling.

Two cars we have. They're parked outside.
Beside the door each lodges.
It's clear to me just what we need:
One car and two garages.

A man of careful buying habits was looking over the new compact cars. Indicating a certain model, he asked the salesman, "How much gasoline does this one consume?"

"A mere spoonful, sir," the salesman responded enthusiastically, "a mere spoonful."

The customer nodded thoughtfully, then asked: "Teaspoon or tablespoon?"

—Lane Olinghouse

After bravely refusing a pain killer, the patient replied, "I'm trying to transcend dental medication." —Dorothea Kent

"I bought her a fine dinner, took her to a movie, and then to a night club. Then do you know what she said?"

"No."

LITTLE EMILY
By Frank Baginski

"I've got it all figured out, Mr. Aldrich. My mother gets all the plain ones and my father gets the ones with the little windows!"

What in the World!

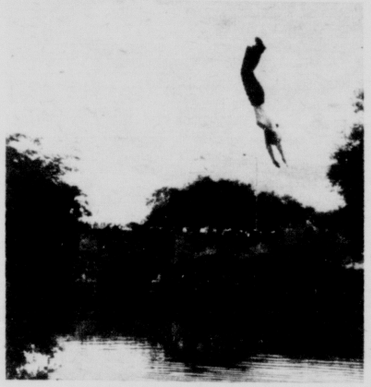

LILLI PALMER
The second time around

Lilli Palmer talks about why "opposites attract" but don't always endure: "When one marries young, one makes compromises without being aware of it. One adjusts without any difficulty to the lifestyle of the stronger partner. The city person finds himself in the country, the jazz fan spends his evenings listening to Bach. This doesn't seem to get on anybody's nerves; on the contrary. 'Opposites attract'—but that's true only for young people. If you find a new mate in the second half of your life, the two of you must be of one mind. During my first marriage (to Rex Harrison), it was only love that bridged the gap between our minds. It took me a long time to get to the point where I was ready to end that marriage of 15 years. For the last few years, I'd been wearing a sturdy pair of blinkers. The only thing that distinguished me from ordinary horses was that I'd put them on myself." From her autobiography, "Change Lobsters —and Dance" (Macmillan, $8.95).

Famed cat burglar Frank Hohimer once led a gang noted for "stealth, daring and king-size heists." Now, he offers this unusual list of do's and don'ts from his own "burglar's bible": "Never use a partner. Don't dress flashy or buy new Cadillacs. Never go in a house where the people are not home. Never commit a burglary on a weekend night, someone may come home late from a party—you're working so you won't hear him. Check the refrigerator the very first thing. If there is a small baby in the house, 99 times out of a 100 there will be formula in the refrigerator. Heat it up, find the baby, put the bottle in his mouth and then change his diaper. Never take mink coats, paintings, large objects. If you steal jewels, pop the stones out of the settings as soon as possible. Never lock anything in the trunk of your car where you can't get to it. You can hold a million dollars in diamonds in the palm of your hand, and you can swallow them or throw them away on a rumble. Never turn on any lights, use a small pen light. Never carry a gun, you don't need it." Hohimer has written up more of his "confessions" in "The Home Invaders" (Chicago Review Press, $8.75). The moral to the story may be in Hohimer's present situation: He's serving 30 years for a heist because he didn't follow his own advice.

"CANNONBALL" MARY
Try, try again

Stunt girl Mary Connors has a rather unusual ambition—to be fired across the River Avon in England. Equipped only with a crash helmet and loads of courage, Mary fits herself into the "sling" of a giant catapult attached to a crane, and then is launched into the air. Even after her fifth failure, Mary remains indefatigable. "The elastic on the catapult keeps breaking and they keep having to fish me out of the river," she says almost apologetically. Although she hasn't made it yet, she's amassed a host of fans and well-wishers.

Here's how The Literary Guild works:

You get top best sellers at up to 40% off prices of publishers' editions. After your membership is accepted and you get your 4 books for only $1, plus shipping and handling, you'll begin receiving the Literary Guild Magazine. About every four weeks (14 times a year) you'll get your free copy offering dozens of exciting best sellers, all at up to 40% off.

You enjoy even greater savings on Bonus Books—up to 80% off publishers' edition prices. With every Selection or Alternate you buy—starting with the first—you'll receive Bonus Coupons which can be used to acquire valuable books from our bonus catalog at tremendous savings.

You never have to buy a minimum number of books a year. You only have to buy four more books during your membership. If you want the main selection featured in the magazine, do nothing and it will be sent to you automatically. If you want an alternate, or no book at all, tell us so on the order form always provided and return it to us before the date specified. This date is designed to allow you at least 10 days for making your decision. There is a shipping and handling charge on all books shipped.

Cancellations and returns. If, after receiving your introductory 4 books, you wish to cancel, simply return them in 10 days and owe nothing. If you remain a member, cancel any time after buying just four more books. Should you receive an unwanted selection because you did not get the order form in time to respond within 10 days, you may return it at our expense.

You receive exclusive Guild editions. The Guild offers its own complete, hardbound editions, sometimes altered in size to fit special presses and save members even more.

"HOW DOES A SIPHON WORK?"

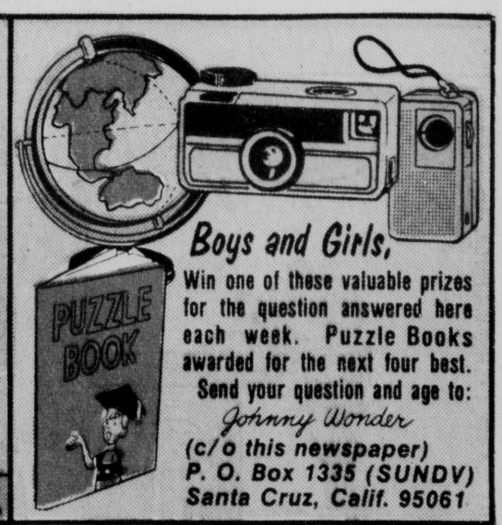

THE SIPHON DEPENDS ON ATMOSPHERIC PRESSURE AND GRAVITY. AS THE HEAVIER COLUMN OF WATER IN THE LONG LEG OF THE WATER SIPHON FALLS DOWN IT CAUSES A SUCTION THAT PULLS ON THE LIGHTER COLUMN OF WATER IN THE SHORT LEG. THE WATER IN THE SHORT LEG THEN SUCKS UP WATER FROM THE GLASS. THE WATER CONTINUES TO FLOW TILL THE HIGH GLASS IS EMPTY OR TILL THE WATER LEVELS ARE EQUAL.

DEAR POLLY — If you have an extra louvered door or shutter around the house, fasten it horizontally above the bed and you'll have an attractive headboard. If you are lucky enough to have several, hinge them together and make a screen. — TINA.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

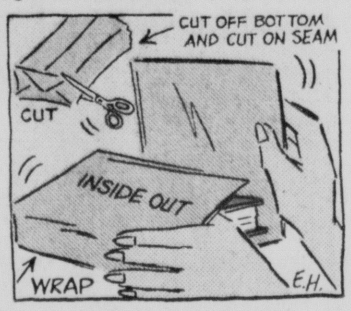

DEAR POLLY — Bootees for home, hospital or travel can be made out of washcloths in no time at all. Fold the cloth in half, sew one end all the way up for the heel, the other a little more than half way up for the toe. Turn top down about an inch at the heel and on to the top of the seam at the toe. Stitch around the top, making the hem wide enough to get a safety pin and piece of elastic through, leaving the ends open. Run elastic through, cut to desired length. — MRS. C. D.

DEAR POLLY — My husband carries a lunch box and always includes a vacuum bottle of milk. If I store the bottle in the refrigerator instead of in a cupboard, this keeps the milk colder longer. — DORIS.

DEAR POLLY — I use large, brown-paper grocery bags for mailing packages. Cut off the bottom and the seam, turn inside out and wrap. This paper is heavier than regular wrapping paper, saves the cost of buying it and re-uses the bags. — MRS. E.O.P.

DEAR POLLY — I use plastic lids such as come on cottage cheese cartons as spoon drip trays near my stove. They can be washed and re-used, or merely thrown away. Nothing's lost! — ANNA.

DEAR POLLY — As a working housewife I always had trouble getting frozen meat thawed in time for cooking. I had a small ice chest, so one day before leaving for work I placed my package of frozen meat in the cooler on the counter and when I got home from work the meat was thawed just right. — RITA.

DEAR POLLY — I wanted a griddle for our camp stove, but found them too expensive. I had a waffle iron that was no longer used. I removed the griddle part that is heavy aluminum and reversible. One grid is just the right size for one burner on the camp stove. I also use this at home for pancakes and French toast. And it cooks bacon just great, as the grease runs through the crinkles. — NELL.
